SOLDIER VISITS MFARLIN HOME

Clarence C. Likins, Newspaperman, Much Wounded in Six Days at Front

There was a mighty happy grandmother yesterday out in Nob Hill addition when Clarence C. Likins, hero of the victory loan trophy trials, paid a visit to her in the afternoon. Likins is the grandson of Mrs. E. E. McFarlin, who lives at Hazel avenue and Judson street and is the much decorated private who was in charge of the tank car and who delivered a lecture on its operation.

He doesn't look much worse for wear, but he saw more of the war in the six days he was on the Argonne front than most men did in a year. He came out of it with a compound fracture of the leg, a broken shoulder, a crushed skull, a dose of mustard gas, the French war cross with palm and a brigade decoration.

Private Likins lives in Portland, but the last few years he has seen much of the war. He was a newspaper correspondent at the front and came home to make arrangements for enlisting. On the 9th of last September he joined the army and was sent to Camp Lewis, going from there to an eastern camp, where he contracted Spanish influenza when his tank corps was about to sail. Having heard that the war was about to end, he insisted on getting out of bed before fully recovered from his illness and went with the last "bearcats" that sailed before the signing of the armistice.

On November 5 he reached the Argonne with a division to which he did not belong. The truth of the matter is, his desire to get into the fight led him to become an A. W. O. L. and an officer to him was to be avoided as the walking delegate from the guard house. On the following day he went into action, entering a baby tank which at that moment was in need of a machine gunner. The tank soon mired in a shell hole half full of water. Likins and his partner tried to find another tank, but failing in this, removed the machine gun from their own and carried it in from no man's land. Just before they reached safety the driver was struck by a shell. Likins carried him back, although wounded himself. For this he received a medal for bravery.

On the same day he carried a wounded lieutenant in from no man's land to a dressing station and received the palm for his deed. This ranks with the Victoria cross, as a high honor.

Likins went over the top four times in six days in two-man tanks. On each occasion he was the only one of each pair left alive. On the sixth day a high explosive struck the tank and his gunner was sent to the hospital, seriously wounded. That ended his service and he arrived in Portland just exactly six months after the day of his enlistment. He was one of the 17 survivors of 186 men in his tank corps.

DEPUTIES WILL COLLECT DATA

Assessor Appoints Assistants Who Will Commence Work Saturday

Deputy assessors for Marion county were appointed yesterday by County Assessor Ben F. West and have been ordered to report to his office Saturday at 10 a. m. for supplies and instructions. Most of these chosen are experienced in the work, having served in previous years in their respective localities.

The work of the deputy assessors this year will be greatly increased because of being required to make the crop census provided for by the last legislature, as well as doing the usual assessment work. It is expected that two months will be required to complete the task.

The crop census work will be especially difficult in the fruit sections of the county as the data must be compiled on crops to be planted as well as those now in. The many non-resident owners of fruit tracts add to the difficulties which the deputy assessors will meet.

The assessment of the city of Salem is more than half completed now and shows a much larger tax roll this year than ever before.

Following are the names of the deputy assessors:

M. B. Krombling, Hubbard district and Annona district; Henry Hall, Woodburn; S. A. Peterson, Monitor; B. J. J. Miller, Gervais; Sam Fenimore, Mt. Angel; A. A. Elvin, Silverton; Frank Lick, Brooks; G. J. Ottaway, South of Silverton; John Tweed, Howell Prairie; T. B. Patton, Waldo Hills; E. E. Matten, East Salem; Matthew Gibson, Sublimity; C. E. Van Nuy, Aumsville; George H. Farris, Turner; John Cornforth, Liberty; Geo. Palmer, Rosedale; R. P. Nye, Ankeny Bottom; I. Conklin, Marion; A. C. Libby, Jefferson; George V. Haynes, Scotts Mills; Grant Murphy, Stayton; P. C. Freres, Melama; D. B. Hill, Mill City; E. O. Nelson, Hult. St. Paul will be supplied next week.
