

SPLIT SESSION IS HELD REMEDY FOR MOB SCENE

LaGrande Senator Would Prevent Log-Rolling During Last Hours of Session

WILD NIGHT DESCRIBED

Lawmaker To Frame Amendment Patterned After California Statutes

Walter M. Pierce, member of the state senate and well known in Salem, in an address before the Press Club in Portland a few days ago, advocated a split session of the legislature as a remedy for the "disgraceful scenes" that have characterized the closing hours of past legislatures. He intends initiating a constitutional amendment on the subject at the next general election. "I have attended four regular and two special sessions of the legislature, and I have witnessed any wild or riotous scene that has ever marked the close of the last special session," said Senator Pierce. "The bills came to the senate in mass formation. In consideration of road bills one senator would arise and with an air of solemnity would ask if the senator of some other county believed there would room in his county for the road. Upon being assured with equal solemnity that the county had sufficient room the first senator would vote in favor of the bill. "It was a disgrace to the state and many of the senators walked out of the chamber in disgust. I believe that the plan I have outlined is the remedy for the present unsatisfactory plan."

Cannery Operates Full Season and Cares for Much of Fruit Products

(The following article, submitted to The Statesman some days ago by a wide awake resident of Grand Island, has been saved for the Industrial and Development Edition, for which it is eminently appropriate.)

Grand Island is an island of about 4000 acres in the Willamette river about 15 miles down the river from Salem. The soil is of the best, a rich sandy loam, and can be easily irrigated with water from the Willamette river and sloughs. Alfalfa on Grand Island, without irrigation, is cut three times in one season for hay. Corn grows as good as it does in Iowa, so dairying is a profitable industry. Better peaches than are found on

He says of our present dog law: 'The present city law imposes great cruelty and involves expense with no revenues accruing to the city.' It seems the Colonel now has his feet crossed on the pedals of his fivver. "Thank you, that is all for this time. The Colonel is a good fellow. Good-bye." And the farmer walked away.

Portland Worker Hurt in Long Distance Fall

PORTLAND, Feb. 27.—Clifford Holmes, aged 22, a window washer, fell from the fourth story of a store in the retail district here today. He crashed through the glass canopy on the side of the building and struck the crowded sidewalk. He was seriously injured and taken to a hospital where it was said he had a broken leg and severe cuts, but probably would recover.

Grand Island cannot be found anywhere. Loganberries are extra nice and juicy. Melons and tomatoes yield well every year. Sorghum and sugar beets also do well. All fruits, vegetables and grains that grow in this climate can be grown successfully on Grand Island.

Grand Island has a standard two-room school house, and a "hot dish" is served with the children's lunches every day. A steel bridge connects Grand Island with the mainland on the Yamhill county side of the island. The county roads on Grand Island are graded so that automobiles and trucks can travel on them. Grand Island is one of the best natural boat landings on the Willamette river.

NELL SYKES RETURNS FOR FOREIGN LANDS

(Continued from page 1) gee children brought there from Moscow and Petrograd where typhus and cholera were claiming thousands. "These children, robbed of mother's care and deprived of sufficient nourishment," said Miss Sykes, "were given the personal attention of our corps and later returned to the land of their nativity healthy in body and sound in mind." Sanitary conditions in Russia, according to Miss Sykes, are almost unknown, and it is due to the lack of modern health regulations that thousands upon thousands of people have died there during the past few years.

"Commercial industry is almost at a standstill in Russia," said Miss Sykes, "and practically all of the food supplies are brought into the country from Germany. This situation is not due to the lack of fertile lands, but is the natural consequence following destruction of the railroads and other lines of transportation. The products of field and shop it would not be long until the country could reclaim itself and provide employment for those who would toil. As it is today, there is no telling how long the present state of affairs will exist, or when the country will be made self sustaining.

Food Not Appreciated. "Although hardly believable, the people of Russia did not seem to appreciate the food and other supplies distributed by the Red Cross for the reason that there was no charge. The recipients of this food harbor the idea that some day they will be called upon to compensate America for its kindness, despite the fact that they were told again and again that the operations of the Red Cross were gratis and not for the purpose of producing a profit."

Miss Sykes was one of a number of Red Cross workers who returned to the United States a few days ago on the transport Great Northern. They came into port at San Francisco, from where they left for their respective homes. Miss Sykes enlisted in the government service in June, 1919, and on the 19th of that month sailed from Seattle. Before entering the service she had taught in the Salem schools for a number of years and at one time was at the head of the home economics department. She is now visiting with her brother in this city and probably will resume her educational duties in the near future. Miss Sykes brought home with her a number of interesting photographs as well as trinkets and other articles indicating the customs of the people in Russia and Siberia.

Real Wonder-Worker For Wrinkled Faces

Those who have tried all sorts of so-called "wrinkle removers" in a vain effort to lose those unwelcome traces of age, illness or worry, can scarcely find words to express their delight with the wonderful saskolite formula, one they have given a trial. The success of this method is due not alone to its marvelous effectiveness—upon the deepest lines and crowfeet, as well as upon the very fine ones—but also to its surprisingly quick action and its entire harmlessness. Its simplicity is another commendable feature. One need only dissolve an ounce of powdered saskolite in a half pint of witch hazel and bathe the face in this solution. At once a remarkable transformation is effected. It is not only the effect on wrinkles and creases that is so noticeable, but facial contour is markedly improved and the face looks much younger. One should be sure to ask the druggist for the powdered saskolite. The lotion, being so refreshing, is particularly grateful to tired faces.

POLICE ARE WARNED OF ALLEGED THREATS

(Continued from page 1) during the shooting. The son has testified that an attack on the march was unprovoked. Eubanks Sr. was asked if his son had not told him that the Legion men first attacked the hall, but objection by the state was sustained. Eubanks testified that he attended a meeting of businessmen at the Elks club in Centralia last October 20, said to have been called for the purpose of discussing the I.W.W. Virtually every question then propounded by defense counsel was objected to after Eubanks made this statement, the jury being dismissed and counsel engaging in lengthy and sharp legal discussion.

Conspiracy is Alleged.

Vanderveer said he sought to prove an alleged conspiracy, and that threats were made at this meeting to run the I.W.W. out of town. It was then, Vanderveer declared while arguing, that F. B. Hubbard, president of the Centralia Protective league, said: "It's a damned outrage. If I were chief of police I'd get rid of them in 24 hours. The court ruling came at the end of the arguments, after the jury had been recalled and Vanderveer had again attempted to secure answers to ques-

PLANE CRASHES THROUGH SPACE FOR FIVE MILES

Aviator Suffers Partial Blindness and Other Less Serious Injuries

ALL RECORDS SMASHED

Scientific Record of Flyer Is Welcomed by Followers of Novel Game

DAYTON, Ohio, Feb. 27.—An airplane carrying Major R. W. Schroeder, chief test pilot at McCook field today fell over five miles after reaching an altitude of 36,629 feet, said to be 3,270 feet higher than the world's record.

Though the major is in a hospital suffering from shock and temporary partial blindness, instruments on the machine indicate that it fell more than five miles in two minutes. While still 2,000 feet above the ground, the airplane righted itself and glided to a graceful landing. When the plane settled, attendants who rushed toward it found Major Schroeder sitting erect in the machine, apparently lifeless. For a brief time people were sure a meteor had appeared in the sky. They had mistaken the trail of vapor escaping from the machine as it sped downward for a "stranger in the heavens."

Major Schroeder lost consciousness when his machine had reached a height recorded by instruments as 36,629 or 37,020 feet higher than the world's record, established by Roland Rollis last summer. His nose numbed and his eyes frozen shut in a temperature said to have been 67 degrees below zero, Schroeder regained partial consciousness when 2,000 feet above the earth, in time to right his machine and prevent it from crashing to the ground out of control.

Altitude figures from the barograph reading indicated he reached a height of 37,000 feet, and when calibrated by Captain Harrison W. Fickinger, showed an official altitude of 36,629 feet, a new world's record. The mark set by Major Schroeder again gives him the record which Rollis won from him July 30, 1919, with an official altitude of 30,300 feet and later increased in a second flight to 31,000 feet.

Major Schroeder's first altitude record was made at Dayton, September 18, 1918, when he flew a Bristol fighting machine to an altitude of 28,900 feet. Leaving the field at 10:45 o'clock this morning, Major Schroeder battled for two hours and five minutes against changing air currents and in a bitter cold atmosphere until he reached an altitude of 36,629 feet. Riding alone, almost seven miles above the earth in a polar climate and against a wind like Peary encountered that blows away at 100 miles an hour or more, Major Schroeder fought foot by foot to drive his plane higher.

Officers of the field say his machine must have fallen into a tail spin, as otherwise his plane would have collapsed when he regained consciousness and righted it after the descent of more than five miles.

The sudden change in air pressure from less than three pounds at 26,000 feet to 14.7 pounds at sea level, crushed his gasoline tanks and caused them to collapse, besides jolting Major Schroeder to his senses.

Modern inventions, unthought of before the war, made not only Major Schroeder's voyage possible, but also enabled him to return with an accurate scientific record. His machine was equipped with a Moss supercharger and was the same as used August 2, 1919, when he broke the world's speed record for high altitude by flying 137 miles an hour at a height of 18,400 feet.

The Liberty motor delivered full 400-horse power even though at high altitude. Major Schroeder was dressed heavier than any polar explorer. He literally was wrapped in flexible electric heaters. His flying suit was lined with the fur of Chinese mink-wang dogs and between the fur and outer lining flexible electric heat units, connected by silk-covered wires with the dynamo of the engine heated the entire outfit.

tions to which the state objected. William White, sign painter of Tacoma, testified that it was he who found the disparaged 38-55 rifle under a sign board near Centralia, which the state alleges was used in the slaying of Grimm. The testimony of White was contradictory to that given by E. J. Lindley, Centralia advertising man, owner of the signboard, who testified as a state's witness that he found the weapon. White said he found the rifle and that Lindley paid him $10 for it, saying that he knew Post.
