LAST HOURS OF SESSION MARKED BY GOOD CHEER

Bill for Special Election Delays Adjournment of Legislature

FIGHTS WAGED ON FLOOR

Gasoline Bill Is Beaten and Hard Battles Are Fought

It was exactly 3:15 o'clock of Sunday morning when President Vinton of the Oregon state senate rapped his gavel to announce that the senate had adopted a conference report on amendments to house bill No. 40, calling a special election on May 21 next. Thirty seconds later the senate adjourned. It was 3:19 when the lower house adopted the same report and not quite 3:20 o'clock when Speaker Seymour Jones declared that the special session of the Oregon legislature had adjourned sine die.

The last hours of the session extraordinary were marked with fight and frivolity. In the senate, after the hour of midnight, there were long recesses while a clear desk awaited for more business from the At these periods, while the friendly film of tobacco wreathed about the lamps and over the desks, mellowing the tempers that a week of nervous spin had kept at the point of combustion, the minutes were whiled away with song, recitations and oratory. Senator Louis ful Sunday Morning." Senator John Gill of Portland sang "My Dudeen." and no Oregon lawmaker loves his pipe like the much-esteemed Mr.

CUP OF OLD HERB TEA OFTEN PREVENTS FLU, COLDS AND GRIP

Keeps You in Condition to Throw Off Disease

The very best way to avoid colds, influenza, grip and other winter infec-tions is to keep your body in such good condition it will throw off disease germs. Constipation, biliousness, endaches, are Nature's warnings that your liver, kidneys and bowels are failing to do their duty.

The waste matter which should have been carried away is absorbed like so much poison into your system. Your vitality is so low that you are an easy victim for colds, influenza, and more serious diseases. Get a package of Lincoln Tea and take a cup before retiring. It will soon put you in tune and make you feel like new.

This famous old herb tea is unbiliousness, colds, grip, influenza, rheumatism, etc. Pleasant to take and inexpensive. Does not create the physic habit. Nothing better to give the children for stomach and bowel disorders. 35 cents at all druggists.—Lin-coln Proprietary Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Strange friendships were made. Walter Pierce and C. C. Chapman were observed in tete-a-tete in a remote corner of the senate chamber. They were caught by the sharp eye of Louis Lachmund.

Amendment Delays Bill.'

Adjournment was delayed by consideration of house bill No. 40, introduced by Stewart, and providing for a special election May 21. When the bill reached the senate long after midnight it was found that the measure would have to be amended to include one of the measures that inadvertently was left off the ballot Senator Moser succeeded in having the bill amended in the upper house to include in addition to the enumerated measures referred by the legislature "any other bills on which the referendum might be invoked. This move by Moser was a coup to reinforce the safety of his straight party bill which had passed both houses, and he explained that should the referendum be invoked on that measure it could, under his proposed amendment to bill No. 40, be voted on at the special election, and if adopted by the people be effective immediately, and the straight party ballot be used in the November election. Otherwise the bill could not be voted on until November and there would be no opportunity to use the new form of ballot for two years.

The move caused Senator Pierce, Democratic iron horse, to assail Moser, since the bill is generally interpreted as being in the interests of the Republican party.

Pierce Threatens Moser.

"That measure will get you, Gus," he thundered at Moser. "If ever you are a candidate again I will follow you all over the state and I will spend a lot of money telling the people about this occurrence in the last hour of this legislature which has been called to consider emergency

However, the house refused to concur in the amendment. Upon reporting back to the senate a conference committee was named. Conference with Sam A. Kozer, deputy secretary of state, showed that there was not sufficient time to refer any measures by petition for vote at the special election, and the bill as finally passed does not include the Moser amendment.

Special Election Measures.

The special election as passed enumerates the following measures to be voted on at the special election: H. J. R. No. 7, by Burdick, re-lating to the debts and liabilities of House joint resolution No. 11, by the committee on resolutions, providing that the bonded indebtedness of the state may be 4 per cent of its assessed valuation instead of 2 per cent as at present. House joint resolution No. 8, by

No. 10, by Moser and Banks, amending the constitution to provide that the president of the senate shall succeed to the governorship in event of the death, resignation, removal or inability to serve of the governor, and that the speaker If the house shall be next in line of succession after the president of the senate.

S. J. R. No. 17, remaining over from the session of 1919.

Thomas Flays Session.

Senator Thomas of Jackson couny waged his fight on the fish and game issue to the last ditch. When house bill No. 78, introduced by the committee on game, and designed to egalize the payment of claims on state game farms, applying particularly to the newly purchased farm at Lugene, the legality of which is now in court. Thomas moved for indefinite postponement. In sarcastic language he abraded the legislature for some of the questionable proceedings of the week.

"This is a special session," said Thomas. "That it is special, I suppose, means that we were called to do something out of the ordinary. And we certainly have done that which is foolish and absurd. We have found that the legislature is not confined to any rules. We are not confined to the legislative field, but can go out into any field. There is no field that we have not explored. We have done our legislative work. But not satisfied with that, we have gone into the executive department and shorn the governor of his authority writings, but sometimes he says by electing a fish and game comsomething that is so good I can't mission. Now, in the bill before us. help but commend him for it. Just | we propose to go into the judicial now he has remarked to me that he | field and settle a question that is already in the courts for settlement. know I am in the mihority, but this legislature is running true to form, and I don't want you to go home and have to say you did not know what you were voting on."

Trust is Pummelled. Representative Bean of the house was in the senate chamber, and Senator Norblad attempted to have the courtesy of the floor extended to him se that he might explain the bill from the point of view of its proponents. Unanimous consent was necessary, and Thomas blocked the move by objecting. Thomas' motion for indefinite postponment was voted down. In the vote on the bill only LaFollett, Pierce and Thomas voted

The paving trust which won in he house in the defeat of the Hare bill prohibiting the state highway commission from paying royalties unless the validity of the Warren patents were upheld by the federal court, was whipped in the senate by passage of the Moser bill of the same purport as the Hare bill. But it was a vain licking since there remained no possibility of getting the Moser bill through the house because of the late hour and for the reason that the house was-Handley attempted to rescue the combine from a pummeling in the senate by pointing to the futility of action because of a house rule against consideration of any bill that has been indefinitely postponed. Moser parried the move. Banks tried to have the bill 'indefinitely postponed, but Moser made him sit down Moser quoted from the opinion of Attorney General Brown who said that the best way to settle the question of validity of the patents is in an action in court, to be fought if necessary o the court of last resort.

Think Warrens Fear Court. "I venture to say," said Moser, that if this bill were passed no action would ever be brought by the Warren Construction company. If they have a valid patent, let's pay them what belongs to them. If they have not a valid patent let's not pay them a dollar in rolayties." Banks again moved indefinite postponement which was defeated by vote of 18 to 11. Hurley told of his great friendship for A. J. Hill and Jerry Hoyt, of the Waren Constuction company. "If Senator Hurley knew what know about Jerry Hoyt he would not say he was his friend," said Senator Lachmund. "I am glad to say that I am not a friend of Mr. Hoyt. His conduct has been most reprehensi-

Senator Handley had a sudden awakening to the fact that the special session had been called to consider "emergency legislation," and said he did'nt think the anti-royalty bill was in that class. When his speaking time under the rules had expired and President Vinton rapped for him to sit down, Handley, under the camouflage of eulogizing a deceased member of the senate, took up twice the time, at the end reverting to a defense of the paving trust. Put to a vote the bill carried 17 to 10, two not voting.

The vote was as follows: For-Eberhard, Eddy. Howell, Lachmund, LaFollett, Moser, Nickelsen, Patterson, Porter, Ritner, Smith of Coos and Curry, Smith of Josephine, Strayer, Thomas, Wood, Vinton.

Against-Baldwin, Banks, Bell, Gill. Handley, Huston, Hurley, Jones, Norblad. Shanks.

Gasoline Bill Beaten. The hardest fight of the late aftrnoon session was over house bill 43, introduced by the roads and highways committee, calling for the repeal of the gravity gasoline test and substitution of the boiling test, with an appropriation of $1000 for the installation of necessary equipment. The bill was defeated.

Patterson, Jones, Strayer, Banks and Lachmund vigorously attacked the bill, Jones terming it the "notorious distillate bill." Banks declared that the Standard Oil company admits that gasoline purchased under the bill would carbonize more quickly than that being used in Oregon under the gravity test law. He urged deferring action until the regular session next year.

Senator Wood joined Orton in defending the bill for repeal. There was a sensational clash between Strayer and Handley. Strayer declared that motorists of Idaho were driving 30 and 100 miles to get Oregon gasoline.
