AMERICAN DOLLARS WILL END THE WAR

"The inter-allied labor conference in session in London has unanimously adopted the fourteen points President Wilson formulated as the only basis for the ending of the war. Likewise unanimous approval was given the stand of President Wilson and the entente powers with regard to the Austrian peace note."

The above is taken from the Associated Press summary of Thursday night.

The world is committed to this program. It is a war to end all wars. It is a war to redress Europe on a basis for an unending reign of peace.

It is a war to establish the United States of the World in a league of nations committed to the doctrine of governments of the people, by the people and for the people.

In the beginning of this war, twenty-four French soldiers out of every four hundred who went into battle were killed.

Now, with more and better guns and fighting equipment generally, five out of every four hundred are killed.

Dollars to buy guns and ammunition and equipment save the lives of nineteen men out of every four hundred going into battle.

Dollars will end the war quickly. Dollars furnished quickly will soon commit the German people to the fourteen points of President Wilson; rather than the dictated peace they know will come, with much harder conditions for them, if they persist.

Buy Fourth Liberty Loan Bonds, and thus furnish the guns to save the lives and end the war quickly. You sign your name, and it is a life saver.

Where is the man or woman who will refuse, when a few paltry dollars may save the priceless lives of precious American soldiers, and put out the flames of a whole world on fire?

Most of the solicitors for the Fourth Liberty Loan are as busy as you are. This is as much your country as it is theirs. The task of financing this war is as much yours as theirs. It is as much your duty to hunt them up as it is theirs to hunt you up. Be your own solicitor. Be quick and glad, even joyful, to do your part. And a little more than your part.

The boys "over there," who are risking and giving their lives, are subscribing to the Fourth Liberty Loan. They are not waiting to be solicited. If they can both fight and pay, you can surely at least pay.

Every victory adds to the future premium on Liberty Bonds. They are going up.

If the war goes as it is now going for a few months more, it will be over. And if it is over next summer, you will not within another year ever again be able to buy a United States Government bond at par.

The Huns made the same kind of "voluntary retirement" before the Tommies that they did before the Yanks. And that is going some.

Bulgaria wants out of it. She is being accommodated.

After Bulgaria, Turkey.

Bulgaria is getting hers.

There are no tears for Bulgaria.

The Bulgaria of the present will pass out unwept, unhonored and unsung. But not unstung.

If successful, it was to be a German peace proposal. If it did not "take," it was to be Austrian. The role of being the goat is entirely familiar to Austria.

PEACE IS NEAR?

Hertling says that peace is much nearer than he thought a few weeks ago. Must have been getting some reports from the front lately—some of those that are not dishied out to German civilians explaining "strategic" withdrawals and retirements to prepare for drives.

THE GERMAN'S EXPLAIN.

The Germans say that they withdrew voluntarily from St. Mihiel. True, no doubt. But then they should not have forgotten to explain that they were persuaded into deciding to move voluntarily by the Americans. And it is probably the first voluntary "withdrawal" on record that dropped 20,000 prisoners and approximately the same number in casualties.

FUTURE DATES.
September 30 Monday—Salem schools open.
September 28—Fourth Liberty Loan drive opens.
September 28, Saturday—Teachers of Marion county to meet in Salem for "plan day."
September 23 to 26—Red Cross to collect clothing for Belgian relief.
October 5, Saturday—Marion county Republican Central committee meets at court house.
November 5, Tuesday—Election day in Oregon.

SPIRIT OF THE HYENA.
Confidential Correspondence From the Devil to the Kaiser.
(De-coded by Eugene H. Blake of The Vigilantes).
Infernal Palace, Hades.
My Dear Kaiser:
Pastor Eduard Falck is a useful tool for us in Germany, but don't let him publish any more Corpus Christi day articles like this in the Berlin Morgenpost, unless you can keep copies from getting out of Germany. Pastor Falck says:

"The spirit of Pentecost is the spirit of action, and since the first Pentecost day that dawned over the hills and valleys of Judea nineteen hundred years ago, no people on earth have more brilliantly fulfilled this divine doctrine than the German."

"It was the inventive German spirit, the spirit of seclusion and holy concentration, that built for itself the slender airship which at length fulfilled the ideal dream of humanity."

"I created the marvel of the U-boat which defies all the cunning counter-measures of the enemy, and day by day breaks of peace after piece of England's world prestige."

"It brought forth that stupendous piece of artillery whose fire reaches to the ethereal regions of the atmospheric ocean and carries death and devastation across a distance of seventy miles into the ranks of the foe."

"The German spirit creates order where the ill-directed impulse toward so-called 'freedom' has crushed into fragments all that is decent and orderly, and has turned everyday life into chaos."

"In this way the German spirit, the spirit of Pentecost, which is the spirit of action, comes as a blessing also to other nations besides our own, besentation of the force of Christianity."

You see, Wilhelm, the people outside the empire will reason this way:

"The spirit of the hyena is the spirit of action which tears open graves and eats corpses. The spirit of Germany is the spirit of action which tears open homes and devours womanhood, turns nations into corpses and annexes the remains. Therefore, this pentecostal spirit of Germany is the action of the hyena and not of the Christian."

Do I make myself clear, Wilhelm? You see, consistency is not only a jewel; it is a chain to bind people to us. And this is a time when we need friends, whether by force, money, or even by reason.

Yours for binding the world to our will. —The Devil.

UP AND ABOUT AGAIN
"I was sick in bed with kidney trouble," writes C. F. Reynolds, Elmira, N. Y. "I commenced taking Foley Kidney Pills and in a few days was out of bed. ## REV. MR. OVALL GETS NEW FIELD

Scandinavian Minister Is Appointed to Pastorate in City of Spokane

Rev. John Ovall, Salem, Scandinavian pastor, has been appointed minister of the Temple Methodist church formerly the First Swedish Methodist church at Spokane. Next Sunday he will preach his farewell sermon in the Scandinavian church here at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Ovall has been one of the prominent and most popular ministers in Salem during his long stay here and has a large following of friends in every denomination. His work has been extensive in western Oregon.

The church people of Oregon City where much of his work has been recently gave a farewell reception in Mr. Ovall's honor by invitation of the pastor and members of the First Methodist church at that place. Among those who gathered were members of many denominations. Speeches were made by Rev. E. E. Gilbert, pastor of the Methodist church; Rev. W. T. Milliken, pastor of the Baptist church, and Rev. M. Seaman of the Presbyterian church. All spoke in words of praise concerning Mr. Ovall and regretted his departure. Members of the church spoke appreciatively of his work and a purse was given him as a gift. Music was furnished by the Baptist orchestra. Mr. Ovall responded appropriately. Refreshments followed the program.

The following resolutions were adopted: "Whereas, it has seemed wise to the presiding bishop of the Pacific Swedish mission conference to appoint Rev. John Ovall to the Temple church—First Swedish church—Spokane and deprive Oregon City and its vicinity of his most acceptable services, we the members and friends of his congregation desire to express our most hearty appreciation of his services for the past five years among us."

"We have recognized his brotherly spirit, his able leadership and kindly Christian fellowship. He has been a real spiritual benediction in his pastoral visits, his able sermons and his uplifting prayers. His ready judgment has been known in so many ways.

"We commend him for his untiring labor, and God's richest blessings will ever abide with him for the many churches he has organized, many Sunday schools he has started and the advances the Kingdom of Heaven has had through him.

"We commend him to the confidence and fellowship of all the people of Spokane and assure him of our love and prayers unto the ends of his days."

CZECHO-SLOVAKS HAVE LONG LINE

Weapons of General Horvath's Troops, Recently Disarmed, Returned

(By The Associated Press)
VLADIVOSTOK, Sept. 11.—The Czecho-Slovak battle front in Eastern Russia, according to the chief of staff of General Gaidis, commander in chief of the Czecho-Slovak forces in Russia, extend from Yekaterinburg, on the Asiatic side of the Ural mountains, to Krasno-Ufimsk, 100 miles west of Yekaterinburg, to Kazan, 420 miles east of Moscow, to Suvara, 200 miles south of Kazan, and then to Nikolayev, on the Black sea 100 miles east of Odessa.

Saratov, on the right bank of the Volga, is in the hands of the Russian Red Guards, but Tsaritsyn, on the Volga, 200 miles south of Saratov was recently occupied by the Cossacks of General Dutov, and anti-Bolshevik leader. West of Yekaterinburg the Czecho-Slovaks are reaching out in the direction of Perm.

General Gaidis at present is at the Manchuria station, but he soon will come to Vladivostok.

General Horvath, head of the provisional government, had arrived here. The members of the local government have gone to Omsk to ascertain their standing with the Siberian government.

On the recommendation of the entire allied command at Vladivostok the weapons of General Horvath's troops, who were recently disarmed, have been restored. The guns were given back to the troops on the understanding that the men would join General Semenov's Cossack forces.

The strike of railroad employes on the Chinese eastern railway has been adjusted.

ITALIAN INDEPENDENCE DAY.
SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 20.—Italy's independence day was observed by Italians and others here with a program tonight under auspices of the Roman Legion of America. Former Senator S. M. Piles, and Judge George Donworth, were the speakers.

PREPARE FOR CHANGEABLE WEATHER.
H. B. Miller, R. F. D. 19, Wooster, O., writes: "By the changing of beds and the weather, I took a very bad cold and sore throat. Four doses of Foley's Honey and Tar put me right in a day's time." It pays to get the genuine Foley's and avoid substitutes and counterfeits. Contains no opiates.—J. C. Perry.

GERMANY NOW OPENLY TAKES AUSTRIAN LEAD

Says It Is Ready to Join in Unbinding Discussion of Peace Terms

OFFERS ITS ANSWER

Says That Hun Country Is Filled to the Brim With "Noble Humanity"

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 20.—An official statement issued in Berlin says the German ambassador in Vienna today presented German's reply to the recent Austro-Hungarian peace note. The German note announces the readiness of Germany to participate in the proposed exchange of ideas.

The text of the German reply follows: "The undersigned imperial ambassador has the honor to make the following reply to the highly-esteemed note of the royal and imperial foreign minister:

"The summons of the Austro-Hungarian government to all belligerent states to enter into confidential unbinding discussion in a neutral country of the fundamental principles for the conclusion of peace corresponds to the spirit of peace readiness and conciliatoriness which the responsible statesmen of the quadruple alliance and authorized representatives of the allied (Teutonic) peoples have again and again announced. The reception which previous similar steps met with from our enemies was not encouraging.

"The imperial government, however, follows the new attempt to bring the world nearer to the just and lasting peace, which it desires with the sincerest and earnest wish that the statement of the Austro-Hungarian government inspired by profound conciliatory feeling and noble humanity, will in time evoke the desired echo."

"In the name of the imperial government the undersigned has the honor to declare that Germany is ready to participate in the proposed exchange of ideas."

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 20.—The American reply to the Austro-Hungarian proposal for an unbinding and secret conference of the belligerents was communicated to the Austro-Hungarian foreign office yesterday by the Swedish minister according to a telegram received here today from Vienna.

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

The Story of a Honeymoon

A Wonderful Romance of Married Life Wonderfully Told by ADELE GARRISON

CHAPTER LXXXIX IS JACK CHANGED?

The waiter stood at attention with pencil pointed over his menu card. Jack was studying the menu card, and I was studying Jack.

It was the first chance I had had to take a good look at this cousin-brother of mine after his year's absence. Every time I had attempted it I had met his eyes fixed upon me with an inscrutable look that puzzled and embarrassed me. Now however, he was occupied with the menu card, and I stared openly at him.

He had changed very little, I told myself. Of course he was terribly browned by his year in the tropics, but otherwise he was the same handsome, well-set-up chap I remembered so well.

He looked up, caught my gaze, and into his blue eyes flashed the old merry teasing look that I knew.

"Giving me the once over?" he asked in a low tone, mindful of the waiter; then in his ordinary voice: "Made up your mind yet what you want?"

"Oh, won't you order, please, Jack?" I asked.

"Can't be done," he returned merrily. "This is your party. My only part is to remember your favorites. Of course you want some escargots."

We both smiled at the recollection the name called up. In the days when a dinner with Jack was the one recreation my plodding life afforded me, he had once persuaded me to eat some escargots. When they were served, and I discovered they were snails, I had ordered them taken away at once, the very idea of them upsetting me. Later, to please Jack, who was very fond of them, I tried one, then another, and after a number of dinners had become as true a lover of them as he was.

"Oh, surely!" I said. "Of course escargots."

The waiter heard me, and bent deferentially toward me.

"It is too bad," he said in perfect English, "but it is impossible for us to get the escargots on account of the war."

"That's too bad," said Jack. "I suppose there will be a number of your favorites we can't have. I can't realize yet there is a war. You see I didn't bear it until a few days ago when we first got out of the wilderness."

The waiter waxed confidential. "You'd know it if you were here, sir," he said respectfully. "Almost all of our boys have gone back to fight for France. I wish I were only young enough to go."

We looked around the restaurant and confirmed his words. The waiters were all men over middle age, not a young man among them. I gave a little shiver at the thought of what it meant. Jack saw it.

Memories and Danger.

"We'll not talk of it any more," he said. "How would you like oysters instead of escargots?"

"Those will be very nice," I smiled at him.

In reality I was far from hungry. But I would not spoil Jack's pleasure by telling him so.

"What next, consommé, or isn't it here you used to get that chicken broth you liked so well?"

"How well you remember, Jack," I exclaimed in astonishment.

"Do you think I could forget?" he asked quickly. Something in his tone gave me that vague uncomfortable "fear again."

"The chicken broth here is very good," I said hastily. "Let us have one."

"All right, I know you don't like fish. So what shall be the grand centrepiece?"

I knew Jack's favorite dish, but I felt he could sit down in front of just the right kind of steak, thick juicy, broiled just right, he was happy.

"A steak, by all means," I answered. "I haven't had a good one in ages."

"I'm sure you're saying that to please me," Jack protested, "but I haven't the heart to say no. You can imagine the food I've lived on in South America. For you must order the rest of the meal."

"Surely I will," I said, for I knew the things he liked. "Baked potatoes, new asparagus, buttered brorets, remade salad, and we'll talk about the dessert later."

The waiter bowed and hurried away. "You're either a clairvoyant, a seer, or—"

"Perhaps I, too, have a memory," I returned gayly, and then regretted the speech as I saw the look that beamed into Jack's eyes.

"I wish I were sure," he began lamely, "then he checked himself. 'I wonder whether we are too early for any music,' he finished lamely.

"I am afraid so," I said.

"It doesn't matter anyway. We want to talk not to listen. I've got something to tell you about, my dear that I've thinking about all this year that I've been gone."

"Give Me Time."

I did not realize the impulse that made me stretch out my hand, lay it upon his, and ask gently:

"Please, Jack, don't tell me anything important until after dinner. I feel rather spent anyway. Let's have one of our old carefree dinners, and when we've finished we can talk."

Jack gave me a long curious look under which I flushed hot. Then he said brusquely, "All right, the weather and the price of flour, those are good subjects, we'll stick to them."

The omnibus had spread the table with a clean cloth and the silver. I
