

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

The Story of a Honeymoon

A Wonderful Romance of Married Life Wonderfully Told by ADELE GARRISON

CHAPTER 567

WHO IS THIS NURSE KATHERINE BELIEVES SHE RECOGNIZES?

I started perceptibly at the low knock that sounded upon Lillian Underwood's library door as the mistress of the house was announcing that none of the valuable papers—with which she as a member of the secret service of the country was entrusted—had been disturbed. My nerves had been stretched taut at the bizarre happenings of the hours that passed and I was not at all surprised when Lillian, Katherine Son-not and I had undergone during Lillian's inspection of the cunningly contrived wall floor and fireplace hiding places in her library. I was thoroughly annoyed at myself, however, for my visible nervousness, especially as Katherine did not betray that she had heard the knock.

Lillian cast an approving smile at Katherine as she moved toward the door. "Bravo!" she said softly, and Katherine's answering smile showed that she understood and appreciated the approving comment. I felt almost pettishly hurt at Lillian's singling out of Katherine for approval.

even though I realized how little I deserved praise. But I resolved that never again would I show any evidence of "nerves" while associated with Lillian in this work to which she had pledged us, and in which I felt it a signal honor to be engaged.

Giving a last swift look around to see that there was no possible indication of the search which she had just conducted, Lillian swept back the heavy velvet curtains and unlocked the door, disclosing a tall woman in nurse's garb.

Is It Really She?

"I would like to go out for a short walk if you do not mind, Mrs. Underwood," she said in a carefully modulated, rather deep contralto voice. "I have a headache, and Mrs. Morton is very comfortable. Marion is talking with her, and I am sure she will need nothing until I return."

"Of course, Miss Burke," Lillian returned heartily. "Stay as long as you like. I will attend to any of Mrs. Morton's wants until you return."

"Thank you." The nurse turned away, and as she did so my eyes fell upon Katherine's face. She had a queer, startled look in her eyes, which were fixed upon the nurse's retreating back. She watched her out of sight, and then turned to Lillian.

"Is her name Burke?" she asked abruptly. "B-u-r-k-e?"

"Yes," Lillian answered. "Why?"

"Because it was Berg, the last time I saw her," Katherine returned quietly. "B-e-r-g."

"Where did you see her?" Lillian's words came sharp and fast. She had closed the door and was leaning against it.

"She was a classmate of mine in training school," Katherine returned. "and at that time her English was broken. We used to dislike her because of her constant comparisons of this country with her native land, always to the disparagement of America."

"And she has professed to be violently anti-German while here, although I've really had little conversation with her, for she keeps much to herself. Of course, she is the one who's been in here, but how did she guess the combination of that wall safe? That's what worries me."

"She may not have guessed it," Katherine replied. "She is very shrewd, and has a way of making friends with servants, or she did while at the school. I think you'll find that she has made Betty admire her, and that in an unguarded moment Betty has revealed the secret of the wall safe's spring of which you said she stumbled upon one day. Then, of course, she would naturally investigate it."

"Of course," Lillian drew a long breath. "Well, I'll have to call Betty on the carpet. She'll lie, of course, but I can always tell when she is lying. Stay here until I come back."

She went swiftly down the stairs, and it was fully 75 minutes before she returned.

"I got it out of her finally, and now she's in her room, indulging in one of her weepy tantrums," she announced. "We'll have to finish the dinner, but that will be a lark. I'm so relieved to know that the lady wasn't clever enough to find the thing herself. And she didn't get any information from the safe, nothing but my own things. By the way, Katherine, do you think she recognized you?"

"Remember, No Confidences."

"I'm sure she didn't," Katherine said. "She was looking at you all the time, and at my first glimpse of her I moved behind Madge, where I could see her without her catching sight of my face."

"Then everything is safe, so far," said Lillian. "I'll smuggle you out of the house after dinner, and guard against her meeting you before. But she rarely leaves Mrs. Morton's room. Madge, I can see your first job looming up before you."

"What do you mean?" I asked, a bit startled.

"You'll have to stay in my library when I'm not there," Lillian returned. "until we trap her. But don't look so startled. You won't have to begin tonight."

Then with one of her swift transitions of mood she stretched out her arms above her head and then relaxed them.

"A truce to work for a while," she said. "I'm going to get hold of Dicky and Jack, and have them come over to this dinner which we have to get ourselves. We'll put them to work for their eats. But remember, no confidences!"

OLDER BOYS TO ASSEMBLE

County Convention of Youngsters Is Slated for Middle of Next Month

The Older Boys' conference for Marion county will be held in Salem May 14 to 16. Plans were made Sunday by the county Y. M. C. A. organization for the entertainment of the boys and for a varied and helpful program which will include a number of well known speakers and "Y" workers.

The work of the county Y. M. C. A. for the year was reviewed by County Secretary Walters. Activities include the organization of Hi-Y clubs at Aurora, Silverton, Stayton and Woodburn, with a total membership of 80. The purpose of these organizations is to promote good fellowship and clean living among boys of the high school age.

It is planned to establish a permanent summer camp somewhere in the county and a special committee was appointed at the last meeting to find a proper location.

All 28 members of the county committee were present. They are: A. E. Austin, Salem, chairman; F. E. Calster, Silverton, vice chairman; Paul Wallace, Salem, treasurer; Ed D. Smith, Jefferson, recording secretary; L. C. McShare, Hubbard; I. L. Hershberger, Hubbard; H. F. Butterfield, Woodburn; John S. Harper, Gervais; B. T. Yonell, Silverton; O. G. The Kidneys and the Skin. If the kidneys are weak or torpid, the skin will be pimply or blotchy. Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens and stimulates the kidneys, and clears the complexion. By thoroughly purifying the blood it makes good health.

POPS AND KIDS GATHER MONDAY

George Edward Lewis, Famous Alaskan Adventurer, Will Address Them

Another of those fascinating "pop and kid" suppers of the Salem Y. M. C. A. is to be given next Monday night. The speaker will be George Edward Lewis, famous Alaskan adventurer, who will have with him for the delectation of the younger generation and the generation that will, for that night, feel younger, five reels of Alaska pictures. He will bring with him, also, his remarkable collection of relics and souvenirs in which every boy, both live and has-been, will be wildly interested.

Every boy who is a member of the boy's department of the association is invited to accompany his dad to this supper (which will be free) and bring with him a boy friend and his dad. It is generally understood that if dads are not available, substitutes of good character and reputation will be expected.

The local "Y" is proud to announce at this time that full privileges of the association have now been extended to 250 boys between 14 and 19 years old who are now members.

Said Theodore ROOSEVELT:

"EVEN men who are not professedly religious must, if they are frank, admit that no community permanently prospers, either morally or materially, unless the church is a real and vital element in the community life."

- Put a church in a town and all real estate values increase.
- Put a church in a town and it becomes at once a center of inspiration for better schools, better politics and general community improvement.
- Put a church in a town and you insure a community where law and order reign, where the personal and property rights of men and women are respected, where children grow up trained in the ideals that have made America great.
- Kill the church and you kill the Voice that is constantly calling men to more unselfish living.
- Kill the church and you cut the nerve of your hospitals, your colleges, your civic organizations and even of respect for government itself.
- Thirty denominations, realizing that the problems facing them are too great to be solved by any one denomination alone, are cooperating in a great forward campaign under the name of the Interchurch World Movement.
- No modern business could have made a more scientific survey of the task than these denominations have made. No budgets could be more carefully drawn. You have the satisfaction of knowing that every dollar you give has its post of duty assigned to it in advance.
- Every dollar for a better America and a better world. For an American where the ideals of Washington and Lincoln and Roosevelt will continue to grow strong. When your church calls on you in the campaign week of April 25th give, and give with your heart as well as your pocketbook.

THE STRIKE OF THE SWITCHMEN

TO THE PUBLIC

San Francisco, Calif., 6:05 p. m., April 11, 1920

Strikers who have not returned to work are being replaced by new men. This will be swiftly and vigorously followed until normal service is restored.

The strike was without notice to the railroad.

It is not authorized by any railroad brotherhood.

It violates working agreements, violates the rules of the brotherhoods to which the men belong, and violates the laws of the United States (section 301, transportation act of 1920).

It is in defiance of the orders of the railroad brotherhoods executives, and has neither the sympathy nor support of the overwhelming majority of railroad employees.

New men will be given seniority rights in order of employment, wages are sixty-four cents an hour for eight hours' work a day and ninety-six cents an hour for overtime. Good board and lodging are arranged for at the job. Protection assured. Apply to superintendent, room 32 second floor union station, Portland.

J. H. Dyer, General Manager.
