

SALEM'S PART IN CAMPAIGN IS MADE KNOWN

W. L. Miller Holds Conference With Directors of Commercial Club

WHITE NAMED CHAIRMAN

Survey Is Projected With View to Development in Important Lines

The definite part Salem is to play in a state-wide campaign of the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce was outlined yesterday by W. L. Miller, representing the state chamber, who visited Salem in connection with a survey of the state that is now being made.

detail with the board of directors of the Salem Commercial club at the regular meeting Wednesday night and H. O. White was elected as chairman of the Salem executive committee which will cooperate with other cities in the state-wide movement. Associated with him will be P. J. Dackebach, J. W. Chambers, C. P. Bishop and J. C. Perry.

The State Chamber of Commerce has undertaken plans to play a big part in the future development of the state of Oregon. Funds will be collected to advance advertising, pointing out the opportunities to be found in Oregon and to encourage land settlement; administration to promote irrigation; extension of railroads; refund on reclamation fund; extension of highways both for commercial purposes and through national forests; cooperation with agricultural and lumbering interests and numerous other big projects, the development of which will be of incalculable interest to Oregon.

Other representatives of the State Chamber of Commerce will visit Salem later and complete the organizational work for the state-wide movement, which, it is declared, will benefit every section of Oregon.

SCHOOL YEAR COMES TO END

Five Pupils Are Graduated From the Eighth Grade at Livingston

Closing exercises were held at the Livingston school, Fifth and Gaines streets, Thursday night. Five students were graduated from the eighth grade. They were Goldie Brown, Theodore Madsen, Marjorie Wilson, Howard Hutchins and Richard Johnson.

The school has an enrollment of 57 pupils. It has been established six years and this has been a very successful year. Mrs. Vita Mallory Beatty is principal. The church was packed for the program, which was the story of the life of Christ in song and dialogue.

- The program was as follows:
- Song rally..... School Invocation..... Pastor A. R. Bell
 - Prophecy of Christ's Advent..... School Song, "Long Ago"..... Advanced Class
 - Dialogue, "The Wise Men"..... George Jenkins, Joseph Spreed, Richard Johnson
 - Song, "The Star of Bethlehem"..... Primary Class
 - Dialogue, "Wishes and Resolutions"..... Six Boys
 - Duet, "Lullaby"..... Delphine Way, Marjory Wilson
 - Violin ob., Samuel Thurston
 - Dialogue, Egypt and Return..... Goldie Brown, Grace Darling
 - Song, "Come Unto Me"..... Prim. Class
 - Dialogue, The Story..... Helen Hutchins, Lois Knapp, Geneva Beatty
 - Reading, "Emmanuel, God With Us"..... Accompanist, Bernice Jenkins
 - Song, "Victory"..... Advanced Class
 - Dialogue, "Messengers for Jesus"..... Six Boys
 - Song, "Lift Up Your Heads"..... Advanced Class
 - Presentation of Certificates..... Supt. I. C. Colcord
 - Solo, "Plains of Peace"..... Mrs. Vita Mallory Beatty
 - Benediction..... Pastor A. R. Bell of it first," she smiled quizzically at me. "and we'll adopt it. I think I'd better call Dicky up after you go home and ask his gracious permission to spare you as soon as his mother is well enough for you to come. When do you think that will be?"

"There's no reason why I shouldn't come tomorrow if only Dicky does not imagine I'm neglecting his mother," I answered. "The danger of shock is passed now, and while, of course, the broken arm is painful yet there is no acute illness. And Cousin Agatha is a wonderful nurse. She doesn't leave her cousin for 10 minutes at a time, and all her usual activities seem to be softened. She and Mother Graham were having a wonderfully good visit yesterday over their childhood. You know they were brought up almost together."

"Yes, I know, and I can imagine the woman is a good nurse. She ought to be something to make up for the trouble she has caused you. And from what you say I can see no reason why you couldn't come back here tomorrow. Katie surely doesn't need you, and if your Cousin Agatha is so busily engaged with your mother-in-law she won't have time to bedevil poor Katie, and everything will be smooth as ice while you are gone."

The "Easy" Hours. I stifled the impulse to retort that there would be as many opportunities for ugly falls as smooth ice would afford. I had voluntarily offered myself to this service under Lillian. It wasn't for me to draw back even in thought from it. But I could not shake off a mental vision of Katie's face when I should tell her that she would be left to Cousin Agatha's tender mercies for a week.

Lillian relieved the situation somewhat for me with her next words. "Of course, there will be no need for you to stay here at night," she said. "And as Harry is the laziest man in the country about getting up in the morning there will be no need for you to waste any time at the library before 11 o'clock. You can get that 10 o'clock in from Marvin, go straight to the library, and there will be no use of your waiting after 5. Harry wouldn't let even his favorite hobby interfere with his late afternoon stroll up and down Broadway and Fifth avenue."

Final Instructions. I drew a breath of deep thankfulness. I could manage that program without a domestic upheaval. "I'll hurry up luncheon," Lillian said practically, "so you can get home as early as possible. What time do you think you'll be there?" "I have an errand to do for Mother Graham," I said, "but it won't take very long. I ought to be able to be home by 4 o'clock."

I knew better than to voice the curiosity I felt as to Lillian's reasons for wishing me to be at home early. She satisfied it herself, however, with her next sentence. "When you reach Marvin," she said, "phone me from some place outside your home that you have arrived. Then when you have had time to reach the house I'll telephone Dicky. I don't want him to surmise that we have planning anything, and if he calls you up afterward you'll be at home, understand? And you haven't seen me today."

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Freezone is magic! Corns lift off with fingers without pain

Hurt? No, not one bit! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching, then you lift that bothersome corn right off. Yes, magic! Costs only a few cents.

Try Freezone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Freezone is the mysterious ether discovery of a Cincinnati genius.

REGARDING PRICES

We have been asked so many times to express our opinion in regard to prices of merchandise that we deem it our duty to issue this statement, limited as is our information.

We might say that one guess is as good as another where the sources of information are the same.

Our opinion which seems to be shared by many large Eastern firms is that staple cottons and domestics for every day use will maintain their present prices for some time and may even go slightly higher later in the season.

The silk market has taken a sudden drop due largely to the labor troubles and unrest in Japan.

There are many who predict that whatever fall in price there has been is only temporary and that the market will recover. However our advice would be to go slow. Buy only your immediate wants.

Lumbermen's Association Makes Weekly Report on Northwest Conditions

Cargo business accepted by the 126 mills contributing to the report of the West Coast Lumberman's association for the week ended May 22, aggregated 26,625,221 feet, of which 10,128,391 feet are to be exported and 16,496,830 feet delivered to California. The balance of cargo orders remaining on the books of the mills after the week's deliveries was 148,469,434 feet, of which 63,244,124 feet was domestic and 85,225,310 export.

The same mills have a balance of 8608 cars or 258,240,000 feet of fall orders on their books awaiting shipment. The total rail shipments for the week were 48,810,000 feet, or 1627 cars. The rail orders were 36,630,000 feet, or 1221 cars.

The mills are continuing their steady production and probably will run full until the mid-summer period of inactivity early in July. Production for the week aggregated 89,428,662 feet, which was only 3,934,338 feet or 4.21 per cent below the normal.

HOW LILLIAN AND MADGE COMPLETED THEIR PLANS TO FIND HARRY CASUALLY.

I wonder what will be the most plausible pretense to get you into town every day for a week or so?" Lillian looked at me thoughtfully as we sat in her library after our exciting adventure with the spying marauders.

"Why not the one of which you spoke when you thought you needed me before?"

I was prompt to answer her, for her approval of my other suggestion concerning the best way of encountering Harry Underwood accidentally had emboldened me, had given me confidence in my own mental processes. Besides I suspected that Lillian, like most persons of mental activity and quick decisions, hated an appearance of uncertainty in any one.

She rewarded me with a flashing glance of approval.

"You mean that I need your historical knowledge in delving for me into some costume lore of some illustrations I have to get out?"

"Yes," I returned. "And it would give me an excuse for being at the library also. I would like to have one already prepared if Mr. Underwood sees me, for I'm never any good at quick inventions."

"I don't know about that," Lillian returned. "I'm beginning to think you can meet any emergency of thought or action, my dear. But that's a good scheme if I did think
