OREGON'S SECOND INDUSTRY IN IMPORTANCE

FEW realize that Livestock Raising and industries consequent thereto are second only to the great timber and lumber industries of this state.

The great Pacific International Livestock Exposition in Portland last week demonstrated what Oregon has done, is doing, and will do along such lines.

The United States National Bank believes that encouragement is akin to endeavor.

EUGENE LOSES TO SALEM 17-7

Spectacular Playing of Gill and Ringle Wins Game in Last Four Minutes

Scoring all of its 17 points in the last four minutes, Salem high school won from Eugene high in a football game reckoned as one of the most spectacular gridiron battles ever seen in Salem. Eugene's score was but 7.

Luke Gill and Phil Ringle, by their sensational work in the last quarter, established a record for brilliant work in high school football. Gill achieved the phenomenal when he made two touchdowns and a field goal in less than three minutes. The other two points were place kicks by Ringle and Ted Irwin.

Game Is Battle.

Starting with a rush which bore out the promise that the game would be a battle royal, it gradually became almost certain that apparent victory was to go to the visitors. When in the middle of the third quarter, up to which the contest had been scoreless, Eugene scored a touchdown and a place kick, things looked toward a certain winning.

The fourth quarter began even more desperately than the rest of the game and became a struggle for every inch of ground. Suddenly, with only four minutes to play, Gill and Ringle "got going" and there was no stopping.

Brilliant play after brilliant play came in rapid succession while the grandstand whooped and shrieked. Old fans as well as the high school supporters of the two teams went wild and the game ended in bedlam.

The game, a traditional battle, was attended by a large crowd of Salem and Eugene students and by numbers of alumni.

Prince of Wales Looks Up at New York Skyscrapers

This ciseoup of the Prince of Wales just after landing in New York at the Battery shows him looking up at the White Hall Building. From this point to the City Hall where he was officially received by Mayor Hylan, the eyes of the prince were almost constantly fixed upon New York skyline. His first glimpse of which he received while crossing the Hudson river on the United States destroyer. The route from the Pier A carried the prince within view of the Woolworth tower. The royal visitor will remain in New York until Saturday, when he will leave for Halifax, N. S.

PURGE THY FAIR AND SACRED SOIL.

America, thy troubled soul doth cry aloud;
Thy mighty heart doth burst and bleed while once 'twas proud.
A mighty task, with open arms, thou didst assail.
Was thy great love but spent in vain. Did not avail?
Thine offer was to the oppressed wherever found.
Thy hate of tyranny was thy key-note sound.
"The lacerated and bleeding heart shall ever find relief;
The loving soul of America will e'er assuage thy grief.
Come, Oh come, from every shore, to my great heart."
This was thy constant slogan call; thy trumpet blast.
But, Oh! thou wert too freely taken at thy word.
That slogan call aroused the world; all nations heard.
Too many flocked unto thy shores, to seek relief,
Not from oppression's master hand; 'twas make belief;
But from the hand of outraged justice had they escaped.
Thy virgin country which embraces them was foully raped;
And now the base ingrates we see with sword in hand
To strike their benefactress down in Freedom's land.
O thou asylum of the oppressed, spare not thy curses,
Thou hast been turned into a slaughter-pen for thy nurses!
No, no, 'tis not a living wage, alone, they seek,
Nor holy vengeance on the millionaire to wreak.
The besom of destruction they would spread, alike,
On guilt or helpless innocence; all should yield to might.
To stand for honor, justice, civic pride in any form
Is, in their eyes, an unbearable offence not to be borne.
O, America, thou hast loved too well without discretion.
Kindness, comforts, caresses needeth strong confessions.
Arouse, Americans, arouse! with thy mailed hand
Purge thy fair and sacred soil from all this hellish clan.
This poison upas tree must fall and with it take
Its every root and branch into that fiery lake.
America for Americans, native born or well assimilated.
No others shall be considered and none others e'er contemplated.
No more our flag must fly o'er hellish anarchy.
No more our listening ears shall hark to harping blasphemy.
I yet would live to see the day—O, can it be?
When freedom's flag, once more, has freed its folds from anarchy.
Salem, Oregon, Nov. 20, 1919. —W. T. Rigdon.

Lester E. Humphreys, today announced his resignation from the office of chief deputy, effective January 1, next.

CARE FOR BIRDS ON FARM SOUGHT

Modification of Injunction in State Suit Held Imperative

To provide for the care and feeding of the 800 pheasants now located on the Lane county game rearing farm, an effort will be made by the state fish and game commission to have the decree of Judge George G. Bingham modified in the suit against the commission and the secretary of state and state treasurer to enjoin them from purchasing the land.

An affidavit from Gene M. Simpson, superintendent of the state game farm at Corvallis, setting forth that the action is absolutely necessary for the preservation of the birds, will be included in the application in supporting it. The affidavit will include a statement that the Corvallis farm is overcrowded and space is not available for the birds now on the Lane county farm.
