Crowded to the guards.

That means The Statesman of this morning. The live advertisers did it. A mass of matter held over.

The board of control is advertising for 15,000 cords of fir wood, or its equivalent in slabwood, for the state institutions next year. Some wood.

L. G. Bulgin is the man who bought the last of the Judge W. C. Hubbard acres in South Bottoms—over 300 acres. Mr. Bulgin will put 50 acres in loganberries this winter, and more later. He is one of the buyers of fruits for The Phez company.

Hon. W. A. Carter of Portland came to Salem last night. He had heard the Denny (otherwise called Chinese) pheasants are bothering the farmers up this way, and he is equipped to go out and help get rid of the pest. Perhaps he will leave a few hens and old roosters for stock next year. He will be accompanied by Governor Olcott, Henry W. Meyers and Rolla Southwick.

make certain a return of at least 5 1/2 per cent on the actual value of the railroads in the regional systems, plus half of 1 per cent for improvements. Earnings above 6 per cent are to be divided between the carriers and the board.

Finances Worked Out.
In adjusting finances of the railroads and the government at the end of government control, the bill proposes that the government accept the railroads' long term notes for indebtedness to the government of about $400,000,000, payable within 10 years at 6 per cent interest. On other indebtedness it authorizes the president to accept short term demand notes. The president also is authorized to extend obligations of the carriers which have accrued during government control or to exchange them for other securities.

Naturopathy—What It Is, and Five Reasons Why You Should Be Treated by a Naturopathic Physician

What is Naturopathy?

Naturopathy is a system of treating the sick by the use of drugless and non-surgical methods. It is based upon the principle that if the causes of disease are removed, Nature will restore the body to health, because the body, when functioning normally, contains within itself the elements to restore and maintain health.

What Methods Are Used in Naturopathy?

Naturopathy uses various principles efficacious in healing the sick, some of which are:

- Dietetics—Scientific food selections, preparations and combinations.
- Hydrotherapy—General personal hygiene.
- Manual therapy—Manual methods of correcting abnormal conditions of the body.
- Hydrotherapy—Scientific application of water of varying temperature.
- Electrotherapy—Scientific application of the different forms of electricity.
- Psychotherapy—A scientific application of the powers of mind to the problems of health and disease.
- Vibrotherapy—Mechanical and manual vibration.
- Ozone and Oxygen Vapor—Oxygen converted into ozone by electricity.
- Phototherapy—Scientific application of sunlight, incandescent light and arc light, for curative purposes.

What is the Standing of Naturopathy?

Naturopathy has already been recognized and adopted by many of the brightest minds in the orthodox schools of medicine.

Naturopathy is not Osteopathy, Chiropractic, Christian Science, or any other similar system. We do not condemn them; we recognize the good in all of them.

Five Reasons Why You Should Be Treated by a Naturopathic Physician

- First—Because Naturopathy uses all drugless and non-surgical methods in treating the sick.
- Second—Because Naturopathy is the oldest of the drugless cults.
- Third—Because Naturopathic methods are based upon scientific observation and practical experience.
- Fourth—Because Naturopathic methods are adapted to the treating of all persons from infancy to old age.
- Fifth—Because Naturopathy is more effective and less expensive than other systems of treating the sick.

OREGON DEFEATS IDAHO 27 TO 6
Losing Eleven Makes Sensational Play at First of Contest

MOSCOW, Idaho, Oct. 18.—The University of Idaho was defeated by the University of Oregon team today by a score of 27 to 6. Both teams scored a touchdown in the first period and Idaho held its opponents in the second but fell before the Oregon onslaught which definitely decided the game in the third.

The most sensational play in the game occurred at the end of the first eight minutes, when Irving ran 60 yards through Oregon interference and passed the ball to Gerlough for Idaho's only touchdown. The second half was played in Oregon territory but after that time the visitors were never seriously menaced.

LAD REPENTS, NOW IN JAIL
Joseph Mayer, Conscience Stricken, Writes Varney and Gives Up

Conscience stricken because he double-crossed Chief of Police Percy M. Varney of Salem several months ago in Portland, Joseph Mayer purposely revealed his whereabouts to the chief, and he is now in the Marion county jail as an accomplice in the burglarizing of the Salem Woolen Mills store last July, when more than $300 worth of goods was taken by Mayer and Frank Celestino. The latter is now in the penitentiary.

Mayer is 18 years old. The Salem store was burglarized at an early hour in the morning. Police officers who chased the two burglars captured Mayer, but Celestino escaped. He was traced to Portland and Mayer was taken there to help in the search. He was placed on his honor by Chief Varney, and when allowed to go by himself to make an inquiry for Celestino, he ran away. Celestino, however, was captured, tried and sentenced.

A few days ago Varney received a letter from Seattle, saying that Mayer was working in a shipyard and making an honest living. Varney went to Seattle and after some difficulty found the apartment house in which Mayer was living. Learning that the officer was in town, Mayer gave himself up and returned with Varney to Salem.

When Varney met Mayer in Seattle he had had in his pocket a letter he was about to mail to the Salem officer, expressing regret at breaking faith with the chief and declaring that he wished to see him. He now pleads with the authorities to give him a "jolt" in prison.

Co-operation of People Asked by Light Company

The approach of winter and the longer and darker nights now at hand is attracting attention to the street lights.

The city council is considering entering into a new contract with the Portland Railway, Light and Power company and several of the councilmen are trying to take action that will insure that all of the lights burn as regularly as possible.

In a recent conference with the council W. M. Hamilton, division manager of the company state that it was his idea that if the public will cooperate with the company by notifying the latter promptly of all lamps that do not burn, it should be possible to maintain very good street lighting service. He explained that the company was desirous of having as few lamps out as possible, as each lamp that is to burn is a reflection on the character of the service furnished by the company, but that it would add 10 per cent to the cost of the service to the city of the company were to employ a man to drive over the eight or nine miles of streets each night to learn which lights were out.

"The people can, therefore, save themselves this additional expense and obtain equally good service if they will comply with my suggestion, and notify the company of lamps that do not burn," said Mr. Hamilton.

The company's employees have been instructed to get the names and addresses of persons reporting street lights that are out so follow-up cards may be mailed to such persons after the lamps have been fixed, asking if they have been attended to satisfactorily.

JUDGE M'BRIDE HAS GOOD STORY
Beresford's Passing Recalls Incident in Life of Jurist's Father

The recent death of Lord Beresford, the noted English admiral, recalls to the mind of Chief Justice Thomas A. McBride of the Oregon supreme court an incident in the official life of his father, James McBride, which shows the typical Americanism in the ancestry of the Oregon jurist.

While James McBride was United States minister to the Hawaiian Islands in 1865 a British man o'war anchored at Honolulu for the purpose of taking Queen Emma on a trip to England. Among the officers of the British ship were two young midshipmen, one of them Lord Beresford, who later became the noted admiral. The young English midshipmen were not burdened with responsibilities aboard, and while casting about the Hawaiian capital in search of trophies they espied the American coat of arms, a big design of the American eagle, over the entrance to the American legation. Watching their chance at night the midshipmen stole it and carried it aboard the English man o'war.

But Mr. McBride, the American minister, was clever enough to detect them and demanded of the British captain that the coat of arms be returned. This was agreed to by the captain, but he demurred when Minister McBride made the further demand that the two midshipmen replace it publicly.

"That would be very improper," protested the captain, "for you must remember that Mr. Beresford is an English Lord."

"I don't care if he is the Lord Almighty," replied McBride, "he has to do as I say. There is an American gunboat in the harbor and if you refuse I shall have your midshipmen removed from the ship and tried."

There was nothing for the Englishman to do but comply with the demand. Mr. McBride was possessed of a strong dramatic sense and got a crowd of about 500 officers together to see the British people put the American eagle back where it belonged. Also he brought a photographer to the scene and had pictures made of the event. Justice McBride has the picture, presented him by his father. It shows young Lord Beresford and his fellow officers straining at the heavy coat of arms with Mr. McBride, in the conventional attire of his day, including high silk hat and white waistcoat, overseeing the job. The stars and stripes waves above the two laboring Englishmen.

An American sea captain who was present gave the climax to the occasion by shouting:

"Three cheers for Mr. James McBride. The American eagle is on a bird that can't be picked."

Mrs. Ida M. Rollo and Miss Marguerite Meyer arrived home yesterday from a visit of two months in Iowa, Illinois and Michigan.

There is a rumor in army circles that the color of the new uniform is to be sea-green. Does this mean a surrender to the Sinn Feiners?
