DINNER IS SERVED WITH SHOVELS

Patients at State Hospital Partake of Biggest Thanksgiving Feast in Salem With Great Gusto—Excellent Menu Given

Rice pudding for dessert? Yes. Just take 1 1/2 pounds of raisins, 15 gallons of milk, 15 dozen eggs, and 20 pounds of sugar and dump into them a 100-pound sack of rice. Place all in a 100-gallon iron kettle, cook till done, and you have enough to satisfy the 1500 patients of the state hospital. But—rice pudding wasn't all they had for dessert yesterday. There were also some 450 pumpkin pies, made especially to be devoured.

lifts to the various wards. On such a large scale was the dinner served that vegetables were literally dished up by the shovelful and a three-tined instrument, greatly resembling a potato fork, was used in portioning out the meat. Twice a year, on Christmas and Thanksgiving, the hospital is prepared for a feast of extraordinarily large proportions, probably the largest in Oregon. Yesterday the attendants were served in three installments before the meals were sent up to the wards at 2:30. All of the food for the patients is placed in large aluminum containers stacked one on top of the other so that each tin keeps the one below it warm. These are run out of the kitchen on small trucks and taken down to the basement, where they travel to various places on the three miles of track leading to the shafts from the wards. Practically everything served at the hospital is raised on its farm and prepared in its kitchen or bakery or canning rooms. Sweet cider, manufactured from delicious apples grown at Cottage farm, for instance, formed the principal beverage at yesterday's meal.

MOONEY ESCAPES GALLOWS WHEN HE RECEIVES COMMUTATION TO LIFE FROM GOVERNOR OF CALIFORNIA

arrested shortly after the explosion, and of these Warren K. Billings was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment and Thomas J. Mooney found guilty and sentenced to be hanged.

"So long as avenues of appeal to the courts remained open to Mooney, and he was availing himself thereof, I deemed it improper for executive authority to interfere. Although the constitution of California clothes the governor with power to exercise clemency at any time after conviction, it is important, so far as practicable not court of California, which appeal itself acted as a stay of execution, there was at that time no occasion for action on my part. I take it that the president was not correctly informed as to the status of the case.

"In March I received a telegram from the president urging that I commute Mooney's sentence. It was as follows: "The White House, Washington, D. C., 2:06 P. M., March 27, 1918.

"To intrude into any criminal case until the judicial branch has finally disposed of it. Only recently has final action been taken by the United States supreme court, and the case of the people versus T. J. Mooney placed squarely before me.

"In considering the Mooney case, I have had before me the urgent appeal of the president of the United States that I grant commutation.

"Originally, in January of this year, I received a letter from the president asking me if it would not be possible to postpone the execution of Mooney until he could be tried on one of the other indictments against him.

"Inasmuch as an appeal already had been taken to the supreme Governor William D. Stephens, Sacramento, Cal.

"With very great respect I take the liberty of saying to you that if you could see your way to commute the sentence of Mooney it would have a most heartfelt effect upon certain international affairs which his execution would greatly complicate.

"(Signed) 'Woodrow Wilson.' "In June I received this additional message, the president again urging commutation of sentence: "The White House, Washington, D. C., 3:51 P. M., June 4, 1918.

"Hon. William D. Stephens, Sacramento, Cal.

"I beg that you will believe that I am moved only by a sense of public duty and of conscientiousness of the many and complicated interests involved when I again most respectfully suggest a commutation of the death sentence imposed upon Mooney. I would not venture again to call your attention to this case did I not know the international significance which attaches to it.

"(Signed) 'Woodrow Wilson.' "At the time of the receipt of these messages the case was still pending in the supreme court of the state. Not until August 23 was the case finally disposed of by the California courts, and on November 18 by the supreme court of the United States.

"I have carefully reviewed all the available evidence bearing on the case. There are certain features connected with it which convince me that the extreme sentence should not be executed. Therefore, and because of the earnest request of the president for commutation, and conscious of the duty I owe as governor of this state to all of its people, I have decided to commute Mooney's sentence to life imprisonment. In doing so, I accept full responsibility for the wisdom and justification of the action.

"The record of the trial in the superior court of our state and its judgment of the lower court. However, there has remained the conviction that could not be considered by the supreme court. It is because of this new evidence that I find justification for commutation of sentence. In arriving at this conclusion I have exercised that caution which must be observed in weighing evidence presented outside of established legal procedure.

"By commutation to life imprisonment Mooney's case will be in the same status as that of Warren K. Billings, who was convicted of the same crime and received a sentence to life imprisonment.

OREGON LABOR NOT TO STOP STRIKE MOVE

"The logic that a man is either guilty or innocent, and that necessarily if the maximum punishment is not justified, pardon should follow does not hold, either in theory or in practice. It has been no uncommon thing for executives in granting of clemency to entertain doubt sufficient to save men from the gallows, but not of that degree of 'reasonable doubt' that the law resolves completely in favor of a defendant. "I refuse to recognize this case as in any fashion representing a clash between capital and labor. I regard the petition of the defendant for clemency solely as that of a man convicted of murder in the first degree. On his behalf a propaganda has been carried on to make it appear that he is a martyr to the cause of labor. This is absurd. The methods pursued in this propaganda have partaken largely of the system described in the following letter written by Alexander Berkman, an associate of Mooney and an anarchistic agitator: "I have had some experience in labor matters. I have also participated in the defense work of various labor cases in the east. And all my experience has convinced me that in such matters the thing of chief importance is to create favorable public sentiment. Funds, money for the defense, etc., are of secondary importance. Take, for instance, the case of Alexander Aldemas, the Spanish marine worker. He was arrested during the transport workers' strike of some three years ago and he was charged with cutting a scab and shooting three policemen. The district attorney claimed he could give him 40 years. I was secretary of the Aldemas defense committee when Simon Pollock, one of our attorneys, came with an offer of compromise from the district attorney; Aldemas should plead guilty and get off with seven years in state prison. We had little money. Lawyer Darling of Brooklyn had squandered several thousand dollars of our hard collected funds, but we gave him the sack and engaged Pollock, but we did not depend on money. We at once organized a wide campaign of publicity; held numerous mass meetings, agitated the matter in the press and got in touch with the people all over the country for purposes of agitation. When Aldemas was first arrested everyone cried 'hang him.' Within two months of intense agitation we so changed the public mind on the matter that Aldemas was sentenced to one and a half years instead of 40 the district attorney had threatened with, and instead of seven years the lawyers were quite ready to accept for him. The moral is obvious. Stick to your guns—always and under all circumstances—and further public agitation to change the psychology of the people is more important in such matters than big funds.

"The defendant, Mooney, never has been identified with the labor movement that has achieved so much for the benefit of the working men of California. His connections have been with a small group of agitators of pronounced anarchistic tendencies. However, the propaganda in his behalf, following the plan outlined by Berkman, has been so effective as to become world-wide.

"Mooney's previous record is not such as to enlist faith in him among law-abiding citizens. What character of man he is may be gained from a statement he issued as secretary of the International Workers' Defense fund to Governor Johnson when he refused to pardon Ford and Suhr, two I. W. W. convicted of murder. The following is an excerpt from Mooney's statement: "The governor's statement of his reasons for refusing to act at this time shows him up in his true colors, a cowardly cur, despicable, beyond recognition and resorting to the cunning, shrewdness, trickery and cowardice of the average district attorney in prosecuting the case. There are some workers at least, Governor Johnson, who will not accept as final your decision on the Ford and Suhr case, and from now on they will attempt to use the only kind of reasoning that will eventually reach you and we hope it will be indulged in until Ford and Suhr are out of prison.

"And so if violence is committed, Governor Johnson is responsible for it, as he has closed the last legal or governmental avenue of action. The workers must act and they will act men vindicated to the labor world as their champions in the greatest cause in history. (Signed) "Tom Mooney, secretary."

"In reaching my conclusion I have been guided by what has come before me that bore directly on the case. It is, of course, unnecessary to argue the point that whatever TWO—ADD GOVERNOR HINTS... Mooney's character or his past record might have been, this particular case must be determined upon its merits.

"Now, therefore, I, William D. Stephens, governor of the state of California, do hereby commute the sentence of death imposed upon Thomas J. Mooney in the superior court of the state of California, in and for the city and county of San Francisco, to imprisonment for the term of his natural life in the state prison at San Quentin.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state of California to be affixed this 28th day of November, 1918. "William D. Stephens, Governor."

supreme court for a new trial and was supported by a "consent" filed by the state attorney general, U. S. Webb, Charles M. Flicker, district attorney of San Francisco, who prosecuted the bomb murder case, requested the consent as "irregular and vicious" and it was dismissed. Mooney's appeal was denied March 1, 1918, the supreme court stipulating it could not consider evidence outside the record.

Mooney appealed to Governor Stephens of California for a pardon and meantime Mooney's attorneys applied to the trial court for a writ of "habeas corpus" (before us, the king) and action seldom resorted to whereby suitors under the common law could seek a reversal of a judgment obtained by fraud. Attorneys on all other legal means were exhausted except this appeal to the state. The application was denied and the hanging reset for August 22, 1918. Mooney had been in "death row" of San Quentin prison since July 11. The California supreme court affirmed this denial July 22, 1918, ten days later after the explosion. Two years later, exactly two years after his arrest, Mooney was reprieved to December 13 by Governor Stephens to allow time for him to review the record.

Action of the United States supreme court November 18, closing the long court fight, was in the form of a memorandum by Chief Justice White refusing a writ of certiorari. During the two years world-wide appeals were made to labor bodies to act in support of a new trial. Russian radicals paraded in Petrograd and made a demonstration before the American embassy. The American Trade council and other organizations made public demands for a new trial for Mooney.
