

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

The Story of a Honeymoon

A Wonderful Romance of Married Life Wonderfully Told by ADELE GARRISON

CHAPTER DXXIX

HOW MOTHER GRAHAM FARED WHERE MADGE FAILED

It was just after breakfast that I turned away from the telephone. "The movers can't come. I'll bet 'cooky that's it." "You win the cooky," I returned with a feeble attempt at merriment, although I felt more like weeping than joking. I had been so stunned by the gruff announcement of the man at the other end of the wire to make any comment, and he had hung up the telephone before I had recovered my breath. He evidently was afraid of the protests to which he might have to listen. "Is this Mrs. Graham?" he had asked, and in answer to my "yes" had blurted out: "Terrible sorry. Mrs. Graham, but the roads are so bad we can't possibly get up there to your place with the truck, and we can't get hold of any horses for love or money. We've tried everywhere so we'll just have to throw up the job. If you can't find anybody else and can wait until the roads get better we'll be glad to do the job, but just now it's impossible." "Margaret!" My mother-in-law's voice was as grim as her face, which looked as if it were carved out of granite. "Do you mean to tell me that you let that man tell you he couldn't come, and never opened your head to tell him he had to come, no matter what the excuse?" Mother Graham is irritated. "I didn't have any chance, Mother," I returned. "He talked very hurriedly and hung up the receiver before I had any opportunity to answer." "I suppose he gave the roads as an excuse," Dicky said, and his airy nonchalant air irritated me more than his mother's militant disapproval of my easy-going ways. He had such a detached air, as if the moving were some other family's problem than his own. "Well, they are awful, but that probably isn't the real reason. He's no doubt got an easier job somewhere and has thrown us over." "Oh, I don't think so, Dicky," I protested. "Don't you remember seeing those moving trucks stalled in the mud last week? And it's been thawing and freezing alternately ever since. It must be worse than ever now." "Margaret, I could shake you!" my mother-in-law exclaimed irritably. "Here you expect the movers tomorrow morning, they disappoint you and all you do is stand around and make excuses for them. And you're about as bad as Richard," she went on turning to her son. "Why aren't you at that telephone making that fellow understand that if he has taken the contract to move you, he's got to do it. If he carries your stuff out on his shoulders?" "Because it wouldn't be the slightest use," Dicky replied lazily. "You don't know these particular natives, Mother. They're the most independent creatures on earth. They have an idea that if they consent to do any work for you you ought to go down on your knees in gratitude for their condescension. And they do it in their own good time and way or not at all just as it suits them."

Be Young In Body, Mind and Looks Despite Your Years

How often you have wished that you could indulge in the strenuous exercise of out door sports with the vigor and enthusiasm of youth! But the end of the week finds you all in—you are tired, listless and lack the energy to get out for a vigorous walk or a round of the links—or any other exercise that requires much physical exertion. Many a man, even in his middle forties, has a vague feeling that he is "getting old"—and right at a time when he should be at his very best physically. And he is growing old, not in the sense that the years are pressing heavily upon him—but in the sense that his vital forces are wasting away faster than Nature replaces the worn out tissues.

Thousands—yes millions—of people find themselves in this condition early in life. And there is no excuse for it. You can check that tendency to grow old. You can carry your youth with its joys and enthusiasm into your 70's and 80's. But you must give Nature all the help you can. The best assistance you can find—assistance of a sound, constructive character is in the use of lum for the "feeble-minded," she snapped. "I told you so," Dicky drawled, and his mother was so exhausted that she didn't reprove him. "And now may I ask, what in Sam Hill we're going to do?" He looked at me, and I saw that in a breath he had shifted the entire responsibility upon my shoulders. I had engaged the movers, because he said he was too busy to do it, and he evidently meant to leave the heart-breaking problem entirely to my hands. (To be continued)

HOFER RAPS FARMER WHO OPPOSES DOGS

(Continued from page 1) asked a conference with city officials to see if an ordinance cannot be worked out that will allow a city resident to keep a dog in a humane manner, subject to any license fee or police regulations the city may impose. Because a person lives in the city and does not happen to be a land owner should not deprive his family of any protection or comfort or pleasure they can get by owning a dog. The present city law imposes great cruelty and involves expense with no revenues accruing to the city.

IN A SOCIAL WAY

By RUTH LENORE FISHER

THE auto show in Portland is the motif for a number of motor parties to go from here this week. Some have gone here for several days, others motor down for the day and still others just spend the evening in Portland. Mrs. Charles K. Spaulding, Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Spaulding, and Mrs. Roy Mills motored down last night joining Mr. Mills who was already there, for the evening at the show.

Mrs. E. Cooke Patton is enjoying a several days' stay in Portland with relatives.

Miss Nell Sykes is home again after a year spent in Siberia doing Red Cross work, where she was a dietitian. Miss Sykes spent a very exciting year and is glad to be home again. She arrived late Wednesday night from San Francisco where she landed several days ago on the U. S. S. Great Northern from Vladivostok.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Larkin Williams had as their guest yesterday, the former's brother, Captain Sherwood Williams, of La Grande, who has just recently returned from France where he was with the Red Cross. This is his first visit in the valley since his return.

Mr. and Mrs. Ercei Kay were in Portland yesterday to spend the day playing golf on the country club links there.

Mrs. B. C. Sherman of Portland has arrived in Salem for several weeks visit with her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Culver, before going to California to spend the summer months.

The many friends of Mrs. W. H. Dancy will be glad to know that she has recovered from a severe attack of the grip which has confined her to her home for a week.

Miss Annette Colgritt has returned from Portland where she passed a several days' stay with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Albert and Mrs. J. C. Griffith motored to Portland Wednesday and spent the day enjoying the auto show.

The War Mothers will hold their monthly meeting tomorrow afternoon in the Y. W. C. A. rooms. It is urged that a large number of War Mothers attend for plans will be made for a permanent memorial for the men who served during the war. Refreshments will be served during the afternoon.

The daughters of the American Revolution will meet Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Seymour Jones at her home 1656 Chemeketa street. It promises to be a very delightful afternoon for Paul Wapato, winner of the Willamette university oratorical contest, and who will represent the university at the state contest will deliver his oration.

PLAN IS FAVORED TO ASSIST WORKERS

(Continued from page 1) discourteous treatment are matters which laborers naturally submit first to the welfare man. He learns the details of the trouble from the men themselves. If he cannot make the adjustment satisfactorily, his business is to consult with the employer direct. Serious labor troubles are sometimes prevented in this way. If find that employers are usually willing to grant any reasonable request or make any improvements in the working conditions that labor may

To Prevent Flu and Colds

Three Rules You Should Observe

- (1) Sleep 8 hours—With windows wide open
- (2) Eat wisely—exercise regularly—don't worry
- (3) Avoid crowds and persons having colds

Flu This Year is Milder

The rules given above, recommended by the New York City Board of Health, are guides to good health at all times. Particularly should they be followed just now, when influenza is again abroad in the land. Authorities agree, however, that the flu this year is less severe than in the last epidemic—the attacks are shorter and the death rate lower. In fact, many physicians insist that the epidemics now being reported from so many sections are not flu at all, but simply the old-fashioned grip.

Keep the Air Passages Healthy

While we know very little more about the flu now than we did last year—the germ itself has never been positively identified—still most authorities agree that the flu germs are breathed in. If the system is in good shape and the membrane or lining of the air passages is in healthy condition—these germs are thrown off.

Treat All Colds Promptly

Above all, keep free from colds, as colds irritate the lining of the air passages and make them real breeding grounds for germs. Prompt use of Vicks' VapoRub aids in preventing colds. For head colds, sore throat or hoarseness, rub Vicks over the throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel cloth. For deep chest colds, severe sore throat or bronchitis, hot wet towels should first be applied to the throat, chest and back

Use of External Treatments for Colds Increasing

Vick's VapoRub is the discovery of a North Carolina druggist who found how to combine in salve form the standard time-tested remedies, Camphor—Menthol—Eucalyptus—Thyme, etc.—so that when the salve is applied to the body but these ingredients are liberated in the form of vapors. Vicks is particularly recommended for children's croup or colds, since it is externally applied and therefore can be used freely and often without the slightest harmful effects.

The best evidence of the value of Vicks is the steadily increasing number of people who have been converted to the use of this "outside" treatment. Beginning with the customers of a small retail drug store, the use of Vicks has grown year by year—state by state—until now more than 17 million jars are used annually. And this in spite of the fact that Vicks is a new form of treatment to many folks in the North and West. Vicks can be had at all druggists in three sizes—30c, 60c, or $1.20.

Popular Silverton Girl Recovers From Illness

SILVERTON, Or., Feb. 27.—(Special to The Statesman)—Miss Alta Morley has accepted a position as bookkeeper at the Steelhammer Drug store.

Miss Elvira Vickstrom is out again after a severe attack of the influenza.

George Tell of Portland spent a few days at Silverton this week. Mr. Tell was looking over the country with the intention of possibly locating.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Larson and children are planning on going back to their home in Montana the first part of April.

Adam Jacobson who has been visiting relatives at Silverton since the first part of December returned to his home in Minnesota this week.

Franklin—He told me that I was the first girl he ever loved. Second Franklin—When was it? First Franklin—Monday night. Second Franklin—Then he lied to me on Tuesday.—Bridgehead Sentinel.

The exiled Reds are in Petrograd. "Ah, there, stay there," as the old-fashioned song used to run.

Standard Merchandise AGAINST CUT-PRICE CULLS

IF YOU WANTED a cow you wouldn't buy a cull just because the price was low; you'd rather pay more for one that gave a good quality and quantity of milk. A cull horse would be dear at any price.

It Is the Same Way With Merchandise

The Culls Cost Less--the Standard Lines Wear Longer

If a $3.00 Standard Overall out-wears two to three pairs of $1.98 off-brand Cull Overalls, or a $9.00 pair of Solid Leather Shoes out-wears two or three pairs of $5.00 or $6.00 part paper, Cull Shoes

You Are Wasting Money Buying Culls

It's the length of time it wears, and the hard service they stand, that makes any article a real bargain
