The New Easter Hats Are Different

The new models have gotten fortunately away from the stiff and staid and tailored effects and have assumed a tone more dressy, more feminine, more refined and delicate than heretofore. Another noticeable change is that the smart, dressy hat of today is now the proper accompaniment of the tailored suit. A Big Assortment of Models Our stock was never larger or more complete than it is today. If you don't see what you want in our window come inside, if you don't see it inside, ask for it. Have Your Copy Ready—It seems to be the consensus of opinion among the members of the executive committee for the Victory Loan that an extensive campaign of education must be waged by the Advertising committee in order that the people of Marion county may fully realize the importance of putting over this loan. The only way this can be accomplished is for the bankers, professional and business men of Salem to take special advertising space in the local papers. The advertising committee for Salem consists of J. F. Hutchason, chairman; U. G. Shipley, C. B. Clancey and William McGilchrist, Jr. For these men to secure the advertising necessary will require a great deal of their time away from business. "If YOU will think about this matter and co-operate with them by having your copy ready when they call for the special ads. and "if" you will see that the papers insert the following words, (BUY VICTORY BONDS) somewhere in every advertisement you give for the next week, it will greatly assist the committee and help materially in putting over the quota assigned to Marion county.

Miss Shirley Is First in Delivery in Eugene Contest

From the nine contestants in the state oratorical contest at Eugene Friday night, Miss Florence Shirley, Willamette's representative, won first place in delivery with a score of 99 per cent. John J. Canham, of Albany college, who won first place, took no single firsts. The banquet Friday night was attended by over 400 students and representatives from Willamette report that it was an exceptionally enjoyable affair. Leslie Piskar, a Junior, responded with a toast on "Oratory in the Affairs of State."

Miss Shirley and Professor Della Crowder-Miller were the guests of Miss Ruth Graham at the Alpha Phi sorority house. Among those who went from Willamette were Mrs. George H. Alden, Miss Faye Eolin, Forensic Manager Harvey O. Cooper, Miss Elizabeth Berg, and Miss Mildred Wells. The following represented the classes: Seniors, Della Johnson and Helen Moore; juniors, Eva Parrott and Leslie Piskar; sophomores, Myrtle Mason and Ralph Thomas; freshmen, Lucile Tucker and Lester Judd.

PATRIOTISM TO SELL THE BONDS

The letter Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass wrote to Senator W. M. Calder may almost be regarded as a send-off for the coming Victory Liberty loan. He seeks in his communication to dispel any apprehension which may exist in regard to the success of the forthcoming flotation, and the tone of it is worthy of the campaigning efforts of his predecessor in office.

Secretary Glass evidently does not mean to be forced into granting unnecessarily liberal conditions by bankers and investors, but relies, as Secretary McAdoo did, on the patriotism of the American people.

The secretary says: "I have been engaged with the aid of the best minds at my disposal—and they include the members of the great war loan organization, both at the treasury in Washington, and throughout the country, which has so successfully and brilliantly supported the treasury of the United States, throughout the period of active warfare—in the study of these conditions and I am glad indeed to be able to tell you that as a result of that study I take a very optimistic view of the prospect for the Victory liberty loan and of the future of this country."

In some quarters there is heard the complaint that the government has been extravagant in the use of funds derived from the loans and this is one reason being advanced by some "slackers" for not intending to subscribe to the new loan. But the secretary points out that our present national debt of less than $25,000,000,000 and our ultimate national debt after all the war bills are paid, which ought not in any event to exceed $30,000,000,000, against which we shall hold some $10,000,000,000 of obligations of foreign governments is the barest fraction of our national resources. "The relation of our debt," he says, "the government's expenditure which shortly after the armistice reached a maximum in excess of $2,000,000 in a month should, Mr. Glass believes, shrink quickly back to say $2,000,000,000 a year after the war bills were paid in addition to the interest and sinking fund charges on the public debt. These latter are important items. The interest on the public debt alone will be in the neighborhood of $1,200,000,000. There is provided in the Victory Liberty loan act a sinking fund for the ultimate retirement of the liberty bonds, beginning next year with 2 1/2 per cent for the aggregate amount of bonds and notes outstanding, less the loans to the foreign governments, with the sequestration of the interest which would have been payable in subsequent years on the obligations retired. This will add about $500,000,000 more to the government expenses next fiscal year.

If the government's expenditures are reduced to about $2,000,000,000 a year after all war bills have been paid, as Secretary Glass assumes, this will compare with about $1,000,000,000 annual expenditures of our government before the war. In addition there will be $1,200,000,000 for interest and say $500,000,000 for sinking fund, making a total of about $2,700,000,000 of government expenditures which must be provided for after the immediate demands of the war are cleared up.

It will develop upon the public ultimately to meet this annual charge upon the public revenues. As the people ultimately have to pay the price of their own bonds through increased taxation, there is no denying the logic of Mr. McAdoo's or Mr. Glass' argument that the public will be better served by not adding more than is absolutely necessary to the annual charge for interest on the debt. In our loan campaigns, therefore, patriotism is not without its material reward, in the long run.

Bavarian Peasantry Ousts Bolsheviks; Soldiers Loyal

BERNE, April 12.—(By The Associated Press)—The anti-Bolshevik movement among the peasants and middle classes in Bavaria is spreading, according to advices received today. Several of the garrisons have declared for the government of Premier Hoffman, among them those at Ingolstadt, Dillingen and Neuburg. Over 500 acres of land in Lincoln county, Washington, will be planted to field peas this season. This is encouraging to the county agriculturist in that district, who is making special efforts along this line of agriculture.
