PHONE ORDER IS EXPLAINED

Patrons Are Relieved of Differential for Certain Length of Time

Chairman Fred D. Buchtel of the public service commission has given the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company an oral interpretation relative to the differential allowed by the commission's recent telephone rate order effective May 1, as applied to desk and wall phones in residences. The commission's Portland office has been deluged with complaints by the patrons who had received bills from the telephone company charging an additional 25 cents for desk instruments.

The recent order allows a charge of 25 cents additional for desk phones. According to its interpretation of the order the company has sent its patrons bills for the present month with an additional charge of 25 cents for desk instruments. This has brought a flood of protests from those who were not aware of the ruling. Since the commission's order did not provide for a formal notice to patrons of changes made, Chairman Buchtel has ordered that up to the time allowed for paying the bills patrons who wish to change from desk to wall phones may be relieved of the 25 cents additional charge for desk phones now used. If they have received bills with 25 cents added but have not yet paid, the company is ordered to re-bill them at the old rate. If they have paid but have chosen to apply for wall phones the company is ordered to refund 25 cents or credit it on the next month's bill.

Under the terms of the order patrons have 90 days in which to have wall phones substituted for desk phones, without a charge for installation. After that period the charge will be $1.

THEME SELECTED FOR CONFERENCE

"Christ the Way Out" Will Be Basis for Discussion at Seabeck

"Christ the Way Out" is the theme selected to guide this year's Y. M. C. A. conference at Seabeck where delegates from the four Pacific northwest states gather each year. In addition to representatives from the colleges, high school graduates, particularly those who intend entering college next fall, students from the Indian schools, and foreign students are expected to attend.

place for a gathering of young people for study and recreation. It is Seabeck on the Sound is an ideal location on Hood's canal, a branch of Puget Sound, in the Olympic mountains.

This year the conference will last from June 14 to June 24 and its purpose as outlined by the committees, is "a campaign for undergraduate righteousness and for the unselfish devotion of life to the social and religious needs of this new day in the world's history."

Each morning of the conference is given over to Bible classes and the study of the college problems. The afternoon is spent in out-of-door recreation and at night there are special features such as clam bakes, pageants and lectures, to add to the interest of the meeting. One of the speakers this year will be President Carl Gregg Doney of Willamette university.

A delegation of about 25 men is planning to go from the Willamette "Y" over twice as large as any other number which has ever gone from here. Last year 11 men, Harold Nichols, Homer Tasker, Harold Dimick, Russell Raley, Ray Raley, Paul Day, George Holt, Robert Story, H. Emmel, Lester Day, and Paul Day represented the college.

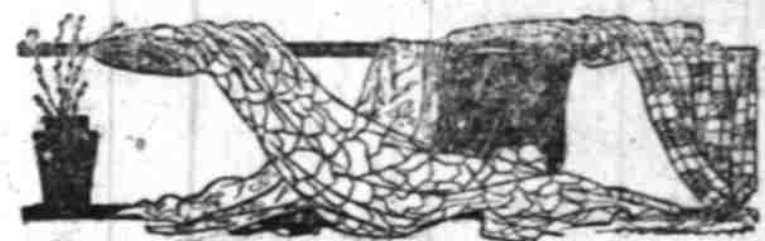

Officers of the college "Y" are Gus Anderson, president; Howard Mort, vice-president, and Ben Rickli, secretary. Paul Doney is in charge of Seabeck work on the campus this year.

Not only do the boys have the privilege of enjoying this outing at Seabeck but later in the summer, during the latter part of August, the Y. M. C. A. girls will hold their conference there. Unlike previous years, the one this year will be only for college girls. The officers of the college "Y" are Mary Findley, president; Evelyn DeLong, vice-president; Helen Shaver, secretary, and Lucy Holt, treasurer. Grace Bagley is in charge of the plans for the conference.

Last year seven girls attended from Willamette, Gladys Nichols, Evelyn DeLong, Mary Paroungian, Sybil Smith, Glenna Teeters, Ruth Peringer and Ruth Winters. One of the special features last year was a trio from Bremerton navy yard who gave a musical program, and another was a pageant presented by the yeomanettes from Bremerton.

Cliff McCarl, Y. M. C. A. Secretary, Told Soldiers He Could Make Living Playing Ball; They Didn't Believe Him, and Tried Him Out; Cliff Proved It

When Cliff McCarl, Y. M. C. A. company of the 91st division to the presidio at San Francisco for demobilization last week, told the soldiers that he could make his living playing baseball, the old time grenade throwers thought he was a hot air merchant, so they decided to show him up.

However, their little "frame-up" proved a boomerang and when the company arrived in San Francisco the boys were all staunch allies of McCarl and would swear by him.

On the train was a number of ball players. They decided to give McCarl a tryout at ball playing and if possible prove him a fake. They selected the first place where the train schedule allowed an hour's stop at the scene of the expose.

The "victim" proved a willing one. He even helped the "frame-up" by securing baseballs, gloves and other paraphernalia. Then they went into action.

Carl King, at one time manager of the Baker City, Oregon ball team, threw a ball far over the head of the "victim."

To the astonishment of the soldiers the "Y" man made a beautiful running catch.

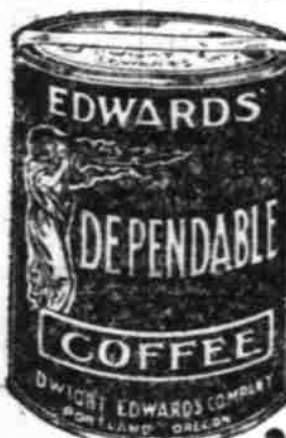

It might have been pure luck. Again it might have been an accident.

Matt Hines, of Bakersfield, pitcher in the Northwestern league, let another long throw go in McCarl's direction. Again the Red Triangle man made a good catch.

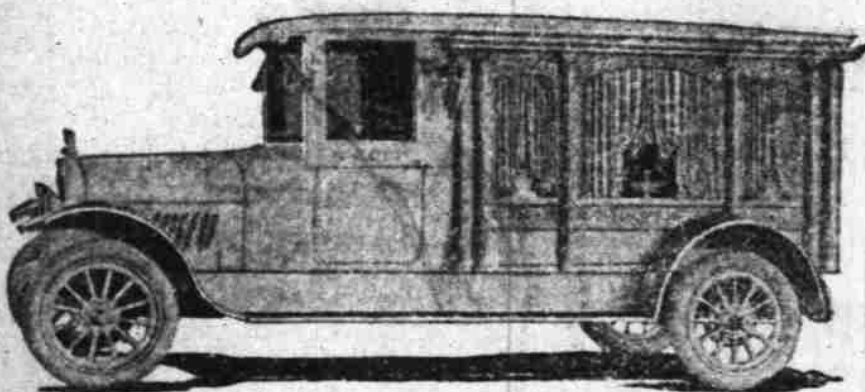

Then the "Y" man introduced himself. He was a former first baseman for the San Francisco Seals; former manager of the Butte, Montana team; former first base for Vancouver, and many other teams.

The boys had not recognized him in his Y. M. C. A. at the Presidio.

On the train were such well known baseball sharks as Cal King, of Fresno, manager of the Baker City, Oregon, ball team; J. McElroy
