Geraldine Farrar spent five whole weeks in the heart of the Wyoming Rockies during the course of producing her second Goldwyn picture "The Hell Cat." It comes to the Liberty theatre, beginning next Thursday.

One of the hits which will delight all in "Daddy Long Legs," the Mary Pickford company picture featuring the famous little star, is the performance of a dog who drinks part of a bottle of apple jack. Audiences at the Liberty theatre where this picture will be seen early in July will see a new type of humor in the antics of this animal which gives a first rate imitation of a tippler trying to make his way home after a too liberal imbibition.

Abyssinian Three are a mixed trio of colored entertainers consisting of two men and a woman who present an offering which they bill under the title of the "Darktown Circus" so arranged as to give splendid opportunities for displaying their ability and versatility. May Allison, one of the most popular and talented screen stars, will be seen in "The Testing of Mildred Vane," a Metro play which will be shown at the Liberty theatre on Wednesday for a one-day engagement.

Charlie Chaplin's latest big comedy, "Sunnyside," just released, will be shown at Ye Liberty soon.

Ben Mowatt and Billie Mullen who have youth, ability and versatility, present under the title of "The Sunbrite Pair" a combination novelty offering consisting of a little singing, talking and dancing with a novelty finish. At the Bligh today.

Bewitching Billie Rhodes in "The Lion and the Lamb" is seen in a play that will delight and stimulate the most jaded fancy by its humor, thrilling situations and sensational finale. At the Bligh starting Tuesday.

Sessue Hayakawa, undoubtedly the most interesting and virile dramatic personality of the silent drama has never done a stronger characterization than Goro Moriama, the role he assumes in "His Debt," his latest at Ye Liberty today.

Cecil B. DeMille's production "For Better or For Worse," shown today and Monday at the Oregon. One man, a soldier, young, eager, brave and loyal faced the Hun, was terribly disfigured and prayed for death, but duty bade him live, and bravely he faced the world.

Another, a doctor, remained at home to care for the sick and was scorned as a coward by friends and the woman he loved.

Thus, in this great after-the-war film story of the true heroes of America, Cecil B. DeMille strikes a mighty chord on the human heart.

In the brilliant cast are Gloria Swanson, Theodore Roberts, Elliott Dexter, Wanda Hawley, Raymond Hatton, Sylvia Ashton, Tom Forman and Julia Faye.

THE LONG EXPECTED

Harvey's Greater Minstrels headed by Ed Tolliver and Clarence Powell, both natural comedians, is due here soon. They are both natural just what they are, the regular dyed in the wool negro comedians, and they do their best to create laughter and create a furor of amusement at every performance.

Traveling in their own eighty foot car, this company of 40 colored artists are playing the principal cities and towns of the state and judging from press comments and verbal criticisms heard, Harvey's Greater Minstrels is more than making good. This company plays at the Grand opera house Monday, June 23rd. Parade at 4:30 p. m.

Mille's masterpiece. To miss it is to miss the big screen romance of reconstruction.

Chase and Janis in dainty bits of musical chatter are one of the vaudeville attractions at The Oregon today and tomorrow.

The feast of the Red Lantern light—the procession of the War Maiden of China! Anything so fantastic and weird has never before been embodied in a play, but you can see it all—visualize the strange ceremony in this vivid picture of the Far East. See it for yourself in the "Red Lantern" at the Oregon theatre, with Nazimova, the incomparable star in a dual role of strength and power.

It's a hard life for lovers, but when it's soft it's very soft. That is the idea one carries away from viewing "Where Love is Blind," the new Paramount-Mack Sennett comedy.

May 18 saw the release of "The Knickerbocker Buckaroo," a special production with Douglas Fairbanks, according to Artercraft schedule. The picture cost more than $250,000.

A Paramount-Mack Sennett comedy edition of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," threatens to be the funniest comedy ever filmed on the Sennett lot.

A big western dance hall scene at a Glendale location has kept "Fatty" Arbuckle busy for the past week. This scene by far the largest ever shown in a comedy, will be part of his new Paramount-Arbuckle picture "A Desert Hero."

Re-enlistments Increase on Preference Privilege

BREST, May 14.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—The privilege of stating their preference to units in which they wish to serve upon re-enlistment has now been extended to soldiers who sign up for another term in the army. This announcement has brought a good number of re-enlistments in the Eighth Infantry which is eventually to be made a part of the famous Second Division now in the army occupation.

Under the re-enlistment order men will be given their mileage from New York to the place of enlistment. "When I sign a doughboy, as he read the order today, 'A month's furlough and money to spend.' 'Sixty dollars, why that won't last a week in France just now,' said another doughboy somewhat dejectedly. He enlisted in New York. 'Sixty dollars? What do you mean? Two hundred and twenty dollars for yours truly,' replied the former. He had enlisted in San Francisco.
