

OIL WELLS FATTEN PURSE OF PRETTY LITTLE INDIAN GIRL

(By Hiram L. Lindbeck)

Endowed with wealth beyond the fondest dreams of her school mates and companions and a weekly income which far exceeds the annual stipend of the average man, Mary Ware, 18-year-old Osage Indian heiress of Pawhuska, Okla., chose to pursue her education at the Chemawa Indian school near here rather than at one of the more exclusive and fashionable girls' schools whose greater comforts she could well afford, simply because she desired to remain among her own people. And Mary's preference for the people of her own race extends even beyond the schoolroom; for when she marries—although she denies any ambitions in that direction just yet—the man of her choice must be a man with Indian blood in his veins, but for all that he must be an educated man. For Mary Ware cannot excuse ignorance on the part of any American citizen.

Mary Ware's fortune extends well beyond the million-dollar mark. How much beyond Mary does not know, as the safekeeping of her fortune is in the hands of her guardian, J. L.

Miller, Pawhuska, Okla., attorney, with whom she makes her home when not in school or traveling. Neither does Mary bother her pretty head about the details of her income, which she knows to be at least $18,000 a week and is said to be considerably more. For Mary Ware is a member of that richest of all tribes of American Indians, the Osages, upon whose government allotted lands Dame Fortune has graciously smiled, sprinkling the once barren Oklahoma prairies, over which her forbears were wont to roam, with oil wells in such abundance as to make her own race, but of her less fortunate white sisters as well.

Has Two Ambitions.

Two ambitions have dominated the life of Mary Ware—a desire for an education and a desire to travel. Previous to enrolling at Chemawa, she attended Crescent college, a girls' school at Eureka Springs, Ark. Her desire to be among her own people, however, prompted her to seek a change. Her ambition to attend Carlisle, where two of her four brothers were pursuing their education was frustrated by the closing down of that institution at the outset of the war with Germany. Haskell institute was full to overflowing, Chicago, in an adjoining county to that of her home county of Osage, Okla., in which one of her two sisters was enrolled, failed to appeal to her desire to see a little more of the world. Therefore she chose Chemawa.

Her enrollment in this institution required a special dispensation on the part of the Indian department, as attendance at this school is limited to Uncle Sam's Indian wards of the western states and Alaska. But this special dispensation was finally forthcoming and here she is, paving her own way, as is required of all students whose finances permit, and here she expects to remain until she is graduated next June.

Is Learning Needlecraft.

After that she expects to travel. Last summer she devoted to a trip to Alaska. Next summer she will visit the Hawaiian Islands before returning to her home at Pawhuska, where her aged mother, four brothers and two sisters live, not in the typical Indian tepee, as romance would have

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their effort to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

it, but in a modern home such as civilization dictates.

Mary's efforts at school this year are devoted especially to perfecting herself in the art of needlecraft, at which she is declared by her teachers to be an adept. This, of course, is in addition to her regular academic course. She has already mastered the art of cookery, including dish-washing and other drudgery included to the culinary art, which she regards as a very essential part of every girl's education, whether she ever expects to make use of her knowledge in this direction later or not.

And Mary does not, for two very good reasons—first, because her fortune makes such a course unnecessary, and, secondly, because the pursuit of her ambition to study and travel will leave little time for anything else. For Mary does not intend to bid goodbye to study when she graduates from Chemawa. To the contrary, she expects to enter into even more strenuous study in perfecting herself in music, both vocal and instrumental.

Mary is Democratic.

At home Mary Ware was wont to split the desert atmosphere, not mentioned on an Indian pony, as fancy would picture an Indian maid, but seated in the driver's seat of a powerful modern automobile—her very own. And the absence of this automobile has been Mary's only cause for regret since her arrival at Chemawa. For the car was sold by her guardian when she decided to come west.

"But he'll buy me another one just like it just as quick as I get back," she declares expectantly.

Mary Ware is to all appearances merely one of the 650 students at Chemawa. She has made it a point to make herself one of the student body, limiting her demands to the more modest needs of those with whom she associates. She is popular with her fellow students, enters heartily into the social life of the student body, shares the duties that fall to the lot of all students at the school, and never fails to include one or more of her girl companions in any good fortune that comes her way. Her teachers speak of her as a sensible, generous and democratic girl, truly 100 per cent American.
