

SUMMARY OF INTERNATIONAL SITUATION

As a result of President Wilson's observance of Memorial day, Friday, in peace conference circles was quiet. Notwithstanding the fact that the president delivered an address over the graves in the Suresnes cemetery, he found time to receive a visit from Premier Orlando and to discuss with him the details of the Adriatic question, the settlement of which is asserted to be approaching final shape. The council of four did not meet.

the peace conference by the Germans today, first referring to German property in allied countries, another to the Turkish public debt and the third to the Saopulo question, which relates to the Brazilian coffee seized in Germany during the war. The Greeks have landed additional forces in Asia Minor. This time, however, the Turks offered only slight resistance as compared with that of the previous debarkation, when fighting occurred in which there were many casualties.

greater respect for the nation and for the flag. "We meet on occasions like this," said the lieutenant "to keep alive that spark of patriotism that burns in every breast. I was glad to see the uncovered heads as the colors passed along the street today, but there were many heads which were not uncovered. The reason love of country runs so high in other countries is because they have learned to express their patriotism. Our love of country and flag is no less than theirs but we fail to show it.

"We are fortunate to be back here where we can enjoy mingling with our fellow men and earn a livelihood for there are those of who are not coming back. We do not want to be put on a pedestal, all the men want who has been in the late war is a chance to get back to being a good citizen. We hope to follow in the steps of the Grand Army of the Republic and of the Spanish War veterans. We know how they feel. We must keep alive the spark and not forget the men who have answered their last reveille."
