Mrs. W. P. Lord was leader for the afternoon study which was followed by a social and refreshments which were carried out in the red color scheme with the approach of Valentine's day. About 30 matrons were present.

Miss Ila Spaulding is home from the Oregon Agricultural college for the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Spaulding.

Mrs. Richard Camman of Portland who has been a house guest of Mrs. Mildred Robertson Brooks has returned to her home.

The regular monthly meeting of the Hawkeys, which was to have been at the home of Mrs. L. H. Roberts Tuesday evening, has been indefinitely postponed because of the influenza epidemic.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gillingham and Miss Emma Godfrey are in Portland for the week end going down to attend the play "Head Over Heels" in which Miss V. Louise Thompson a former Salem girl takes a prominent part.

Miss Helent Scott of Newberg is a week end house guest of Miss Lora Purvine. Miss Purvine, who has been spending the week in Corvallis with friends returned home yesterday accompanied by her brother, Glenn, from the Oregon Agricultural college.

The many friends of Richard O. Hansen are sorry to learn that he has gone to Portland to live, having recently accepted a position on the copy desk of the Morning Oregonian. Mr. Hansen during the number of years he has lived here was a popular member of the younger set and has a host of friends. Since his return from overseas he has been telegraph editor at The Statesman, and previous to his enlisting he was on the reportorial staff.

Mrs. E. E. Waters is in Portland for a visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. C. Knighton.

A very distinguished and fascinating visitor in the city is Mrs. George Pendle of London, England, who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller at the Hotel Marion. During England's war with Germany, Mrs. Pendle was an active worker in the American Red Cross hospital.

The girls of the W. A. M. S. Embroidery club will meet at the home of Miss Goldie Wetzel, 415 North Cottage street for the regular business meeting and social.

ESSAY ON THE LEISURE CLASSES

There aren't any. This is evident from the super-illustrated hints for Christmas shopping. Behold this twenty-two room Tudor mansion standing four blocks back from the radio in its own grounds. Does the mistress of this mansion spend her time on bridge, amateur theatricals and beauty parlors? Not at all. She is there right in front of the house, rapturously thanking her husband for the gift of an electric washing machine which will make her Monday so much easier. Behold the magnificent young couple on the way to the opera, he in full regalia of open-face clothes, silk hat and fur coat, and she in a $2000 cloak. How do they manage it? By introducing a double entry system of household accounts, with special reference to casserole cooking. Behold this handsome living room with well groomed father and fashionably dressed mother looking up cheerily from their newspaper by the lamp, to greet daughter entering in furs and high spirits. Where does she come from—the executive committee of the junior debutantes? No, she has just got a job with a telephone company. There are no leisure classes.—New York Evening Post.

The professor was telling the class in English history of the Elizabethan era. He turned to one of the young men:

"How old was Elizabeth?"

The young man wore a far away expression. "Eighteen on her last birthday, sir," came the reply.—Lippincott's.
