CHAPTER CCCCXI
WHO IS THE GIGGLER IN DICKY'S STUDIO

"But, Dicky, how will you ever get home from Marvin at that hour if there's no taxi running?"

"On my two feet, goose! What do you think I am, a mollycoddle, that I can't walk three-quarters of a mile?"

"But it will be 2 o'clock in the morning and very dark—there's no moon now, and it's so lonely across those fields and along that brook and lake and it's likely to storm."

Dicky interrupted me impatiently. "Get heave, 's sake, Madge, what has gotten into you? You never used to be so fussy. You give a fellow the creeps; to hear you, I tell you I'll be perfectly all right. I don't mind the walk at all. Why, you've taken it with me yourself!"

"Of course I have," I returned, "upon a summer evening or a mid-winter night with the moon shining from again proffering my sympathy to her.

The "Brilliant" Idea.

So, with all these causes for depression hung out to air on my mental clothesline, I managed to worm myself into a most unpleasant state of nervous moodiness by the afternoon.

Then came the storm, not the ordinary snowstorm but the regular coast blizzard, with winds blowing and drifts forming, one of the two or three "smorters" as Jim calls them that come to Long Island each year.

Of course, my first concern was for Dicky. The thought of him trying to walk from the Marvin station terrified me. The path he was to take was a tortuous one, winding in and out beside the steep banks of a small lake and the stream that fed it. There was no railing or other protection beside the lake, and I had visions of Dicky missing the path and plunging through the ice twenty feet below.

Thoughts That Trouble.

Ordinarily I would have paid no attention to this prospect, reasoning that Dicky was certainly old enough to manage his own affairs. But ever since the visit to our home of Mr. Drake, who was in some mysterious way mixed up in the fortunes of my father—was, indeed, trying to "track" him—I had been exceedingly nervous.

True, Mr. Drake had at the last minute refrained from bullying tactics he had employed at first to find out my father's address, and he had promised me that unless he were compelled to do so he would not annoy me further about the matter, but the fear I had that there was something wrong with my father, something "outside the law" in his business, was constantly with me.

Then, too, this "meeting with an art editor" really troubled me. I did not doubt Dicky, I had firmly resolved never to show the least curiosity nor feminine jealousy concerning his professional engagements. But during the few weeks just preceding this day these "engagements with art editors" had become increasingly frequent. I wondered sometimes and scored myself for the wondering, if Dicky did not find it a most convenient excuse for less business-like engagements.

Katie's behavior, too, worried me. She went about her work listlessly, and I frequently saw the traces of tears upon her cheeks. But the memory of her hysterical repulse of me when last I had tried to find out the reason for her sadness kept me

"If it were only Cresthaven from which he meant to walk," I said to myself. "True, it is a much longer walk, a full mile and half, but his way lies along the orderly village streets, with plenty of houses to which he could go for shelter."

Then there dawned upon me the sudden realization of the absolute idiocy of Dicky and me. Crest Haven's taxi service was not broken down. There were a number of taxis there, and although they did not stay at the train, any of them could be secured on call.

I went to the telephone at once, glad of the chance to do anything to end the sense of powerlessness which was gripping me, and called the Crest Haven Taxi company and made arrangements with a taxi to meet the last train and bring Dicky home. Then I called Dicky's studio.

As he took down the receiver and said "Hello!" to me, I heard, I thought, the sound of a partly suppressed feminine giggle.

FOR MEN WHO WORK HARD.

Men who work at hard physical labor are subject to kidney trouble. J. G. Wolf, 734 S. Jackson St., Green Bay, Wis., writes: "Foley Kidney Pills relieved me of a severe backache that bothered me for several months. A few bottles fixed me up in good shape." They also relieve bladder and urinary ailments. J. C. Perry.

SILVERTON PERSONALS.

SILVERTON, Or., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Statesman.)—Mrs. Clara Baltimore has returned to her home at Albany after a short stay here. Although much improved in health, Mrs. Baltimore is not as well as her many friends would like. Her mother, Mrs. H. Rue, accompanied her to Albany.

Mr. and Mrs. William Moores, Miss Maurine Moores, Miss Vanita Moores and Lloyd Fry picked up on the upper Santiam Sunday.

Frank Doerfler left Wednesday for Maine for a short stay.

M. J. Madson was a business caller at Portland a few days this week.

Rev. and Mrs. George Hendrickson returned to Portland Thursday.

Congress cannot afford to be parsimonious in making aircraft appropriations. England is encouraging the flying game, having learned much from the war. They are still preparing to repeat in the still untraveled highways of the ether the triumph won by their enterprise on the sea.

To Renew Complexion Without Cosmetics

If the excessive user of cosmetics only knows the impression her artificially made-up skin makes upon others, she would quickly seek means of gaining a natural complexion. Let her acquire the mercurized wash habit, discarding make-ups entirely, and she will soon have the kind of complexion that women envy and men admire. It's so easy to get an ounce of mercurized wash at any drug store, use nightly like cold cream and wash it off mornings. And the results are so remarkable. Gradually the lifeless cuticle peels off, in almost invisible flaky particles. In a week or so there's a brand new complexion, clear, velvety, soft, of girlish color and texture.

The treatment is so simple, harmless, and so marvelously effective, the wonder is that every woman whose skin is withered, discolored, rough, freckled or pimpled, has not already adopted it.

Miss Marvin Leaves Friday for Tour Through Orient

Miss Cornelius Marvin, state librarian, will leave Salem Friday on a tour of the orient which will require a period of five months. With Miss Marvin will be Miss Mary Parsater of Wisconsin and Miss Jessica Todd of Monmouth. Miss Marvin is granted a leave of absence of six months without pay by the state.

Your Teeth Need Looking After

The first important step in good dentistry is deciding what shall be done with the teeth. If the dentist's advice is wrong, a long chain of troubles is sure to follow.

It ought to be worth a few moments of your time to have your teeth thoroughly examined by a dentist who makes a business of examining teeth. Such a man is in every dental office using the E. R. Parker System.

His duty is to find out what your teeth need and tell you. His advice is well worth having, for he examines so many mouths he knows what he is talking about. For this advice there is no charge.

If you don't want to take the dentist's advice, all right. If you do take it, he will tell you the price for doing the work under the E. R. Parker System, which means that it will be done without a waste of your time, without fear of pain, and done so well that you will be satisfied. E. R. Parker System dentists are not satisfied until you are.
