Dock Commission Plans Facilities for Importation of Commodities

PORTLAND, Ore., April: 24.-Storage tanks and other facilities for handling peanut and soya bean oils may be installed in connection with the St. Johns municipal terminal by the public dock commission, officials announced today. There have been numerous inquiries from importers of these oils relative to facilities for handling them and in view of the prospect that there will be large shipments of these commodities to shipments of these commodities to this port the public dock commission is of the opinion that proper facilities for handling them should be installed. The latest inquiry was received otday from the Pacific International company, an exporting and importing company recently organized by a group of Portland business men. It was set forth that this company would need three 10,000 barrel tanks, pumping facilities and considerable space on the docks. Engineer Hegardt of the dock commission reported that he had been investigating the proposition and that he had found the cost of erecting the tanks of 10,000 barrels capacity would approximate $7500 each and that facilities for handling vegewhite feed, April, May and June. table oils are being installed in other $53.
