THE WORLD'S JERSEY CAPITAL AGAIN.

The Statesman has had a good deal to say about Marion county being the world's Jersey capital.

The greatest Jersey cow in the world, Vive La France, of Marion, Oregon, earned for Marion county this proud distinction, by the record which she achieved in a year's test, ending in March; as all of our readers know.

It is scarcely possible to make too much of the distinction. It turns the eyes of the world of live stock breeders this way. Now, there is another Richmond in the field.

At the great Carey sale, at Carlton on Monday, Frank A. Doerfler, of Silverton, paid the highest price ever received west of the Rocky Mountains for a Jersey cow, $5100.

This cow will go into the already famous Doerfler herd of Jerseys near Silverton, and Mr. Doerfler will go out after a higher record than was made by Vive La France.

There are others. The Pickard Bros., who own Vive La France, for instance. May there be a free field.

And may the best cow win. And this all fits in with the wonderful revival in dairying in the United States, due partly to the recent scientific discoveries concerning the absolutely essential use of milk and milk products in the development and maintenance of a virile race of people.

There must be more and more milk. There must be more and more dairying. The great breeders are doing their share, as has been said before by The Statesman.

If all the common brindle cows in the United States can be bred up and replaced by cows such as Vive La France, the butterfat of the country will be doubled; trebled, and quadrupled, and more, without increasing the number of dairy cows.

Yesterday was the 144th anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill—June 17, 1775. Today is the 104th anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo; June 18, 1815. They were great battles in point of influence upon the world's history. In terms of magnitude, however, as compared with the battles of the great war, they were mere skirmish engagements.

In the passing of Dr. W. A. Cusick, Salem loses one of her oldest and most prominent citizens. In his early days, Dr. Cusick was one of the hardest worked physicians in all Oregon. He had been an outstanding figure in this State for a generation.

A lot of hay is coming down. Will the weather god please take notice and send sunshine.

Come to Salem July 3, 4, 5.

Canada is after her Bolsheviks. Here is wishing her luck in the process of getting rid of the pest.

Portland people propose to celebrate with their neighbors. They are all invited to come to Salem.

The world understands well that Germany will sign only because she must. All the camouflage will deceive no one.

Carranza has nothing to say about American troops chasing Mexican bandit troops across the border. There is nothing to say. Let him keep his bandits at home.

Some advertising comes high, frinstance the offer of a local moving-picture management of a prize of $50,000 for an airplane tip to Australia. We should hate to hold our breath until some daring aviator wins it.—Los Angeles Times.

FACTS About Flu

Before taking up the different types of flu we wish to note that the diagnosis of flu is not always easy, but there are some symptoms that are usually found in true flu. The onset of disease is usually sudden, usually by chill, followed by temperature that rises to 102° to 104° F.; a rapid compressible pulse; severe frontal headache; backache; watery eyes; catarrh of the upper air passages; and marked weakness. The depression following flu is out of all proportion to the fever. If properly treated the disease should be aborted and the patient able to be about his usual vocation within a few days; but, if allowed to become deep seated, or, if not properly treated, the disease usually develops into one of the types already mentioned and a description of which follows in our next.

actionary influences in the stock market are now weakened by circumstances over which the banks have no control. The heavy war income and profits taxes still in force levy a big toll on the process of profit taxing in stock speculation; and this fact tends to make capitalists carrying large lines of stocks hesitate or delay selling out and cashing in their profits as the prices soar upward. This tendency to hold on deprives the market to some extent of the wholesome influence of occasional reactions in prices and the "shaking out" process is impeded.

There is, however, a time-honored method of checking stock speculation when it is being recklessly promoted. The money-lenders or the banks can raise the money rates. This happened last Monday and Tuesday in New York when call money advanced to 10 and 11 per cent, causing an immediate reaction of from 5 to 20 points in many speculative specialties. It was a brief reaction, however, for the money rates dropped to 6 per cent by midweek, the market rebounded and many new high records for the year were made before the week-end.

The incident has called special attention to the failure of the federal reserve system to function properly under the prevailing conditions, and even to its inability to function properly. The federal reserve board itself seems to admit this as a fact, for in a statement deploring the excessive speculation in stocks, it said: "Ordinarily, a sharp check would be administered through the advancing of the rates of rediscount at the federal reserve banks. Such a check for the movement encounters some difficulty as long as the federal reserve banks deem it necessary to promote the absorption of Liberty loan securities by maintaining low rates." The public now has no trouble in obtaining money by exchanging Liberty bonds for cash on easy terms to use in buying merchandise or stocks. The bank could slow-up by refusing to lend so freely on the bonds. But there are obstacles to this natural course.

There is, of course, the desire not to hinder the industrial recovery of the country or force partial unemployment upon the people such as was experienced last winter. But, aside from that, the banks are making loans for six months at 4 1/2 per cent to promote the wide distribution of the last Victory note issue, and that arrangement would be more or less upset if they were now confronted by an increase above 4 1/2 per cent for rediscounts at the federal reserve. This is what the federal reserve board had in mind in saying that it deemed it necessary to maintain low rates on account of the Liberty bond situation. No doubt the explanation is a good one, but it has to be admitted also that the federal reserve system is unable to function properly in checking reckless stock speculation and that money inflation cannot be curbed by normal banking methods.

That there is danger in such a situation is clear. The evil should be acknowledged and put up with, however, according to the June letter of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, which was evidently written before last week's stock market experience. The statement is so frank as to be worth scrutinizing:

"But is it not better to tolerate money inflation until labor is well employed and industry has been converted to a peace basis? Rather than force deflation of the currency by restricting loans and increasing banking discount rates, it will be more desirable to bend every effort toward increasing production and employment and to permit currency inflation to correct itself gradually, so far as the United States is concerned. Already, treasury disbursements have dropped from $2,000,000,000 a month last December to about $1,000,000,000, and in 1920 this amount should be cut in half. In 1920, also, our food exports should decline and we should make loans abroad permitting European countries to obtain gold from our reserve banks for the purpose of 'thickening' their diluted currencies. The release of gold to Europe and the reduction of treasury disbursements, in time, will automatically cause deflation of the American currency, and the latter combined with increased industrial production, will effect a decline in prices. During the next two years we must look to an expansion of world production of cotton, food, wool and other raw materials as the main factor in price deflation. Ultimately this tendency will be accentuated by contraction of redundant currency on both sides of the Atlantic."

If that is to be the program, it looks to be rather a long time to wait for the restoration of normal conditions. In the meantime, people who speculate in stocks must do so at an extra hazardous risk, in view of the lack of ordinary restraints and danger signals for such operations.

COMB AND BRUSH

The Department of Justice is represented as intending to comb the country for anarchists and apostles or disorder. The land should not only be combed but brushed. The quest should be as thorough and insistent as the doughboy's search for the pestiferous cottie. A blunt-nosed Bolshevik is ten times more malignant than a cottie and not nearly so amenable to reason.

THE SPEED BOYS

A company of American engineers threw a pontoon bridge across the Rhine in forty-one minutes. It was 1500 feet in length and staunch enough for the passage of a fleet of motor trucks. This was in less than one-quarter of the best time the Germans were ever able to accomplish the same task. The more airholes they let in Prussian efficiency the more flimsy it becomes. In order to make a complete cleanup the enterprising Americans made all sorts of wagers on themselves and their time and gathered in about $30,000 in real money. Now they will proceed to show the Germans how to play pin-ochle.

IN A SOCIAL WAY

By RUTH LENORE FISHER

MANY daughters and sons of well known families of Salem are returning every day from schools and colleges in other places and will spend their vacations with their parents. Miss Mary Jane Alberts arrived Sunday night from Miss Catlin's school in Portland, Miss Lucile Emmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Emmons, recently graduated from Chicago where she attended the University of Chicago. The Misses Ethel and Hazel McGilchrist, prominent Delta Delta girls at the University of Oregon came home Monday night for the summer. Miss Doris Churchill is another girl who was in Eugene at the University that is home for the summer. Miss Gertrude East is home from the Oregon Agricultural college to spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. East. Kenneth Moores who graduated with the June class at the University of Oregon, is home for the summer at the A. N. Moores home. Wyndam Buren also is home from the university at Eugene.

Salem music lovers will save Monday, June 23, and Wednesday, June 25 for the delightful musicales given on those nights by Miss Beatrice Shelton when she will present her advanced pupils in recital. Miss Shelton's musicales are always most enjoyable and these are being looked for to with great anticipation.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Deckebach will entertain the active members of the Apollo club at their beautiful home on D street tonight. After the business hour cards and music will be enjoyed.

Flowers and messages of sympathy are finding their way to Mrs. William A. Cusick into whose home bereavement has come so recently.

Mrs. W. F. Campbell of 1860 North Summer street will entertain the women of the Jason Lee Memorial church at her home this afternoon.

Woman Threatens Suit Against Druggist Because He Sold Her Substitute For Nuxated Iron Case Is Brought To Attention of Physicians Who Warn Public

Say That Ordinary Metallic Iron Preparation Cannot Possibly Give The Same Strength Power and Endurance As Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron.

With the threat to sue her druggist because he sold her a substitute for genuine Nuxated Iron, the tonic strength and blood-builder, one woman has set in motion a wave of indignation over the country against a practice which offers such countless dangers to the health and welfare of the public. This woman claims that instead of obtaining increased strength and improved health as she had with the true Nuxated Iron, she now had with the substitute, such instances as these have led physicians mentioned below to emphasize that health officials and doctors everywhere should caution the public against accepting substitutes for Nuxated Iron. Those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder should try for their family doctors and obtain a prescription calling for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and present this in their druggist so that there may be no question about obtaining the proper article. But if they do not wish to go to the trouble of getting a prescription for Nuxated Iron then they should
