Conan Doyle Just After He Stated He Had Communicated With Son Killed in the War

LADY DOYLE SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

This photograph, just received in this country, was taken at the time Sir Arthur Conan Doyle made his announcement that he was certain he had communicated with his son who was killed in the war. With him is Lady Doyle. Talking with newspaper correspondents he produced documents which he asserted proved spiritual survival and communion.

CARE FOR YOUR STOCK

1. Do not fail to provide clean, warm quarters in which your cows, ewes and mares can bring forth their young. Navel ill comes from dirt.
2. It is dangerous to expose young stock, especially foals and colts, to spring rain-storms. A days exposure, if not fatal, may stop a month's growth.
3. It is bad policy to turn the stock to pasture before the grass has well started—bad for the pasture and bad for the stock.
4. When the pasture season begins, turn the stock out at night, instead of in the morning. Then they will feed through the night, and not lie down until the sun has warmed the air and the ground.
5. Get your horses into condition for spring work—the young horses especially. Many a colt has been ruined by being put to hard work without preparation. It is the same with green horses.
6. In warm weather, thorough grooming is almost as important as feeding. Without it, dried sweat, dead skin and dirt clog the pores, make the horse uncomfortable and affect his health.
7. Look out for sore shoulders and backs, especially in plowing. Be sure that your collars fit. A collar too big is as bad as one too small. If the collar rides up, use a martingale, or a girth running from trace to trace, back of the forelegs.
8. When the horses are at work on a warm day, lift up the collars now and then to cool their shoulders and wipe off the sweat and dirt with a bunch of grass.

9. Wipe off the harness marks on your horses when you stop work at noon and at night, and clean the inside of the harness, the collars especially. The salt sweat, drying on the skin and on the harness, is what makes the trouble.

10. If the skin is wrinkled under the collar or saddle, bathe it with diluted vinegar or witchhazel. If the skin is broken, bathe it with clean warm water containing a little salt. Fix the collar, with padding, of otherwise, so that it will not touch the sore spot the next day. A little carelessness at the beginning may cause a lot of trouble to you and suffering to the horse.

11. Clean your horses at night, water them, give them a good bed, and water them again after they have eaten their hay so that they will not be thirsty all night. Let them rest an hour or more before they are grazed. The observance of these simple rules will not cost you a cent, and will make a big difference in their condition.

A Wolf Howl.

Oh "Hardpan Jake," from the head of the lake,
With hair on his breast—that's me.
I've pawed this earth since my day of birth
With a spirit wild an' free.
I've seen the west at its worst an' best,
I've rolled 'em wide an' high,
But I lose my sand and I lay my hand
When Cal-i-for-n-y's dry.

What would they do—that roarin' crew—
Them wolves what I used to know,
If they'd hear the news, that we can't have booze
In this land where th' jag-vines grow?
I reckon they'd shoot any dam' galoot
Who threatened to stop their rye
But they won't be here, my soul to cheer
When Cal-i-for-n-y's dry.

Oh Bob McGill, "Tuolumne Bill,"
Jim Peets an' ol' "Hardtack Brown"
We was sure some crowd—if you speak it loud—
When we hit the trail for town.
It was fun or bust, while we spent our dust,
With th' limit th' star-speckled sky—
There'll be no plays like we had them days

When Cal-i-for-n-y's dry.

They're the other side of the Great Divide—
My pards of th' days of yore—
An' I'm left forlorn to weep an' mourn
With a heart that's sad an' sore.
I'm of an' broke, my gun's in soak.
So what can I do but cry,
As I sit an' think, "What can I drink
When Cal-i-for-n-y's dry?"

Dig me a grave where th' willers wave
Where th' lizards creep an' the tree toads cheep
An' th' tuneful bullfrogs romp.
Throw me an' my jug that I use to lug
In th' hole an' say "Good-by"
Its no place here for a pioneer
When Cal-i-for-n-y's dry.

How Long Will It Last?

That's just another way of asking, "How good is your battery insulation?"

For no battery is better than its insulation.

Threaded Rubber Insulation is one of the things that makes the Still Better Willard a much better battery.

Threaded Rubber Insulation, which postpones indefinitely the need of re-insulation, is the most important battery improvement that has been made in years.
