

SOCIETY

By RUTH LENORE FISHER

The lecture by Howard Everts Weed, landscape architect of Portland, to be given Friday evening in the Salem public library is being looked forward to by a host of Salem folks, many of whom know Mr. Weed personally, and who plan to show him a number of social courtesies during his one-day stay in the city.

Mr. Weed is to come here upon the invitation of the Salem Arts League, and will furnish the second of the league's programmed numbers this winter. Mr. Weed will talk upon "A More Beautiful Salem" and will illustrate his lecture with attractive slides.

Mr. Weed has lectured all over the United States, eulogistic press comments following his every appearance. He is the head of the Weed Landscape nursery, located near Portland, which is annually visited by many Salem motorists, especially during the peony and iris season, when acre upon acre of iridescent blooms may be seen.

Clyde E. Whitman and Miss Nancy Margaret Hicks, both of Woodburn, were married yesterday at the Presbyterian parsonage by Rev. T. S. Anderson. They were accompanied by the bride's mother and Mr. and Mrs. Elburn T. Sims at whose marriage just two months before Mr. Whitman and Miss Hicks had acted as best man and maid of honor.

Mrs. Dan J. Fry was hostess Tuesday night when she entertained the members of the Cherry City club and a few guests at a dinner party. The rooms were decorated in a profusion of yellow spring flowers arranged in art baskets. Yellow was also used in the table decorations. The guests who included besides the 16 members of the club, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Fry, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Walsh, spent the evening playing cards.

After the regular Eastern Star meeting Tuesday evening a social hour was enjoyed at which about 125 guests were present. After a very enjoyable program light refreshments were served.

Mrs. Ada Strong spent the first of the week with friends in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. George Riches entertained Saturday evening at a farewell party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Smith who leave soon for their new home in Brighton, Canada. The guests who included Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Glover, Mr. and Mrs. John Brophy, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wiedmer and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wendroth, spent a pleasant evening playing five hundred.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Rober of Manning, Ia., who have been spending the winter in Los Angeles are the guests for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Laflar. They are also visiting Mrs. Elizabeth Breckenridge and daughter Grace, who with the Laflars were friends of the Robers in Iowa.

Twenty-six young people from Williamette university enjoyed a Dutch treat dinner at the B. L. Steeves home Tuesday evening. Yellow and gold tulips and daisies in the university colors formed the attractive centerpiece for the table. Unique place cards carrying out the college idea were also used. Places were laid for Misses Pauline Remington, Fay McKinnis, Marie Corner, Winifred Eyre, Edna Gilbert, Sybil Smith, Myrtle Mason, Mildred Garrett, Evelyn DeLong, Charlotte Croisan, Fay Peringer, Muriel Steves, and Mrs. Julia Street of Spokane, Messrs. Loren Basler, Robin Fisher, Francis Creamer, Edwin Socolofsky, Ray Aterbury, David Lawson, Lester Day, Paul Day, Lawrence Davies, Ivan Corner, Russell Rarey, Ralph Thomas and Paul Flegel.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Clark and two children spent the week end in Portland as guests of Mr. Clark's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Clark.

Mrs. L. M. Reeder of South Cottage street entertained at dinner yesterday Mrs. Jessie Phillips of Nob Hill.

Welcome additions to Salem society are Colonel and Mrs. Dusenbury and family of the regular army who have lately arrived in the city. They are at present domiciled at the Argo hotel, but have purchased a home in New Park into which the will soon move. Colonel Dusenbury will have charge of all the national guard south of Portland.

The South circle of the First Methodist church met yesterday afternoon with Mrs. J. W. Todd. Mrs. C. J. Kuntz read a paper on the poet Wordsworth, after which refreshments were served.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid society will meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. B. Hager, 691 Union street. Mesdames J. W. Harrison, J. N. Skafe, R. E. Downins, Max Buren, S. G. Bowersox and Charles A. Park will be the assisting hostesses. The meeting was to have been held at the home of Mrs. Park, but was changed on account of illness in the family.

Flowers and congratulatory messages are finding their way to the C. E. Davidson home on Center street, the occasion being the birth on Tuesday of a 7½-pound baby girl, who has been named Genevieve Marie.

The West Central circle of the First Methodist church met yesterday afternoon with Mrs. B. L. Steeves. After an enjoyable program, which consisted of reading several chapters from Mrs. Steeves' book describing her travels last summer, dainty refreshments were served. Fourteen women enjoyed the hospitality of the Steeves' home.

Combing Won't Rid Hair Of Dandruff

The only way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

CHAPTER 575

WHAT MADGE READ IN KATHERINE'S TROUBLED EYES.

"What's the row, Lil?" Dicky asked lazily, as Jack and Katherine went out of the library door on their way to the dining room, where Lillian had sent them in search of army wool and knitting needles.

"What do you mean?" Lillian countered.

"Camouflage is not quite good enough, dear old Lil," mocked Dicky. "Sections of the tanks showing. In fact, if you ask me, it's pretty coarse work. Why didn't you just get up and say, 'Ladies and gentlemen, our friends, Jack and Katherine, have an awful mad on, and we will now send them down to another room, so that they may kiss and make up in peace.' It would have been much simpler and saved a lot of mental effort. Your brain cells must be fagged after thinking up such an elaborate excuse."

"You'll never need to worry about fatigue affecting your brain cells," Lillian returned caustically.

"Meaning, I suppose, that I have none to fatigue, you dear, sweet-tempered angel! But you haven't told me yet what the row's all about."

"And I don't intend to tell you. Hold that yarn straighter. How do you think Madge can wind it with you trailing it around like that?" "Isn't our temper sweet tonight?" Dicky mocked, but I noticed that he heeded Lillian's injunction concerning the army wool he was holding for me, as he invariably obeyed her. "I'll bet you a cookie I can tell you what's the matter, anyway," he went on. "Old Jack probably wants her to marry him right away and stay in this country where she belongs, and she's got some bifalutin notion about going back to her duty in that nursing game over there. It's no place for a woman like her. She's too delicate."

Does Lillian Wonder?

"Fortunately, my lad," Lillian said, and her voice had the cutting edge which she only uses when her wrath is stirred, "not only the woman, but Katherine's profession, but hosts of other women have 'bifalutin notions' concerning their duty. They will need to have them in the crisis that's confronting this nation. It would be a good thing if some of the men—"

She broke off her sentence hastily and began again, with a manner as nearly confused as I'd ever seen Lillian exhibit.

"But you may calm your sensitive soul," she said lightly. "Katherine is to be transferred to the nursing service here when she is strong enough to go back to such strenuous work. She is on the verge of a breakdown and for the present she will stay here with me, helping me with the care of old Mrs. Morton, a comparatively light duty that will give her a chance to regain her strength. As for marrying Jack, that wouldn't interfere much with whatever work she wished to take up. He is going back to the trenches as soon as he gets a chance, and has been wild to go ever since the United States entered the war."

The One Flaw.

She shot an apparently careless glance at him as she finished, but I caught the earnest searching look and with a sinking heart read its meaning as I read her confusion a little earlier.

Lillian, as well as I, was puzzled at Dicky's apparent apathy in the face of his country's great need of him. She wouldn't say anything which he could construe as an approach, but I knew that her apparently innocuous remark about Jack was made purposely in order to elicit a response from my husband which should show his attitude toward the all important question.

But Dicky, either purposely or unconsciously, was non-committal. "Is that so?" he asked, and in the same instant, whether by accident or design, dropped the skein of yarn he was holding, and in regaining it

Edward Matthes Disappears and Is Sought by Relatives

The wanderlust has claimed Edward Matthes Jr., aged 16, from the farm home near Salem, whose shadow he had never before escaped, and since April 4, every effort to find the lad has been futile.

The lad's father has discovered that the boy was picked up by a man named DeWitt and was brought to Portland on Sunday, April 4. He intended to seek work at the Oregon City paper mills, he said, but instead went to the DeWitt farm at Milora, near Junction City, after visiting Portland, and when he could not do the work required of him there, he disappeared without leaving any hint of his destination.

Edward is without money and has had no training for work of any kind, and has never before been more than a few miles from home. Word from the lad would be appreciated by his aunt, Miss Ella McMunn, Salem, R. F. D. 8.

When Edward left home he wore a gray cap, blue overalls and mackinaw coat. He weighed 150 pounds and was tall for his age, relatives say. He has large, clear blue eyes, and hair that is becoming dark. He had enjoyed a happy family life, and the only excuse for his disappearance is said to be his desire to see the world.
