NOW, PLANT MORE BEANS AND POTATOES.

You have about two weeks left in which to plant beans. Burpee's Stringless Greenpod beans are the kind. And potatoes—plant more potatoes.

This is the call of the Salem King's Products Co., as you will notice in their advertisement in The Statesman of this morning.

Their plant will very soon start up, on spinach; and it will never again shut down, if the producers will do their part.

The fires will be kept hot twenty-four hours of every day in the year, throughout all the years of the future, if the farmers of Marion and Polk counties will supply the vegetables and fruits.

And the capacity of the plant will be increased, and provision will be made for taking care of the by-products, as fast as assurance can be had of increased supplies from the farms and gardens and orchards.

It is up to our farmers.

They can have a market for all they can raise, and, by the same sign, the better the supply the better the market; for the lower the cost of securing the supply, and the larger the volume of business, the higher the prices to the producers—because the overhead charges will remain about the same for a small or large volume of business.

So there is a mutual advantage, and a community advantage, in the completest possible co-operation.

So, Mr. Farmer, do your bit.

And do it now, for your own good and the good of all your neighbors.

Right now, plant all the beans and potatoes you can make room for.

The Jersey jubilee lunch will invade Salem eighty automobiles strong—perhaps a hundred; next Wednesday evening. They have something to jubilate about. It is the fact that at Marion, Marion county, Oregon, there is the greatest Jersey cow in the world. Her name is Vive La France, and this queen of all Jerseydom a few weeks ago completed her year's performance, during which she produced 1031.64 pounds of butterfat. That is the official footing; but the newly elected champion of all the earth really gave over 1040 pounds, and was chiseled out of the difference by some sort of hocuspocus of the experts that a layman could never understand—or excuse. But the 1031.64 pounds tops the record by a city block or some such distance, any way. And, by the same sign, more records will be smashed in Marion county. In fact, Marion county is the international capital of Jerseydom, and she is going to stay in that proud place, and then some.

Speaking of living wages or salaries for teachers, The Statesman would like to say this: By all means, teachers ought to be paid living salaries. But no city or community ought to be burdened with the kind of an outrage that was voted a few days ago upon the Portland school district, where a flat raise of $400 was given to all teachers, irrespective of their present salaries. Some of the teachers there are already receiving more than they would be worth in any other employment; some are receiving as much as they are worth, and others nearly as much as they should have. There should be reason in all things. The people who pay the taxes must have some consideration—not only for their own good, and because they have their rights, but because it is best for the whole people. The more home owners, the more property owners, the more taxpayers, the better for all the people of this country.

Soldiers in the red army of Bavaria get $8 a day—in fact, they can write their own salary tickets. But they couldn't swap a day's pay for admission to a Salem movie.

Farm laborers in England are asking for a minimum wage of $12 a week. They could get it over here just now.

They're off, from the jumping-off place to the gray Azores.

Make it even. Vote for all the reconstruction measures.

List your rooms. Remember that the Jersey breeders will swell the crowd on Wednesday night next. Add the 2000 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs will have to be taken care of up to and including Friday night.

Decorate for the Odd Fellows.

France has borrowed another $50,000,000 from the United States.

What would any of the allies do without the fat wallet of your Uncle Sam?—Exchange. They would have hard sledding.

Salem's reputation for hospitality is at state. List your rooms. Help entertain the three-linkers.

China says she will not sign the peace treaty; but, then, China changes her mind so often about so many things.

The wry face being made by Senator Borah over the covenant of nations is possibly due to an attack of indigestion arising from a too-free indulgence in the dinner of President Wilson that he did not attend.—Exchange.

The Finns are again reported marching against Petrograd. Perhaps they will yet get their Finns on the Bolsheviks. A regiment of any fighting branch of the American army could whip all the Bolsheviks in Russia. And most of them would jump at the chance.

With the Heligoland forts dismantled, the Kiel Canal used on even terms by the ships of all nations, allied commissions controlling the Rhine and the army and navy reduced to the minimum, the impression grows that Germany will accept those peace terms.—Exchange.

Reforestation of Syria's mountains with the cedars of Lebanon is said to be prevented by the herds of goats that roam the historic region. Apparently it would be helpful to get Syria's goats, but this, of course, has nothing to do with possible action of the powers in respect to a mandatory.

The statistician of the United States Chamber of Commerce declares that high prices are being continued without reason. That is just what we mentioned to the Dutchman around the corner who makes a specialty of liver, but he claimed he did not know that the war was over. If the attitude is unreasonable why don't prices come down.—Los Angeles Times.

Being civilized states, the Allies cannot wreck Germany as she wrecked Belgium and Northern France. Therefore, they must mule her with fines that will compel the dullest peasant to know that he is paying taxes to restore what Germany destroyed and leave the Teuton capitalist no surplus with which to work his economic penetration of Eastern Europe. Five billion dollars paid in 1921 will be five billion arguments against the next war which already is being discussed in Berlin.—Chicago Journal.

A romantic story of the war comes to light with the act of Governor Smith of New York in restoring to citizenship "Mojak" Eastman, a notorious gangster of a few years ago. He enlisted in the 106th infantry at the outbreak of the war; was wounded at Vierstaet ridge; in three days escaped from the hospital, equipping himself from a salvage dump, in order to get back into the fight, and won the commendation of his officers for his brave conduct during the remainder of the engagement. The devil a "Monk" was he.

The battalions of constitutional lawyers will have something new to study in connection with the constitution when President Wilson's message to congress, cabled from France is read in the two houses. In the first place, no message to congress ever came by wire from a foreign country before. Secondly, there isn't a line in the constitution specifically authorizing a president to cable his messages to congress from anywhere outside American territorial jurisdiction. There must be a lawyer somewhere ready to argue from these premises that Wilson's cabled message is unconstitutional and therefore null and void. When congress hears it read, it might be said, the president will not be addressing it; and when the reading is ended nothing will have been received officially from the executive department of the government. If Senator Sherman of Illinois cannot find an opening in this for his active intellect, it will be surprising. May we not depend upon him for more antics? Unfortunately, however, no decision of the United States supreme court bears upon the point and a constitutional lawyer is up against it when he can find no court decision to sustain him.

ONE OBJECTION

Setting the clock ahead may have its advantages," said the gaunt Missourian, "but on the farm it is not altogether an unbiased blessing. You see, while us folks respect it as a government order and obey it, more or less, the cows and pigs and chickens keep going by stomach time. They beller and squeal and cackle to be fed at the usual intervals, no matter what the clock says about it, and can't be hushed by appealing to their loyalty to this great and good government."—Kansas City Star.

BITS FOR BREAKFAST

America first.

Her eagles are in the air.

They are on their way over the Atlantic.

Salem is growing more crowded. Men are walking the streets looking for houses to rent.

If the city council vacates the streets Monday evening, and work starts on the paper mill Tuesday, there will be more and more people to house.

And lumber is still going up in price, and may not come down again. Perhaps it is as cheap a time to build now as it will be later.

Another $1 a thousand has been added to the lumber going out of Tillamook county; making a $5 raise there in two months. All the saw mills will be busy over there now, and more will be built. And perhaps in other sections of the state. Oregon, with a sixth of the standing timber in the United States, will come into her own—with a jump, if this thing keeps up.

Oregon stood ahead, among the first 100,000 drafted men, in the cleanest record from venereal diseases; and she stood sixth in the second 100,000; Vermont being first.

The Barnum & Bailey and Ringling Brothers' shows, both owned by Ringling Brothers have been consolidated. There have been many changes in the circus business since the days of the old Van Amburg and Howe's shows. Do you recall the Lent Equestrienne, John Robinson, Sells Brothers, Adam Forepaugh the Wallace and Hagenback shows, Buffalo Bill's, Pawnee Bill's and 101 Ranch combinations? There have been some fine traveling circuses, but Seth Howe's great London circus, exhibited in the United States 40 years ago, set the pace for what has followed. Today there are not to exceed three circuses in existence in this country.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers—No pain!

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Frezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic! A tiny bottle of Frezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation. Frezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.

The plans of the national committee organized to establish memorials to Theodore Roosevelt will include a permanent memorial in Washington city, a park at Oyster Bay, which shall preserve the Roosevelt home as Mount Vernon is preserved, and the endowment of a society for the application of the Roosevelt ideals. The committee has set a broad scope and the program will require a large fund. It is expected to make a big drive for these various objects during the national campaign next year; and it is hoped that the work will not be delayed as was the Washington monument or the tomb of General Grant.

Likewise pains in my back left." J. C. Perry.
