

SENIORS WIN IN FORENSICS

Upper High School Class to Have Numerals Engraved on Loving Cup

The last high school forensic contest for this year was held last night before a large audience at the high school auditorium.

Hazel Long's handling of "The Broken Soldier," Henry Van Dyke's dramatic work on the world war, was remarkably well done.

Ava Miller gave two pieces, the first being Lawrence Binyons "Edith Cavell," which gave Miss Miller a wonderful chance to express the dramatic ability which she possesses.

Sybil Smith's number was a selection from "Enock Arden," Tennyson's pathetic story, which Miss Smith gave in a highly creditable manner.

Joanna James more than pleased the audience with her wonderful soprano voice in Ralph Cox's beautiful song "To a Hilltop."

Eleanor Houck gave "The Raggedy Man" and "Our Hired Girl," by James Whitcomb Riley. Miss Houck's

handling of it pleased the big audience and would have made Mr. Riley himself glad, for Miss Houck told it the same way that Riley wrote it.

"Mrs. McDuffy an Baseball" was Eurlfield Schindler's selection, a woman's version of baseball, a very humorous bit and very well done by F. Schindler.

Marion Emmons with her violin charmed her hearers. Her interpretation of Adagio-ron-trappo (from suite No. 3) Ries, was a work of art.

The big paper making machine in Salem's paper mill is assuming shape very fast. This great machine will be all ready to grind weeks before the machines and buildings and appliances necessary to furnish the prepared pulp to it are all in order.

Major F. W. Leadbetter, the moving spirit of Salem's paper mill, was in Salem yesterday, looking over the work of construction and preparation, and he is satisfied with the progress being made.

her head against the corner of a box.

He believed she was dead, he declared, but to make certain, he got a hammer and struck her on the head with it.

The Deloney woman, he said, was killed at a camp they made near Signal Hill, on the edge of Long Beach, Cal., January 26 last. That was the day they had left the Santa Monica hotel in an automobile, the back part of which was equipped with a camping outfit.

At their first camp, he said, they quarreled about letters he had received from other women. He added that he killed her with a hammer and carried her body to a place near San Diego, where he hid it.

One woman who has lived in the belief that she is the legal wife of J. P. Watson, alias Huit, the notorious Los Angeles "Bluebeard," is living in Salem at the home of her friends. Her name is Katherine Kruse Watson. Watson himself had been living in Salem for some time up to Christmas when he left for Los Angeles while his wife was in the east.

WOMAN SHUNS PUBLICITY Mrs. Watson has been here continuously since her return from the east. She did not go to California on April 13 as the police and newspapermen were informed and declared she will not go to Los Angeles unless summoned as a witness if Huit is placed on trial. She expects to be called.

Mrs. Watson is about 35 years old, a pretty woman, modest and shuns publicity. At the home of her friends last night she gave the impression of one resigned to circumstances and nothing she said or did offered any intimation whether she feels resentful toward her husband or sympathizes with him. Mrs. Watson, in fact, refused to say anything. She is interview-proof, and the facts of her life that were ascertained came through conversation with her friends with her tacit acquiescence.

HUIT QUIT SALEM It was ascertained that Katherine Kruse was married to Watson at Nelson, B. C., seven years ago and that they lived in different parts of Canada until last Christmas season when they came to Salem. The family with whom Mrs. Watson now lives had brought her up as a girl. Soon after their arrival in Salem Mrs. Watson went east, she would not say where, in response to a telegram announcing the death of her father. When she returned to Salem she found her husband had gone to Los Angeles. As the story was told last night she had not seen him since, though it is said she has been in communication with him. Relative to their domestic relations before coming to Salem neither Mrs. Watson nor her friends would have anything to say.

FINANCES LIMITED Mrs. Watson's friends say that her husband placed a small amount of money in a San Diego bank on her account, but that her financial means is limited and that she expects to go to work. Also they say she expects to make her home in Salem. They declare she is of irreproachable character and that she is an innocent victim of Huit, or Watson. Further, it is declared, her marriage certificate has been investigated and found to be legal. She has no knowledge, it is said, of any marriage of Watson prior to their wedding at Nelson, B. C. She disclaims knowledge of his ever having been an inmate of any insane asylum.

According to her friends Mrs. Watson takes the attitude that her husband's case is in the hands of the authorities and that she is an innocent onlooker who will not act in the case unless summoned as a witness. If the California laws are the same as the Oregon laws, it is said, she cannot be compelled to testify against her husband.

"While the agricultural outlook is distinctly less satisfactory than it was a month ago," the summary said, "and while the month of April has been a period of serious labor disturbance, especially in the transportation field, the activity of business has continued high, demand for products strong and with prices tending upward rather than downward. Industries are not, as a whole, book-

One "Murder" Accidental. He said the death of the Goodrich woman came about in this way:

He was on a launch with her on Lake Washington. The water was rough and she fell overboard in trying to go from the stern to the center. Later on the officers said, Huit himself referred to this death as a "murder."

In the Pryor case, he asserted, the woman attacked him with a hatpin in a house at Plum Station, and he, to defend himself, shoved her so violently that she fell and struck ed as far ahead, relatively speaking, in the past, although in some lines the volume of unfilled orders is very large.

"The export trade holds up in an unexpected degree and bank credit, although not materially larger in volume than at the opening of April, has had to follow more or less the course of demand, so that expansion of various points has taken the place of reductions effected at others."

The board "viewed with some alarm" the question of obtaining adequate labor for the farm. This question was considered the most difficult element of the whole labor situation and was declared to demand deepest study in order to obviate serious results to the producer and consumer.

Shaft of Giant Light Plays in North Skies Efforts were made by the federal forest service last night to reach Salem with a powerful search light on top of Council crest, in Portland, this accounting for rays of light that were seen playing in the sky to the north.

E. A. Elliott, state forester, and C. C. Scott, of the federal forest service, were stationed in the dome of the state capitol to observe the light, and while it could be plainly seen the rays fell short of Salem because of the elevated angle necessary to project the light into the Willamette valley.

Mr. Elliott believes that Parrot mountain, east of Sheridan and Newberg was an obstacle to the giant shaft of light. He may suggest to the federal officials that an effort be made tonight to reach Salem from Mt. Tabor.

Veterinarians Appointed to Inspect Sheep Flocks All sheep trailing through the Umatilla forest reserve after the shearing season this year will be inspected before they are allowed to traverse the reserve, and arrangements for the inspection are now being made by Dr. W. H. Lytle, state veterinarian.

To expedite the inspection it must be handled by local veterinarians, and Dr. Lytle has appointed as supervisors of the operation Dr. L. L. Taylor of Condon, Dr. M. M. Johnson of Heppner, Dr. J. A. Peed of Hermiston and Dr. H. W. Riley of La Grande.

The Umatilla forest reserve lies in Umatilla, Morrow and Grant counties. Because of a few cases of scabies that have been found in Wheeler county all sheep in that county will be inspected by federal veterinarians.
