ed through the summer months by Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the foundation, it is understood extensions of the educational work in the Far East, particularly in China, will be authorized at the annual meeting of the Rockefeller Foundation in New York in December.

Schools Receive Funds.

Existing medical schools and hospitals at various places in China have been receiving contributions and aid from the foundation. The two most important enterprises of the organization in China are the Peking Union Medical College, under construction at the Chinese capital, and the Shanghai Medical College, the erection of which is expected to be authorized at the annual meeting.

The main purpose of the institutions is to train Chinese as practitioners of medicine, according to the standards of American schools of the best class. The development of an indigenous medical profession of a high order and the ultimate transfer of this form of education to Chinese hands are the announced aims of the foundation in China. Three of the main buildings of the Peking Union Medical college will be opened this fall.

College Building Expected

The project to build the Shanghai Medical College has been under consideration since 1915, but the difficulty of obtaining materials from abroad has prevented the beginning of building. The Rockefeller foundation is expected to decide at its December meeting when work will be started on the Shanghai institution.

Pending the completion of the new schools, in addition to its other activities the China Medical Board has been granting fellowships and scholarships to medical missionaries for study in the United States and has been aiding native physicians, nurses and students to pursue courses in American schools. Prince Leopold and Pretty Kidnapper Who Showed Him Harvard Stadium

While the Belgian royal family was visiting New England, Prince Leopold was "kidnapped" by Miss Anna Hamlin, well known in Boston society. Her accomplice was a young naval lieutenant. They took the prince by automobile to the Harvard Stadium, where Miss Hamlin explained to the royal captive all about the big college games played there.

China in 1918 exceeded $2,000,000. Work Aids Sulus.

In the 300-odd islands of the Sulu archipelago that are out of touch with the rest of the world a remarkable work has been done by the Rockefeller foundation. The remote villages along the shores of Mindanao had been inaccessible to medical men until the foundation placed in service the ship Busuanga. She is of 30 tons burden and is fitted with a modern operating room, a ten-bed hospital ward and a pharmacy. This floating dispensary touches regularly at points on the coasts of Mindanao and the islands of the Sulu archipelago. The vessel works in cooperation with base hospitals that have been established at Jolo and Zamboanga. By the terms of an agreement the Rockefeller foundation is to maintain the Busuanga in service for five years after which control of the vessel is to be taken over by the Philippine authorities.

"Daughter of The Sun" Here Tonight

One of the Typical Hawaiian Belles with "A Daughter of the Sun" the story of an Hawaiian Butterfly, a love story of these Pacific islands comes as a distinct relief to the ocean of sex plays. The play carries an atmosphere of these wonderful islands. The authors, Lorin J. Howard and Ralph T. Kettering, have given their subject much careful study. A band of native Hawaiian musicians and singers is carried and they render their native music throughout the action of the play. The scenic equipment of the play is a mammoth affair and the cast is a noteworthy one. They will be at the Grand Opera House tonight for one night only. The prices are 50c to $1.50 and the tickets are on sale all day at the Opera House Pharmacy.

We knew a man once who was wont to claim that his future was in front of him, his past behind him and his present with him. He had such a solemn way of saying an undisputed thing.

The wholesale price of pork has dropped a bit, of course, but the succulent chop still continues to be merely scenery to the ordinary citizen.

YSER TRENCHES GHASTLY RUINS

Devastated District Bears Scars Despite Efforts to Reclaim

DIXMUDE, Belgium, Sept. 22.—(By The Associated Press)—Lining the banks of the Yser river, far as the eye can see, are the trenches which for so many months during the war were occupied by the Belgian and German armies, the Belgians on the south bank and the Germans on the north. They still bear many marks of shell and rifle fire, and mouldy straw lying on the damper floors still convey some idea of the hardships to which the soldiers were subjected.

Dugout Now Cellar

On the German side of the river is a dugout, built to resist the heaviest projectiles, and cool even on a hot day. It was a favorite gathering spot for the Germans when the fighting was fiercest, but now serves the more useful purpose of a refrigerator. Instead of the bunks and chairs which once lined it sides one now sees pile upon pile of beer cans, filled with refreshment for the soldier guard at work cleaning up the ground.

Behind the dugout, the bodies of three soldiers, two Belgians and one German, were buried on the bank of a tiny pond, made by bursting shells. Little crosses mark the resting places and over them poppies nod.

Relics Still Seen

Along the Yser one may probably see the effects of the hard fought struggle. Here and there the top of a dugout has been crushed in, and further along the duckboards from an abandoned trench may be seen sticking through the mud. Within sight of the bridge, the muzzle of a field piece, rusted and useless, points to the sky.

Much of the debris of the battlefield as already been collected. Miles upon miles of barbed wire have been reclaimed from the entanglements, German and allied, which stretched in front of the lines but at some points along the river bank the old entanglements still remain, rusted and twisted on stakes which are fast falling into the ground. There are great piles of reeled wire which has not yet been unwound since it left the wire mills, while the military telephone systems are still stretched upon short stakes.

Return is Gradual

The people of Dixmude, like the people of every other destroyed Belgian town, are gradually returning to the ruins of their homes. The help being given them by the government is giving them heart and strength to begin life over again. Here one may see a man patching up a shell hole in his house with a few bricks taken from the ruins of his neighbor's home, and in another place men and women too, are patching a roof.

But these instances are few. In most cases the destruction was so complete that nothing is left for the poor Belgian but to build a new house.

But the people are happy and cheerful. They go about their work with smiling faces and merry laughter. They are back home.

WAR PRISONERS CLEAR UP LAND

Germans Reclaim Areas Wrecked by Four Years of Blighting Conflict

DIXMUDE, Belgium, Sept. 25.—Scattered over the lowly country between Ypres and Dixmude, scene of many a battle, are thousands of German prisoners under guard of British and Belgian soldiers as well as civilians who have been called in to the gigantic task of clearing up the battlefield and once more making it fit for habitation. They are stacking shells, recovering brass casings and burying the dead. There is a military efficiency about their work and the progress they are making is most gratifying for all the governments concerned.

One may still see the ruins of many British and Belgian tanks, caught in the German shell fire, now twisted and broken wrecks. Now they lie rusted and neglected, mere shells of the once powerful machines which went into action. Some of them are almost buried in the mud, others hang precariously on the edge of dilapidated trenches, while still others stand high in the fields where they were abandoned by such of their crews as survived. Many of them are torn and riddled as though their heavily armored sides were little more than paper.

Trees Are Skeletons.

Perhaps the most impressive feature of this dead and blackened landscape are the trees. Gaunt and stark stripped of every limb and branch, they stand out against the skyline, so many lifeless sticks.

Whole villages have disappeared, ground by the big guns into mud or dust without one vestige remaining to mark their location. This is true of Poelcappelle, whose former existence would not have been suspected had not a Belgian major volunteered the information that here his battalion had once held its main street for three days.

Many live shells still remain in the fields, and today as a party was passing within a few miles of Dixmude they were startled by the explosion of one of these "duds."

Tank is Playhouse.

Reconstruction is going forward. Near the shack reared by one thrifty Belgian who has returned to the site of his former home is a disabled tank, a shell having ripped through its side and exploded in the interior. From one side of the tank to that humble shack stretches a clothes line

Labor Aids Move to Extend "Neighborhood Governments"

Leaders Endorse Plan to Set Up Community Councils to Improve Living Conditions.

The part which organized labor should play in community development is being studied by John Frey and a committee of well-known labor leaders in connection with proposed plans for an extension of the Social Unit plan of community organization, which has received its initial try-out in a section of Cincinnati, Ohio. Under the auspices of Mr. Frey's committee, John Walker, former president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, has been making an intensive study of the Social Unit idea and will shortly submit recommendations to organized labor throughout the country.

JOHN P. FREY

Under the Social Unit plan neighborhoods are organized as units to study their own needs and form programs to meet them. The citizens of each community are organized by blocks, with elected block committees, and elected representatives to a central community council. Representatives elected by business, trade and professional groups assist the representatives of the blocks in planning programs to meet discovered needs. It is claimed for this scheme of organization that it does away with paternalism and brings government closer to people's lives.

In planning for a future program the Social Unit Organization is seeking the advice of labor, business, social workers, community workers, experts in municipal administration, public health, Americanization and public recreation.

Among the business men who are working with labor leaders in forming this community program is Charles Edison, son of the inventor and chairman of the board of directors of the Edison Company, who has resigned from all other social activities to affiliate with the Social Unit.

and on given days the family was hung out to dry.

Children of that family play in the broken tank, enacting, as they have often heard related, the grim story of the battle. That is, they play when they are not at work, for Belgium is using even its children to rebuild its homes.

Batton and Fisher Here To Fix De Havilland Plane

Lieutenant Batton and Sergeant Fisher, members of the Oregon airplane forest patrol, flew here from Eugene yesterday to repair the De Havilland plane of Lieutenant Ned Schramm, who was forced to land in Salem a few days ago while returning from Seattle to Red Bluff, Calif. The fliers expect to leave today with Schramm's airship. Lieutenant Schramm is also here.

Reading Advertisements has helped to make this a united country.....

Jim Hawkins props his feet on the rose festooned porch railing in an Oregon suburb and reads the same motor car advertisement that Cousin Peter is studying as he rides home from work in the New York subway. In Arizona you can buy the same tooth paste and tobacco that are used by the folks in Maine.

California fruit growers advertise their oranges and lemons to the people of the East. New Hampshire factories make ice cream freezers for Texas households.

There can be no division in a country so bound together by taste, habit and custom.

You can meet up with anybody in the United States and quickly get on a conversational footing because you both read the same advertisements.

Advertising is the daily guide to what's good to buy.

Advertisements give you the latest news from the front line of business progress.

Reading advertisements enables you to get more for your money because they tell you where, what and when to buy.

And it is a well-known fact that advertised goods are more reliable and better value than the unadvertised kinds.
