REGIMENT OF OREGON MEN IS PLANNED

Adjutant General Tells of Proposed Organization of Troops Under National Defense Regulation

MEMBERS MAY COME FROM OREGON GUARD

Salem to Have Contingent-Requirements Same as in Regular Army

Acting Adjutant General J. M. Wil liams, while in Salem yesterday in conference with Governor Withycombe, announced that the general staff has begun the oragnization of a regiment of National Guard troops for Oregon. The regiment will be composed of twelve companies, the minimum of each company to be 100 men and three officers, and in addition there will be machine gun, supply and headquarters companies, with full complement of regimental officers and sanitary troops.

The new regiment, which will probably be designated as the Fifth Oregon infantry , will be under the national defense act which gives the president authority to call the troops into active service at any time. The age limits will be from 18 to 45 While it is expected that many men for the regiment will be recruited from the present Home Guard and Oregon guard troops, it is said that many men in those organizations are physically unfit. The physical requirements for the National guard regiment will be identically with those of the regular ar-

Western Broncho Runs Amuck in City; Enters Store Through Window

NEW YORK, July 24 -The heat, the honking of an automobile horn and the efforts of a blacksmith to put shoes on its feet so shattered the nerves of a western broncho just arrived in Brooklyn that it ran amuck late today. The casualties include the serious injury of two men and the wrecking of a 5 and 10-cent. store. The men were hurt trying to get out of the way. The store was well filled with shoppers when the horse made a spectacular entry throug a show window. The through a shop window. The the basement and screamed so lustily the police reserves were called, but this broncho went out the front door without slackening its speed after hurding a counter. A motorcycle policeman saw the horse emerge from the store and gave chase after making sure his eyesight was not defective. He caught the animal after a pursuit of fifteen blocks.

Captain of Elizabeth King Tells of Encounter Sunday Night

STEAMER CAMOUFLAGED

Large Crew on Board-Reply to Question Given in Foreign Tongue

GLOUCESTER, aMss., July 24 .-Cantain William Price of the fishing schooner Elizabeth King, which arfived here tonight, reported an encounter with what he believes was as German raider off Nantucket. Captain Price said the steamer approached within one hundred feet of the Elizabeth King, keeping forward and aft guns trained on the schooner. "I expected he would hail us," said Captain Price "but he did not, so Lasked him through a megaphone if he had seen any fishing vessels in that vicinity. An officer shouted back something in a foreign language that none of us understood." The steamer was about 2500 tons and looked as if it had been at sea a long time. Two unusually high wireless masts rose from the decks. It bore no name or home port, and flew no flag. It had been camouflaged apparently, but the paint was ngarly washed off and the sides were covered with fron rust. There was a large crew aboard, Captain Price

Meeting Early in Day. The incident occurred between 8 and 9 o'clock in the morning. This was three hours before German submarine appeared off Orleans on the Cape Cod shore and attacked a tugboat and its tow of barges. The position given by Captain Price places the steamer in the lane of trans-Affantic travel.

The sinking of the schooner Robert and Richard of the Gloucester fishing fleet Monday by a German submarine has not intimidated fishermen here. Schooners have gone to sea since the news was received and the captains declare they will keep on fishing in spite of enemy

ROBERT S. GILL ENTERS SERVICE

Rector of St. Paul's and Manager of Commercial Club

Salem has repeatedly been called upon to feel gratification and regret at the same moment as some of her most capable and most needed citizens drop their local activities and project themselves into a broader field of government service. The latest instance is that of Manager Robert S. Gill, of the Salem Commercial club, who several weeks ago signified his desire and intention to go into government service. Gill's application was placed with the authorities in Portland, and yesterday he received a letter from Major T. A. Mills, of the signal corps, stating that he had been accepted for service, and that a commission as tain in the near future. In the mean-, time he was invited to report for duence and he will be placed in active commission.

Just what will be the character and scope of his work is not stated,

Some Moved to Tears at Story of Unique Kentucky Institute

"BIRD MAN" ENTERTAINS

Children Entranced at Chautauqua Program Yesterday Afternoon

Nobody will ever mistake "Burns' of the mountains"-he carries his any quarter since the third quarter brand on the wrapper. "Made in of 1916. Kentucky" is stamped upon his old first lieutenant was practically cer- physiognomy, and looms up in his steamships of 500 gross tons and deliberate enunciation. He is on the other side of a mill pond from an ty in Portland at his own conveni- orator of the silver-tongued variety. but as he stands 'himself up, gesbig as a tub and with no more am- ters, biguity about him than a pitcher of Kentucky mountain water. A genuine son of the mountains, with all its traditions and associations interwoven in his nature, he tells his unvarnished story of the mountaineer's life in a manner that holds his audence at attention and occasionally moves them to tears.

Jam to A. Burns, president and founder of Oneida institute, is a son of a Kentucky feudist, has seen many a battle of winchesters and more than once has been left for dead on the field. He knows the nature of the mountaineer as well as he does his history, and he placed the strange race before his audience in a vastly different light from the conception gained from novels and moving picture shows.

Tells of School's Rise

part of Burns' address is the simple but astounding story of the founding and development of that seemingly impossible thing-Oneida institute. Born of an impulse to kill out the feud spirit, awakened in his own soul, the institution was built up from nothing plus determination to its present standard with property and equipment valued at $150,000 and an enrollment of 500 students. And as he goes on with his story it becomes apparent that his own personality and his faith in Omnipotence is largely responsible for an institution that is transforming that part Burn's story of his own part in the reaking up of the feud spirit in the mountains sounds more like a bold chapter of fiction than personal anecdote. He pictures the lining up of two groups of the hardest characters on each side of the family feud, gathering them into an old mill shed where many a battle had been fought and with sheer force of his own sincerity leading them to a truce that has never been broken.
