'I was present when the governor bade farewell to the last patialion of the Third Oregon. I repet he could not have been spared to see them return, for no one would have given the men a warmer welcome.

"The governor was a grateful mana loyal friend, staunch, sympathetic. helpful and dependable. His leadernstructive-his interest fataily preceded the 22 officers on the staft of the Oregon National guard, who marched in so'd formation. With them also were Lieuterand Hate'd C. Jonus and Captain George S Shephard of the Oregon Navat minitia.

At the cemetery only members of the family and the fallbeare's were admitted to the mansolema where the body was placed in a flag-draped crypt The soldiers stood at . itentice in front of the mausoleum while Dr. Ave en conducted a short service The salute and taps completed the h mint. It is estimated that 125 visitors attended the funeral from Corvailis. where the governor had made his h me for many years. A much larger number came from Portland and inclaid usen of prominence t. state affaits. Special cars were run op the Oregon Electric during the day to accoundate the estra travel. Ast of the governor's immediate family were in Salem for the funeral His three sons, Robert of I n ton. John of Havre Mont, and East of this city were all ination later, as air was his daughter, Miss Mabel Withycombe. Two brothers, Philip of Yamhill, accompanied his wife and daughter Helen, and Thomas of Portland, with his son William, were here. Mrs. John Withycombe, a sister-in-law, acompanied by Mrs. Sidney Rasmussen, a nices, and her hus. band: Mrs. A. M. Connon, sister of Mrs. John Withycombe and Lula Holmes Plummer, an intimate friend of Miss Mabel Withycombe, came from Portland.

The company was ready to start east to take ship to France when the nfluenza epidemic made its appearande and upset the plan. After the epidemic had about run its course. and the boys were again preparing Corwin Huston, Detroit, defeated H for the pay, news arrived of the signing of the armistice. The boys were terribly disappointed for as Harry aptly expressed it. "they were all itching for overseas cooties."
