

REQUIREMENT SHIPPI NG GREAT NEED OF SOUTH AMERICAN COUNTRIES SAYE CHILEAN REPRESENTATIVE

DON, Nov. 25.—One of the needs of the South American republics today is an immense amount of merchant shipping, says Samuel Tocornal, head of the Chilean mission, which has just been recalled to England. The lack of ships for the trade of the continent is a serious need, says the Chilean representative. He says that the full plenitude of merchant shipping is needed to expand our trade with America and Europe in general. He says that the Chilean government has had at commercial associations machinery in Chile is of German manufacture. He says that the Chilean government is ready to meet all its needs. the right to vote, but Peru is not in accord with us about this. That is, shortly, the root of the question. There is no danger of war, however, between the two countries. A. B. C. Powers Amicable "We are on very good terms with the other two A. B. C. powers; the frontier difficulties with the Argentine have been satisfactorily settled of course. Chile was the first South American nation to submit to arbitration, in 1903, when we accepted King Edward's solution of the difficulties with the United States. "The Monroe doctrine, of which the world hears so much from time to time, means a continental policy for America, North and South. It originated, it is said, in the brain of the English statesman, George Canning. At the time of the Holy Alliance in Europe, he instructed the British minister at Washington to suggest it to the American government. An exchange of letters followed between Monroe, Jefferson, and Madison in 1823. The Monroe doctrine was the outcome. "With regard to the league of nations, Chile approved of the scheme without discussion. We fully appreciate the noble intentions of the statesman who conceived the measure. If it helps, even if only for a time, to make the world tranquil, it will be of enormous utility. Today we cannot judge it; we must wait results. What we can do is to appreciate the spirit which animated those who brought it into being."

Paris Brothers Not to Retire From Business

Paris brothers have sold their entire stock of ladies' and men's shoes to Peter, Cohen & Co., and will for the time being confine their business to shoe repairing. As soon as their present stock is disposed of by the purchasers Paris brothers will resume the occupancy of their store and put in a complete new stock. The impression which seems to have been noised about that Paris brothers have retired from the retail shoe business is erroneous as they intend to go back into the business on a larger scale than heretofore at their present location in the near future.

O'Ryan Recommends Supplanting of National Guard and Reserve Corps

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Rejection by house and senate military committees of war department proposals for a regular army of 576,000 officers and men appeared practically certain tonight when Chairman Wadsworth predicted that the senate committee would fix the strength of the force at about 280,000. The house committee has agreed tentatively on a similar program. Senate sub-committee hearings on the bill were concluded today while the house committee considered the future of the national guard. Legion's Plan Considered. The military policy committee of the American Legion explained to the sub-committee today recommendations of the organization as formulated at its recent convention in Minneapolis.

Under the legion's recommendations only a sufficient standing army for police and overseas garrison purposes should be provided. Universal military training for boys from 18 to 20 years of age and a general staff "liberalized by an admixture of citizen-officers" was recommended. Continuation of the present officers' training camps and a separate department of aeronautics also were favored. O'Ryan Urges Citizen Army. Major General John F. O'Ryan, New York national guard, renewed his recommendations for a citizen army to replace both national guard and reserve corps to supplement the regular forces and be available locally at the call of state governors upon application to the federal government for military assistance.

Sturdiest Foe Charlie White Ever Faced Took Count Only After Battle of Years

The Story of the "Kid Without a Chance"

Just after conquering T.B.

WHITE'S MESSAGE TO AMERICAN BOYS

The first requisite in the battle against tuberculosis is COURAGE. Not the courage of the street bully but the moral courage that will make any sacrifice for the sake of health. When Dr. Sachs first told me I had tuberculosis I thought the fight was over. If I had not been able to convince myself, or rather to be convinced by Dr. Sachs, that I could knock my foe out if I were willing to go through a long period of careful training, I would not be alive today. While other boys were smoking cigarettes and roaming the streets at night, I was sacrificing every pleasure to conserve my strength and finally build up my body for the attack on my foe. I didn't have much fun in those days, but I've been well paid and over again for every sacrifice I made. My advice to every boy who is in danger from the White Plague is to get to a good doctor quick and then FIGHT and fight hard, and don't give up. COURAGE is the main thing. If you've got that, the rest is slow but sure. Any boy who has the courage to go through the mill as I went through it will get well.

As he looks to-day

Robust Contender for Lightweight Title Once "Doomed" as Victim of White Plague.

A victim of tuberculosis at the age of 13; the weakening in a family of ten boys; too poor to pay for a doctor's examination and treatment; a kid "without a chance." Then, at the age of 27, one of the most famous athletes of his time; a boxer with the greatest record of knockouts of any pugilist America ever produced; challenger of Benny Leonard for the lightweight championship of the world.

That is the amazing story of Charlie White of Chicago, before whose famous "left hook" many a rugged opponent has gone down to defeat. The thousands of ring followers who have seen the Chicago slugger in action will find it hard to believe that only a few years ago this same boy was a consumptive living in abject misery in a Ghetto tenement—the last human in the world whom a judge of athletic material would have selected for the spotlight.

Today Charlie White walked into the offices of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute and volunteered his services for the sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals. December 1 to 10. But the greatest possible contribution he could make to the seal campaign, in the opinion of the officials, was the telling of his own story. For his experience proves that any boy, no matter how frail his physique nor how poor he may be in purse, can hang the knockout on the dread White Plague, provided he has what Charlie calls the proper brand of courage.

When tuberculosis attacked this boy it seemed to have picked an easy victim. The son of a tailor and I'll do anything you tell me to," Charlie was housed with nine from his wretched home and take brothers in one room in the very heart of the White Plague's favorite hunting grounds. He slept in a room without a window and ate whatever and wherever he could. He was just a weakling, and as such he suffered the usual humiliations from the youthful bullies of the neighborhood. In street battles he was a hundred to one shot.

One day, after a particularly distressing experience at the hands of a healthier boy, Charlie happened to hear of the wonderful cures that were being accomplished among the "sick-boys" of the tenements by Dr. Theodore B. Sachs, president of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute. As a forlorn hope, Charlie went to see him. Ragged and dirty and penniless, his frail body shaken with coughs, he presented a spectacle that touched the great physician's heart.

"You have tuberculosis," Dr. Sachs told him, "and you ought to go to Denver at once. You haven't any time to lose."

He might as well have advised a trip to Europe. When Charlie explained his financial condition, Dr. Sachs said: "All right, we'll save you anyway, if you've got the will to get well. You want to be a strong, healthy boy, don't you?" "You bet your life," the boy replied. "There are a lot of kids in my neighborhood I want to lick, and I'll do anything you tell me to."

Boxer Now Calls on Youth of America to Support Red Cross Christmas Seal Sale.

In his heart. He was determined to get well—which in tuberculosis is half the battle. He followed Dr. Sachs' orders faithfully. In six months there was so much improvement that the physician advised a little gymnasium work; nothing strenuous, but simple exercises.

The boy from the tenements found the gymnasium a fascinating place. He was especially interested in the boxers—"prize fighters," they were called in those days—for to him they represented the last word in physical prowess. Later, when his cure had been assured, he experimented with the boxing gloves, and took many a drubbing from the more experienced boys. But the day came when his speed and hitting power, and particularly his determination, attracted the attention of Nate Lewis, famous manager of boxers, and Lewis "took him on" for a course of instruction.

The result is ring history. In his first professional appearance as a fighter—a ten round bout at Waukegan, Illinois—the former "sick-boy" knocked his opponent cold in the eighth round. From that time on, his career has been a steady succession of victories, more than fifty per cent of his opponents being knocked out. Today he is considered the most formidable opponent of Benny Leonard for the lightweight championship of the world, and the battle is to take place this winter. Denver already has offered a purse of $30,000 for the fight.

Aside from his splendid health, Charlie has much to be grateful for as a result of that first visit to Dr. Sachs. This boy who once did not have money enough to pay for a medical examination had earned more than a hundred thousand dollars as a boxer! "If everybody" in this country realized the good that can be done among the tuberculosis plague spots by education and advice alone," said Charlie White today, "they would buy Red Cross Christmas Seals by the 'le."

MANGIS FIRM LOSES SPUDS

Two Carloads Ruined by Freezing Weather on Spur Track at Albany

Mangis brothers had two cars of potatoes badly damaged by freezing. The spuds were enroute to California, but the cars were run into a switch at Albany where they remained during the storm.

The firm states that it is not possible to estimate the loss that has come to the growers and shippers of potatoes until after the thaw. Where potatoes were stored in ordinary out-buildings as is customary in this section the loss, it is believed, will be more serious than is thought at this time.

"Frosted potatoes," said Mr. Mangis, "are useless. If fed to stock they are poisonous. Starch factories can use them for manufacturing starch if they can get the spuds before they thaw out. But the price that is offered for them at the starch mills is too low to justify their being delivered there."

VISCOUNT GREY MAY NOT RETURN

Belief Grows That Ambassador from England Will Be Succeeded

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The belief is growing in diplomatic circles that Viscount Grey will not return to Washington as British ambassador, although there is no intimation of this officially. Speculation is beginning as to who will be the next ambassador, and Lord Reading's name is mentioned frequently. It is not known whether Lord Reading would abandon the chief justiceship for the ambassadorship, but it is well known that he is particularly fond of America and of Americans, and there is some who believe that he would like the post.

Viscount Grey, whose early return to England has been announced, has never formally presented his credentials at Washington, and it is assumed, therefore, that he never turned over Lord Reading's letters of recall.

The possible retirement of Sir Robert Borden from the premiership of Canada recalls that during the peace conference it was reported he might be the next ambassador to the United States. This was when the subject was discussed of whether the British dominions, notably Canada, should have separate ambassadors at Washington.

TO FIT ALL FINGERS

Thomas A. Edison, remarking on a new style airplane, said its make-up was, to say the least, novel. "It is, in fact, a striking idea. I have seen nothing to beat since last month. Then a young man from Orange showed me an engagement ring he was going to patent. "But, I said, examining the creel 'what is there patentable about this?' "It is adjustable, sir," answered the young man proudly.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

President Wilson's Great Speeches And Other History Making Documents

Also 37 authentic, history-making documents. Facsimile signatures of all of the members of the War Congress.

A book like this tells, as no other can, the official side of America's history in the war. It affords an opportunity for reviewing at leisure the part this government has played in the conflict from the moment of the outbreak of hostilities in the summer of 1914 up to, and including, President Wilson's speech on LEAGUE or REBELLION, upon his first return from the Peace Conference.

For clearness of thought, keenness of perception and brilliance of expression, President Wilson's Speeches stand pre-eminent in the oratory of our American statesmen, and are being studied by his opponents as well as his admirers. It is for posterity to judge the value of these documents, but to be ignorant of them is no merit, even on the part of those who do not agree with their contents.
