

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime. Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

ALTERED DIAL ROILS FARMER

Letter to Governor Lodges Protest Against Turning Clocks Ahead

"We are all rushing our lives away fast enough as it is," protests a person who signs himself "a farmer," in a letter to Governor Olcott, asking the governor not to allow the clocks in Oregon to be turned ahead an hour on March 30. "You can see plainly this fast time is only to give the city people a little more time to run around," says the farmer. He writes:

"Now, Mr. Olcott, will you please help all of the hard-working people by keeping our clocks just as they are. We all are rushing our lives away fast enough as it is and if it wasn't for the farmer where would the city people be? You can see plainly this fast time is only to give the city people a little more time to run around. The world over has always gotten along well these many years without such changes of time, and as far as the saving of light there is nothing to it, just a double expense and an awful hardship, for you well know the working class of people do their part getting up early. And just think of the little children who have to go to school two or three miles, what time they have

STAY IN SCHOOL IS MADE SLOGAN

Movement by Churchill Follows Enactment of Part-Time Measure

With the enactment by the recent legislature of the law known as the "part-time bill," State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. A. Churchill is planning to begin a campaign for a "stay-in-school" movement. Under this new law all children must stay in school until they have reached the age of 16 years, unless they have completed the work of the first eight elementary grades. If at the age of 16 years a child has not completed the first eight grades in the public schools, he must either stay in school up to the age of 18 years or until he has completed his work; or, if he be legally employed, he must attend a part-time school for at least five hours a week throughout the school year.

"Oregon has had for years one of the best compulsory education laws in the union," says a statement yesterday by the state educational department. "In one of the reports of the United States commissioners of education, the Oregon law was cited as a model, and as one which can be most easily enforced. That results are being secured under this law and the general system of the public schools in this state is clearly brought out by the statement of Colonel May at the reception given to him in the governor's office a few days ago. Colonel May told of the large proportion of illiterates among the troops coming from certain sections of the United States, but said that there was no illiteracy in the Oregon regiment. He further stated that the 162nd regiment (the Third Oregon) attracted marked attention everywhere on account, not only of the physical appearance of the troops, but of the high average of intelligence which was manifest in the actions and appearance of the Oregon boys.

"In order that the state may secure value received for every dollar invested in public education, it is necessary that all children of school age attend school throughout the year. For this reason Superintendent Churchill will send to every county judge and county school superintendent a letter urging them to appoint the trustee officer required by law and to see that no parent permits a child under his care to remain out of school. One of the commendable features of Oregon's law is that the child is not haled into court, but that the parents are made responsible and may be arrested and fined if they do not fulfill their duty. The eastern and southern states are becoming aroused as to the absolute necessity of educating all the children of this country. In order for Oregon to hold her rank as "first" state, the diligence is necessary upon the part of state and county officials. In Massachusetts a special committee composed of two senators, four representatives, and three members at large, have just completed and published an exhaustive survey of the schools of that state with recommendations for immediate remedial legislation. While Oregon insists upon a child being kept in school until he has completed the eighth grade, Massachusetts has been holding that the child only need be held for the completion of the fourth grade. The committee recommends that they at once raise the requirement to the eighth grade and that they hold the child in school until he has reached to age of 15 years, beginning with September 1920, and 16 years beginning with 1921. The Massachusetts committee makes a number of other recommendations asking for laws that have been working successfully in Oregon for a number of years. It asks that the annual census law be restored. This is necessary in order to enforce the compulsory education law. It also asks that a state certification law be enacted.

"Under the operation of the new part-time law and of the raising of the standards for the compulsory education law, Superintendent Churchill hopes through the "stay-in-school" campaign to hold every boy and girl in school until they have completed the eighth grade. With our remarkable growth in high schools Mr. Churchill is sure that those completing the eighth grade will by that time realize the value of an education so that practically all will go on through the high school."

MARION COUNTY IS NOT BARRED

Road Bond Bill May Go on Ballot in June Election, Says Brown

Section 1, chapter 429, laws of 1919, calling a special election for June 3 and enumerating a number of enactments the last legislature that are to go on the ballot at that time, does not prohibit counties from placing on the ballot as local issues questions of issuing bonds or warrants for the construction and maintenance of permanent highways. This in substance is the reply of Attorney General Brown to District Attorney Max Gehlar of Marion county. The chapter in the session laws calling a special election states that the legislative enactments enumerated and no others shall go on the ballot. According to the attorney general this bars only other legislative enactments, leaving the county measures free to be voted on under chapter 103, laws of 1913.

In Marion county a vote on the question of issuing $1,000,000 in road bonds is contemplated.
