Some folks thing I have a barrel of money and have said that they would bury me in a silver coffin for what I have left when I die, and if I could make a covenant with some of these Salem women to live with 'em a hundred years I would close both bargains, yet all the money I have I made on the farm. If you can sell the acreage for small farm within 50 miles of Salem I might take it for first payment. W .S. McKinney, Salem, Ore.

"I don't suppose you'll believe if I tell you." she replied.

"Of course I will. Why shouldn't I? I'm dying to hear all about it. Was it while you were fighting at the Marne?"

"No, it was just after I had graduated from West Point. I had an engagement to elope with a lady, but she insisted on postponing it on account of rain."
