William Farnum will be the attraction at the Oregon theater, beginning today in the William Fox production, "The Lone Star Ranger," a dramatization of the novel of that name by Zane Grey.

The scenic effects that frame the intense dramatic action of this story were photographed in picturesque mountain fastnesses and on the desert.

A few years ago David Graham Phillips presented to the Saturday Evening Post a serial story. The public interest created by this exceptional piece of fiction was so great that the author made for himself and for his publishers, not only a name, but a fortune. As a play, the story achieved instant success and proved the finest starring vehicle of James K. Hackett. In picture form it will be shown at the Liberty theatre today. Lillian Walker, Edith Day, Ramsey Wallace, Corene Uzzel and Ralph Delmore are included in the all-star cast. Harry Revier directed this master production.

William S. Hart's latest picture, "Sand!" presents the famous star in a typical western characterization. According to the story, he is a wandering railroader who finally gets a job at the little southwest border station of Condor. A train robbery has taken place there some time previous. Through his acquaintance with Young, the former agent, and his pretty daughter, Mary, Hart makes an enemy of Barber, the local bad man, who has enough influence to have Bill fired from his job. The star then turns cowpuncher and is able not only to clear up the former robbery but to reveal Barber and his gang in another attempted holdup and win Margaret for his own. Mary Thurman is the girl.

Frederick Orin Bartlett, distinguished for his clever fiction, is the author of both "The Lions' Den" and "The spender," stories which were published in The Saturday Evening Post and converted into plays by Metro for their popular young star, Bert Lytell.

"The Lion's Den" to be seen at the Liberty theatre on Wednesday, next, shows the actor in the character of a young clergyman fighting against great odds for the good of the youth of his parish. It shows his heart-breaking failures and brilliant successes.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven, as the stars, and William Selzer as the director, have created one of the funniest Capitol Comedies ever produced from the story of Bob MacGowan. "Close to Nature," in which William Parsons presents Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven and which Goldwyn distributes will be shown at the Liberty theatre beginning Thursday.

The new Enid Bennett picture, "The Woman in the Sultcase," which is being shown during the latter part of the week, at the Oregon theater, is a treat for feminine movie fans if for no other reason than that the pretty star exhibits a most exquisite wardrobe.

Harold Lloyd in "Captain Kiddo's Kids" is the two reel comedy attraction at the Oregon today. Lougher aids digestion, this comedy out to cure it entirely.

When Tom Moore comes to the Liberty theatre in "Heartsease" beginning Thursday he not only brings his delightful personality, backed by the support of a finished cast, but he portrays the subtle effect of music on a man who, through a vicious assault, has become indifferent to almost all impressions.

Bill and Bob Millard are two rollicking, good looking happy dispositioned chaps, one big and hefty and the other tall and slim and both equally clever as comedians and versatile entertainers whose talents run from cycling to singing, all well seasoned with wholesome comedy patter of the sort that never offends and yet is a decided riot. On the Hippodrome show at the Bligh today.

How to make your wife love you despite herself is a problem confronting many unhappy husbands in this day. One way to solve the problem, one calling for heroic measures, is shown in "The Spark Devine," Vitagraph's newest Alice Joyce picture, which will be shown in the Bligh theatre today.

After scoring a nation-wide success as the "baby vamp" in "Upstairs and Down," Olive Thomas shows her versatility by playing a very dramatic role in her later Selznick picture, "The Spite Bride."

Isn't it just like the contrariness of life that a man who is so bent on evading the law as Harry Carey in his pictures, where he is continually holding up stages, cattle rustling and outlawry in general, should be a crack lawyer in reality? Harry Carey knows all the law there is to know. Maybe that's why he is such a clever outlaw in "A Fight for Love," coming to the Bligh theatre next Tuesday.

Musical comedy, the Parisian Belle's Musical Comedy Co., comes to the Bligh theatre for two days starting Monday with a pretty lot of girls and handsome wardrobe backed by catchy songs and latest comedy hits.

The new policy at the Bligh theatre starting today will be four performances during the day, the vaudeville appearing at 4 p. m., 6 p. m., 8 p. m. and 10 p. m., this being done so as to accommodate the vast crowds that gather at this theatre on vaudeville days.

Arthur La Fleur, a sturdily built young Hercules of pleasing personality, possessing unusual muscular strength, presents a combination of daring consisting of remarkable feats on the Roman rings and a maxillary exhibition that caps the climax of aerial thrills. Billed as "The Human Top" this remarkable exponent of musculature surpasses all predecessors not only in feats performed but length of time consumed in performance without touching the ground. At the Bligh today.

"Light of the Western Stars," featuring Dustin Farnum, will be shown early next month. Watch for opening date.

The Melroy Sisters, undoubtedly one of the daintiest and most delightfully entertaining offerings seen in some time is the act presented by this clever pair of remarkably handsome and fascinating young misses, consisting of singing and dancing of exceptional classness. At the Bligh today.

"Checkers" is the greatest racing play in the world. In this brilliant play of fine thoroughbred horses and thoroughbred men and women, the sharp contrasts are provided by the deep shadows of trickery and intrigue.

HARD COLDS—People whose blood is pure are not nearly so likely to take hard colds as are others. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure; and this great medicine recovers the system after a cold as no other medicine does. Take Hood's.

FANTASTIC.

Elsie Janis, back from England, said at Bar Harbor: "Visits to London dressmakers at present are painful affairs. There is really no limit to the fantastic prices they ask."

Miss Janis smiled whimsically and continued: "A chorus girl friend of mine called on her Dover-street dressmaker before the Ascot races, and, this, she claims, is a true account of their interview: "What can you make me an afternoon dress, like the model on the dark manikin, for?"

"Um-h. Think of a number, madam."

"Very well."

"Double it."

"Yes."

"And add twelve guineas."

"Yes." "Take away the first number you thought of."

"I have."

"Then you have the price of that Georgette model, madam."—Washington Star.
