LAXITY SHOWN IN SALEM WHILE DRIVE GOES ON

State Chamber Boosters Disappointed at Absence of Several Members

MEETING AGAIN TODAY

Actual Progress for Affiliation Here May Be Started at Luncheon

While the rest of the state is quickly going over the top on the drive for memberships in the State Chamber of Commerce, Salem is peacefully sitting around waiting for somebody to give it a push.

An effort was made yesterday to secure the attendance of a committee at a luncheon at the Marion hotel, where it was planned to discuss Salem's part in the movement. Failure of a number of the members to be present is responsible for the calling of a similar meeting today noon. Mayor C. E. Albin and J. F. Hutchason will visit all possible workers this morning and personally request their attendance.

C. B. Clancy, Mr. Hutchason, Mayor Albin, C. W. Neimeyer, C. P. Bishop, Hal D. Patton, J. H. Albert and John Bayne were called on for brief addresses. Louis Lachmund, chairman for the county, called the meeting, which was presided over by Charles R. Archer. Frederick Schmidt delivered the principal speech. T. E. McCroskey, the new manager of the Salem Commercial club, told of the work done by the Washington State Chamber of Commerce.

"If we have learned nothing else by this war we have been taught that team work pays," said Mr. McCroskey. "If we hadn't had it we would never have bought liberty bonds and war saving stamps and our boys would have had to come home. We worked together and boosted. We should continue to keep up that spirit."

Mr. Schmidt, who is a member of the state board of directors, answered questions for the committee members, pointing out the individual benefits to this community. He said that Silverton, Mount Angel and Scotts Mills have already raised their share of the money needed to back the organization and read a letter from John E. Etheridge, state chairman of the membership committee. In which he mentioned that he trusted Salem is meeting with success and "that we may have favorable telegraphic reports from Marion county during the week and learn that it has gone over the top by Saturday night."

Calling on the Salem business men to give $5 each toward the cause, Mr. Schmidt explained that it was not a donation or a charity matter, but a plain business proposition. He showed the advantages that Salem will have with its five delegates, its nearness to state headquarters, its directors on the board, its various appointments on important committees such as F. G. Deckebach on the dairy committee and R. C. Paulus, chairman on the one of horticulture.

"The chamber has no connection with politics," he declared. "Its organizers have taken pains so that no office holder or legislator has been named to serve on any but the membership committee."

"It is strictly a business organization founded for the purpose of making Oregon a greater community." Particular advantages, he said, to this community would be in aid given in securing pickers for crops, support of Willamette valley drainage projects and advertising for the section through the exhibits and literature to be given out to new settlers at state headquarters.

Work will probably begin Monday to secure $2600 Salem must send into the treasury of the chamber. With the booster meeting today noon

Tight Skirts Upset Time Schedule of Eastern Road

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—Tight skirts worn by women passengers have upset the schedules on the railroads. The Pennsylvania railroad, with scientific accuracy, has found that since women began wearing tight skirts the average stopping time of a train at a station is now seventeen seconds longer than it was when the skirts were short and roomy around the bottom.

OREGON TO TRY FOR NAVAL BASE

Portland Will Show Congressional Committee Why the Mouth of Columbia River Is A Strategic Location

PORTLAND, March 20.—When members of the house naval affairs committee reach Portland next Wednesday, committees from the Portland Chamber of Commerce will be prepared to present to the congressmen arguments in favor of establishing a naval base within the entrance of the Columbia river. They will have charts and maps showing the great undefended territory contiguous to the Columbia river. The arguments and charts will be bound and a copy presented to each congressman.

Plans for the reception and entertainment of the visitors were outlined at a meeting of committees from the Portland and Astoria Chambers of Commerce and some details were announced today. The congressional party will arrive here 7:30 Wednesday morning and will entrain for Bremerton late Saturday night, according to present plans.

marged with a similar bill by Representative Kubli of Portland and known as the Dimick-Kubli bill, and by his attacks on patented paving concerns. He was chairman of the committee on resolutions and a member of other important committees. In both his private and his public life Senator Dimick was known for his high ideals and clean character.

REED ATTACKS LEAGUE AGAIN

Proposed Covenant Termed Instrument of British Political Sharpers

ST. LOUIS, March 20.—Reiterating his attack on the proposed league of nations, Senator James A. Reed, in an address here tonight at a dinner given by personal friends, declared that before America accepts the proposed constitution of the league she should "top! look! and listen!"

"I am not ready to turn over matters of vital importance to America for decision by five foreign gentlemen," declared Reed. "Suppose we had trouble with Mexico. Why should we be compelled to refer to a European conference for settlement?"

"The general understanding of the Monroe doctrine is that we warned Europe not to get mixed up in American affairs if we could not take part in European affairs."

"If Japan should purchase Magdalena bay and the western part of Mexico there would be protest from the United States but we would have to refer out protest to the league. Being a party to the contest, we would not have a vote in the matter to protect our interests."

The senator denounced the proposed covenant as an instrument of English politics.

Chinese Troupe Coming Sunday

Choy Heng Wa Troupe—a group of four Chinese artists who specialize in juggling acrobatics and magic, present a most edifying number comprising all number of feats under the above lines of endeavor. Chinese artists are more or less scarce in this country on account of the stringent emigration laws, therefore, when a troupe of this nationality land in America, we can unquestionably look forward to seeing an usually able and competent, as well as original and versatile troupe of artists. They have been engaged to appear at the Bligh theater for one play only, Sunday, March 23.

the west and middle west as a football player.

Information of the death of Senator Dimick first reached here in a telephone message to Governor Olcott from Judge Grant B. Dimick.

In the legislature Senator Dimick was known as a powerful debater. Possessed of ready wit, pleasing humor and biting sarcasm his addresses always attracted interested spectators to the lobby of the senate chamber. While he was a fearless and formidable opponent he was a favorite among his fellow legislators and many who were opposed to him in public affairs were close friends personally.

Senator Dimick's work in the session of 1919 will best be remembered perhaps through his bill directed against criminal syndicalism, later
