TRUST POWERS GIVEN BANK

Capital National Is Granted Authority by Federal Reserve Board

Word has just been received by the Capital National bank that the federal reserve board has conferred upon the bank the right to exercise those trust powers which have heretofore been exercised exclusively by Oregon trust companies by virtue of Oregon statutes.

This order of the federal reserve board requires the bank deposit with the state treasurer $50,000 in in securities, and when this requirement has been complied with it is empowered to act as executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, asignee, registrar of stocks and bonds, and in other fiduciary capacities.

The Capital National bank will deposit the required securities and assume the powers thus conferred upon it.

This marks an important advancement in banking in Salem as it is the first time any bank in this city has been granted such powers. Up to the present time Portland was the nearest city in which trust companies operated and Salem's citizens have relied upon the more hazardous course of depending upon private individuals to act in trust capacities.

The many advantages of the trust department of the Capital National will be recognized by the people of Salem, especially those who wish to leave the care of their estates in the hands of a corporation that has all the modern facilities for the efficient execution of business placed in its care.

Kinney and Smith New Realty Firm in Salem

F. I. Kinney and Chtester L. Smith, two live wires from Corvallis have opened real estate offices in room 201 Salem Bank of Commerce building. The firm will be known as Kinney & Smith and will be in charge of Mr. Smith. Mr. Kinney will return to Corvallis to take care of his real estate office there. He has been in the real estate business in Corvallis for several years and has built up a very remunerative business.

Mr. Smith has been associated with Mr. Kinney in his Corvallis business for some time, and is a live wire in the full sense of the term.

BITS FOR BREAKFAST

Have to cut it short.

Bits for Breakfast man is about crowded out.

Crowded out by the advertisers, who have more interesting offerings, these Santa Claus days.

The trade of the Sa le m stores that advertise is so great that there will have to be a hang-over for the New Year, an on down into 1930 for many days.

Talk is cheap, excepting in the United States senate.

If ther e had been less talk, the railroads might have gone back to their owners January 1. Perhaps President Wilson may give them back, anyway. And, but for the talk of the talksmiths of that body, the peace treaty would have been ratified long ago, and the world would have been on the way towards reconstruction.

When a man decides that nothing matters, he is a philosopher. When a woman decides that nothing matters she is an outcast.

The loganberry crop may be short next ye ar. . But this will cause greater production of every other fruit and vegetable needed by the Salem factories, as it should. And in 1921 there should be half enuogh loganberries to go around.

"Did you pay my little brother to remain out of the parlor," she asked.
"Yes, I hope I was not presuming."
"You were not. But if you paid him I won't."
They're engaged now.—Seattle Seattle Post-Intelligencer.
