THE CZECHS IN AMERICA

The Czechoslovaks have rendered such magnificent service to the cause of the allies in Russia and Siberia that the attention of the entire civilized world has been turned upon them. But their achievements have not all been on the field of battle. We have in America over 1,000,000 Czechoslovaks. The story of their contributions to the winning of the war is also one great interest. Since we entered the war, the efforts of the Czechoslovak people in the United States have really been notable: both as Americans, to win the war, and as lovers of their native land, to secure its independence. But their distrust of Germany and their industry in behalf of oppressed peoples date back earlier than America's participation in the struggle. Associations of various kinds, social, athletic, benefit, etc., had existed among the Czechoslovaks before the great war began in 1914. But in that year the Czech organizations were united into the Bohemian National Alliance with headquarters at Chicago, and all the Slovak organizations were combined to form the Slovak league which had its main offices at Pittsburgh. The object was two-fold: first, to work with all their might and main for the independence of Bohemia-Slovakia; second, to counteract the German propaganda in the United States.

This pro-German agitation tried its best to make use of the Czechoslovaks particularly their newspapers. Everybody remembers the attempts to find expression through the American press. Attempts were made to buy up papers or secure their favor with advertisements. This extended also to the Bohemian-Slovak newspapers. But against all the measures taken to win them over the Czechoslovaks presented a determined front. Their eighty newspapers throughout the country refused the paid matter with which they were deluged by the Austro-Hungarian embassy and came out practically unanimously for the cause of the allies.

They resisted other German and Austrian advances too, as long ago as the first year of the war. It will be remembered that a drive was made by German and Austrian agents to secure an embargo on ammunition and war supplies, which were essential to the allies; a campaign of intimidation against American public men who had declared themselves in favor of the allies or of intervention on their side; and sabotage was resorted to in the munition factories, to destroy the war materials designed for the allies. The Czechoslovaks objected strenuously. Immense mass meetings were held to protest against any embargo upon war materials. And they made constant and successful appeals to their fellow countrymen employed in the mines and munition factories to refuse to sabotage the authorities.

After American entered the war the activities of the Czechoslovaks were tireless. Lecturers were sent Washington through the country to practically every Czech and Slovak settlement, to explain the purposes and ideals for which our country was fighting, and to form a local organization. So successful was this work that there now exist over 250 local patriotic societies, with a paid-up membership of over 150,000. Moreover, every organization formed to maintain the morale of our people, such as the state council of defense, has the loyal support of the Czechoslovaks. Indeed, the president of the woman's division of the Nebraska State Council of Defense is a Czech woman, Miss Saraka Hrbkova, of the University of Nebraska. In financial matters the Czechoslovaks have been liberal. It will surprise most Americans to learn that the splendid work of Professor Thomas G. Masaryk, president of the Czechoslovak National Council throughout the world, has been made possible through the enthusiastic financial support of his fellow countrymen in the United States. Each of their local societies has a liberty loan and a Red Cross committee attached to it, and according to the report of the treasury department for the third loan, the Czechoslovaks contributed $31,750,000, an enormous sum when one considers that they belong, generally speaking, to the "non-possessing mass."

If they are not satisfied to give only of their means, as soon as the United States declared war, a recruiting campaign was undertaken to enlist as many of their men as possible in our army. Today it is estimated, there are 50,000 men of Czechoslovak extraction in the American army. And this is exclusive of several thousands who had already joined the French foreign legion.

Such a record of patriotic endeavor justifies a desire to know more of the Czechoslovaks in our midst; why they came to this country, where they are living, and what trades they engage in. The first immigration of Czechs into the United States took place in the '50's, as a result of the persecution by the Austrian government of those who had participated in the uprising against it in the revolution of 1848. They were chiefly of the intellectual class, who settled in New York, Chicago and St. Louis, and agricultural workers, who settled in Nebraska, Iowa and the Dakotas. They were fine citizens and loyally rallied to the cause of freedom and the Union during the civil war. Today the monument to the "Lincoln Rifle Company" is the most prominent feature of the National Bohemian cemetery of Chicago.

Although almost one-half of all the Czechs in the United States are still to be found on farms, the character of Czech immigration began to change in the '80's, the majority of them after that date being skilled workmen. The Slovaks came still later, toward the close of the nineteenth century. In the decade of 1900-1910 almost 350,000 arrived here. They are mostly miners and unskilled workmen. Their lower educational state is due to the severe oppression which they have suffered for years from their Hungarian masters. The Magyars have kept them in economic poverty, prevented their having schools of their own, and prohibited the use of their own language whenever possible. The result is that, until, recently, the Slovaks did not have a strong racial consciousness. But the past five years have seen a remarkable growth in unity of feeling on their part with the Czechs, to whom they are indissolubly bound by common racial ties and common aims and sufferings. They prefer to be spoken of as one people, the Czechoslovaks, and their national aim is for one united independent state, comprising Bohemia, Moravia, Slovakia, and part of Silesia. However, those of them who have become naturalized Americans have no wish to leave this country. Unlike some other immigrant people, the Czechs settled here intending to remain, and few have ever returned to the mother country.

Sage Tea Darkens Hair to Any Shade. Don't Stay Gray! Here's an Old-time Recipe that Anybody can Apply.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. But brewing at home is messy and out of date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair. A well-known down town druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Polish Women Engaging in Wartime Activities

DETROIT, Oct. 12.—The annual convention of the Polish Women's Alliance opened yesterday at Detroit, with a large attendance. This organization, which has a membership of over 100,000 has been in existence for several years and has devoted its efforts to bettering the cultural and educational conditions of the Polish-American women and children. Now that the war has swept away everything else into insignificance, the alliance is taking up the question of doing war work for the Polish soldiers in our own army and in the various foreign legions. There are also many Polish boys in German prison camps. These the Women's Alliance wants to reach. It wants to secure as many comforts as possible for them and see that they receive decent treatment. Polish women have already been active in helping their countrymen in the United States army. A story is told of a Polish woman in the district of Columbia, who, though she keeps a large boarding house and has to work hard to support herself, nevertheless gives two hours each day to visiting and caring for the Polish-American soldiers at the Walter Reed hospital. It is such wartime activities as this that the Polish Women's Alliance is anxious to stimulate and spread.

SALEM COMPANY MAKING JAMS FOR SOLDIERS

Millions of Pounds of Berries Are Preserved During Past Summer. SOME YET TO SHIP OUT. Delicacies Go to Encampments in Cans Holding Five Gallons Each.

You've heard of the famous jam tins of the British Tommies, but did you ever hear of the Salem jam tins for the American boys? Even they may yet become as famous as their English rivals. Down on Trade street by the Southern Pacific switch tracks is an old casket company but it is no longer being engaged in the production of wooden jackets. Rather is it putting out material for the satisfaction of the inner man. The H. A. Baker company has during the past summer preserved about 2,000,000 pounds of loganberries and 1,500,000 pounds of evergreen blackberries by converting them into jam, which is packed into five-gallon Chilneff oil tins and shipped to cantonments of the expeditionary forces. Besides this large quantities of the fresh fruit have been shipped in barrels in refrigerator cars to eastern factories to be made up.

There yet remains about four or five cars of blackberry and two or three of loganberry jam to be sent out from the warehouse. The company is nearly through making the preserves and is handling principally the late blackberries, other canneries having ceased to take them in. Just Friday five tons of the evergreens were put up. The plant ran day and night all summer, employing between 30 and 40 men.

Pershing's Order As to Liquors Brings Praises

HEADQUARTERS AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, Oct. 12.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—General Pershing's order forbidding the use of all alcoholic beverages except light wines and beers by soldiers and instituting various forms of athletics and wholesome amusements to prevent immorality has brought him much gratifying and favorable comment from the American and Allied sources which have been striving for the betterment of the men in the field. His admission of "prompt disciplinary action" is having a salutary effect. Efforts are being made to keep every American soldier, when he is not actually under fire or in the trenches, occupied with instruction on various useful subjects, work, drill, baseball, football, wrestling, boxing, foot racing and other forms of sport, athletic games, theatrical entertainments and clean motion picture shows.

The determination of the American commander to secure a rigid enforcement of his anti-drunkness and anti-immorality regulations was indicated in a letter written by General Pershing appointing representatives to a British-American conference on the subject, in which he said: "The gravest responsibility rests on those to whom the parents of our soldiers have entrusted their sons to the battle and we fail if we neglect any effort to safeguard them in every way. We have the common ground of humanity; we have the well considered conclusions of the best scientific minds on our side, and from the fact that, in this war of nations in arms the soldier is merely a citizen on war service, we have all the elements which will force co-operation between military and civilian authorities."

Knotty Problem Confronts Big League Baseball Heads

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Major league baseball magnates face a knotty problem at the coming annual meetings when they will be called upon to decide the status of the players at present under contract or reserve. Very few of the club owners hold the opinion, apparently, that it will be possible to resume league operations next spring. If such proves to be the case and there are few indications to the contrary, it would appear that the majority of players who figured in the 1918 pennant races will not receive contracts during the early months of next year. According to the present system it is mandatory upon the clubs to renew their options or reserve clause upon players not later than January 1 each year and to follow this action by mailing contracts to the players not later than February 1. It is extremely doubtful if this procedure will be followed in 1919. Under the ordinary ruling a player who did not receive his contract by March 1 would become a free agent and upon the resumption of big league baseball would be in a position to sell his services to the highest bidder. It is understood, however, that the magnates will hold that the business of baseball was suspended under instructions from the government and that since the right to operate was beyond their control all contracts and other legal phases are suspended automatically. The suspension of the contract of the player carries over until such time as the government gives consent for a renewal of the business of baseball. Thus if the professional leagues do not resume until 1920 the year of 1919 would be considered as non-existent in so far as it might affect a player's contract.

There is still another angle to the proposition which involves the magnates and the two major leagues as individuals and co-operating business organizations. It might be held to be within their rights to refuse to negotiate with or for the services of a player who, previously to the suspension of the game, was the property of another club. If such action were generally adopted the player would be obligated to report back to his original club for a renewal of his contract or a release, if he desired to re-enter play in either of the big leagues. According to the latest reports from Venezuela baseball beats bull fighting. From the American point of view there is nothing remarkable in such a statement. We always knew it did. But Pitcher Mutis, of the Borinquen Stars, the Porto Rican baseball team that recently visited Venezuela for a series of games, says that sentiment has got hold in the South American Republic where for centuries "la corrida de toros" has been the national sport. People there still go afternoons to see the "torador" given the deadly thrust

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open alices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter. Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuff from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, instead, look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poison and toxins from the body with phosphate hot water each morning. We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach liver and kidneys, and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach. The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at any drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation.
