SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS BROWN IN BOOZE CASE

Referendum Cannot Be Invoked on Resolution Ratifying Amendment

OPINION IS UNANIMOUS

Previous Holding of Attorney General Gets Support of Tribunal

The referendum cannot be invoked on the resolution passed by the 1919 legislature ratifying the prohibition amendment to the federal constitution. This is the unanimous opinion of the supreme court in decision handed down yesterday in an original mandamus proceeding of Karl Herbring against Attorney General Brown to compel Brown to write a ballot title for petitions to call down the referendum on the ratifying resolution.

The opinion was written by Chief Justice McBride. Attorneys for the petitioner represented the liquor interests of Oregon and California, one of them appearing for the California grape growers. The case has attracted wide attention and interested persons in Ohio, California and other states have requested early information of the court's opinion. The case sets a precedent as no other attorney general has refused to write a ballot title.

The attorney general refused to provide a ballot title on the grounds that a resolution could not be referred to the people for two reasons, first, that reference to the people would violate article 5 of the federal constitution which provides that ratification must be by the legislature and which excludes the referendum; second, that reference to the people would violate section 1, article 4 of the Oregon constitution which provides that the people "reserve power at their own option to approve or reject at the polls any 'act' of the legislative assembly," because, it was claimed, the resolution sought to be referred is not an 'act' within the meaning of the constitution.

In both these contentions the attorney general is upheld by the supreme court.

"It must be held," says the court after wide citations and definitions of the terms "bill" and "act," "that as a joint resolution is neither a bill nor an act it is not subject to the referendum." The petitioners urged that the term "measure" used in the amendment enlarges the scope of powers reserved beyond the express reservation, but the court holds that this is not the purpose with which the term is employed.

It is further urged by the petitioners that, even conceding the resolution is not one which can be placed on the ballot, the attorney general is not the person or official who is entitled to raise the question; that since his office is purely ministerial, he is required to place a ballot title upon every petition filed with the secretary of state and transmitted to him. The court holds against this for the reason that the constitution does not permit referendum on resolutions, but only on "acts" of legislature.

"The section of the statute requiring the attorney general to affix ballot title to petitions for referendum, has reference to petitions regarding acts," says the court, "that is, laws passed by the legislature; as to these he is compelled to prepare ballot titles, but there is no statute requiring him to prepare such titles for any other."

A verdict in the jury of the court of Judge Gatens in Multnomah county by which the plaintiff in action of the Northwest Door company vs. The Lewis Investment company and the Yorkshire Insurance company et al won a judgement of $70,000 following the burning of the plaintiff's mill and factory, was upheld by the supreme court in an opinion written by Chief Justice McBride. The plaintiffs alleged negligence of the Lewis Investment company. The property was valued at $150,000.

Testimony in case covered more than 1000 pages and, says the court, "is conflicting in many particulars. It is sufficient to say generally that there was sufficient testimony to justify the jury in finding that destruction of plaintiff's mill was caused by negligence of the defendant, the Lewis Investment company, in lighting and maintaining its fire upon Columbia dock property, even though this court, sitting at different conclusions. Our task is to ascertain and determine whether the trial was conducted and the jury so instructed that no error to the prejudice of the substantial rights of the defendant may have influenced the verdict arrived at."

"Upon the whole," the court says in conclusion, "we are satisfied that the case was fairly tried in the court below."

Other opinions handed down as follows: Bridges & Webber vs. Multnomah county, appellant; appeal from Multnomah, suit to collect architect's fees for plans prepared for Multnomah county hospital; opinion by Justice Harris; Circuit Judge Gatens reversed and case remanded.

State vs. E. J. Frazier, appellant; appeal from Benton; appeal from conviction for uttering forged receipt; opinion by Justice Bean; verdict rendered in court of Circuit Judge Hamilton affirmed.

THE JOY OF MOTHERHOOD

Mrs. Phillips Sends an Encouraging Letter to Expectant Mothers

West Philadelphia, Pa.—"I too Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for five months before my baby was born and it has made me much better in health. I was always very ill when my other children were born, but with this one I had a much easier time. He is a big healthy boy now, three years old, and I believe it was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that made me so well. It is certainly a good medicine for every woman. I cannot say too much in its favor, and you may publish my testimonial."—Mrs. W. PHILLIPS, 5430 Kingessing Avenue, West Phila., Pa.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such letters is that this famous old root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and illness.

For special advice in regard to such ailments write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its many years experience is at your service.

Two Contests to Be Held at High School Tonight

It isn't only the students of Salem high school that have an opportunity to hear the inter-class rivalry contests now in progress, for tonight at 8 o'clock a program will be given in the auditorium to which parents are invited. Two competitions, one for humorous and the other for dramatic reading will take place. Turfield Schindler, Orpha Cole and Myra Gleason represent their classes in the former and Katherine Walsh, Vera Wright and Hazel Long will take part in the latter. Two of the judges, Miss Flora M. Case and Miss Helena Willett, have been appointed and the third name will be announced today.

Marion Emmons and Harold Douglas will furnish musical selections during the evening.

WILLIAMS FINDS SALEM PEOPLE

Former Resident Runs Across Them Everywhere—Will Visit Orient

Where some former Salem people are now located is told by Carl F. Williams, former of The Northwest Poultry Journal, and who is now with the Lilly company with headquarters in Seattle, in a letter to The Statesman. Mr. Williams contemplates visiting oriental cities in the company's interests during the coming summer. He writes:

"Having met quite a few Salem-ites while my wife and I have been traveling in the interests of the Charles H. Lilly company, I thought I would let Salem folks know where some of their old-time business men and residents are now located.

When taking up our residence in Seattle, we ran across Mr. Hughes who formerly ran a print shop in Salem. He is now in the real estate business in West Seattle.

"While going to lunch in Elma the other day, I glanced in the window of a barber shop and met the eyes of R. F. Peters, formerly a music house proprietor of Salem. He rushed out onto the street and grabbed my hand and we had lunch together. He is a resident of Hoquiam, Wash., in the music business there and the proud father of two fine boys. Wife and I expect to spend tomorrow evening with Pete and family.

"As we drove into Montesano, today we spied Harry (Honey) Wilson, son of 'Jim' Wilson, who formerly raised peaches in Keizer Bottom district and sold real estate between times. Mrs. Williams called out as we passed. Hello Harry, and I stopped our car at the curb. Out jumped Harry and came up to us with his old-time smile and pep. He looked natural and in fine health. He and his family (wife and boy) live in Seattle too. His father and mother reside in Vancouver, B. C. 'Jim' is now a chiroprapist and doing well.

"On the streets of Olympia last week we met Dr. Ridgway, a former optician of Salem.

"As we were seated in the Lotus at Tacoma enjoying dinner one day, who should pass by but Weller Chamberlin, former Salem man and once a schoolmate of mine.

"Many people will remember Richard Lowenfeldt, the expert photographer who made such wonderful pictures—and who usually could be found at Patton's. I met him face to face on Pacific avenue in Tacoma and he knew me. He has been an official Uncle Sam photographer during the war and was connected with Puget Sound Shipyards.

"Mr. Seamster, a former employee of Barnes' Cash store, is in Tacoma, selling automobiles—doing well, he reports.

"We like our new location, and my position with Lilly's is one in a thousand.

"We shall be very glad to meet any of our Salem friends should they visit Seattle—just call Main 484 and ask for me and I'll hop into my machine and bring them out to the mill. It is the largest seed, flour, poultry supply, stock food and grain concern in the west and we are now opening warehouses in Honolulu, Tokyo and Peking. I expect to visit these cities this summer.

MINUTE MEN PROMISE AID

Methodist Lay Speakers Volunteer Help for Federal Employment Service

"Methodist Minute Men are only too eager to take on the mantle of the original four-minute men which fell to them.

"That is why Methodist minute men and Methodist in general will be delighted to be of service to the United States employment service.

"To our nearly 2000 minute men in the northwest, we have sent implicit instructions to them to meet that in every church in Oregon on Sunday, May 4, the clarion call will be issued: 'List every job with the nearest branch of the United States employment service.'"

This was what J. R. Ellison, chairman of the northwestern section of 100,000 Methodist minute men told Wilfred E. Smith, Oregon director of the employment service.

These Methodist minute men are a sort of lay speaker. They speak every Sunday at church service. They endeavor to put "pep" into church services. They were organized to help put over the $105,000,000 Methodist centenary drive, but they have been so busy talking for the victory loan and now on the employment service that they have hardly begun to get their own drive under way.

"I want every church in Oregon to feel that it is its patriotic duty not only to get behind Employment Sunday, May 4, but to mobilize its members so that every available job will be listed with the United States agency branches, the only cost free, unbiased, non-partisan agency in the world," Director Smith said to Mr. Ellison.
