Houses Are Scarce—
Every time there is house cleaning, painting or renovating in Salem now-a-days by owners of residence properties they are bored so much by people in quest of homes to rent or buy that many of these property owners put out signs "this property is not for sale or rent." Now is the opportune time for a few enterprising citizens to build some modern cottages for rent.

We Wish to Thank—
Our neighbors and friends for their kindness and for the flowers sent during our recent bereavement.
Mr. & Mrs. Griffith.

Hay Track Designated—
Track No. 3 between the old passenger station and the hop warehouse in East Portland has been designated as a hay inspection track after a conference between railroad officials and J. W. Church, head of the grain inspection department of the Oregon public service commission. The commission office here was so notified yesterday by Federal Manager J. P. O'Brien. All carloads of hay arriving over the Southern Pacific or the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation company lines will be placed on those tracks immediately for inspection.

Grain Is Destroyed by Fire on Drager Place

CLOVERDALE, Ore., Aug. 19— While Ray Farris and his crew were threshing at Gus Drager's farm Saturday evening the stacks of grain caught fire. The alarm was given but nothing could save the three stacks. By quick hard work on the part of crew that grain which had just been threshed was saved. This means a loss of about 160 bushels of oats to Mr. Drager, besides other grain.

Victor Fliflet who returned last Sunday from over-seas, where he saw service at the front for three months as truck driver before the signing of the armistice was out helping thresh Wednesday, pitching bundles for the Wood threshing crew.

Ralph Neer who was among those who arrived home last Sunday, was married a few days ago.

Floyd Wilson of Portland arrived Saturday evening for a few days visit with his father W. H. Wilson. Floyd has but recently returned from over-seas and this is his first visit home since.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Farris have friends from Harrisburg, visiting them. They were neighbors of Mr. Farris' years ago in Virginia.

Miss Irene Mored of Salem spent the weekend with her grandmother, Mrs. J. D. Craig.

J. Thomas and family spent Sunday at Aumsville attending the Sunday school convention there.

J. D. Craig and family motored to Tolman Sunday to spend the day with friends.

W. H. Wilson harvested 800 pounds of dried loganberries from his half acre patch, marketing them at 65 cents a pound, thus netting $520.

Mrs. Gus Drage and little daughters, Ruth, and Pearl, recently returned from a visit to Portland with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Wood and family accompanied by Miss Myrtle Ireland of Salem left here Sunday morning for Tillamook to spend a few days at the coast.
