A DIRTY DISPLAY OF IMMACULATE GALL

"Most of us believe that the Supreme Court did not care to render their decision which I interpret to be unfavorable to the Land Banks but favorable to us until after the next election. At any rate, the Farm Mortgage Bankers Association, I think, is directly responsible for the Federal Land Bank and the Joint Stock Land Bank not being in operation today and not being able to operate until some time next year."

The above words are from a letter of W. M. Heckler, chairman of the membership committee of the Farm Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

"All Gaul is divided into three parts." So dictated Julius Caesar in writing the opening words of the history of his conquest of ancient Gaul.

But if all Gaul is divided into three parts now, the ginks who are trying to put the Federal Farm Loan banks out of business have had wished onto them or in some way acquired at least two parts.

They are saying in the above that they have enough influence with the Supreme Court of the United States to get that body to put the Federal Farm Loan banks out of business till "some time next year," and they are intimating that the highest court in the land has its ear to the ground, holding off its decision, which will be "favorable to us," until after the election.

Has there been a more asinine attitude assumed by any buccaneering bunch in all the history of the United States?

The decision attacking the constitutionality of the Federal Farm Loan act was unfavorable to these corsairs in the lower court. They appealed, and then sparred for delay.

The business of the Federal Farm Loan banks is thus held up, at the behest of these cutthroat shlylocks.

And it is a stinking shame that smells to heaven. Now, they are virtually claiming that the highest tribunal in the land is in on the slimy and dirty deal, and playing politics for fear the rottenness of the thing will be too loud in the polling booths of the nation this fall.

The gorge of all honest men in the United States must rise at such a display of immaculate gall.

It was a million dollar rain.

The "usual June rains" came on schedule time.

There are a number of wives in this town who wonder why there are no booms for their husbands as candidates for the presidency.

Chicago is the political capital of the world for the largest part of this week, if not all the rest of it, and part of next week.

Goldsmith wrote the familiar lines "When lovely woman stoops to folly," and he no doubt had in mind that some day she might vote the Democratic ticket.

With the bonded warehouses in this city filled to the roof with sugar and almost 30,000 sacks lying on the dock at San Pedro because there is no place to store it, the aviation in the price leaves a lot of things to explain.—Los Angeles Times.

The San Francisco convention will, of course, endorse the Wilson administration. It would be awkward to go into a campaign with an unendorsed administration. And that means the defeat of anybody the convention may nominate.

A total of $113,109 was raised in behalf of Senator Harding's presidential candidacy. We imagine that when the future senator used to pay off the boys Saturday night on the then young Marion Star he did not imagine there was that much money in the world.—Exchange.

Under the Cummins railroad law the government guarantees the earnings of the lines until September 1. The cost of the switchmen's strike was about $125,000,000 and this loss must be made good by the government, or rather by the people of the United States. The public pays the bill for every strike. Rarely is there so fine an example as this one of the cost of a strike to the public, for in this case the specific bill is simply turned over to the taxpayers for settlement.

Usually in Republican conventions the balloting is a short affair. In 1880 thirty-six ballots were taken before Garfield was nominated. Lincoln was nominated on the third ballot the first time, and on the first and second terms was named on the first ballot. Blaine was nominated on the fourth ballot in 1884, and Harrison on the eighth in 1888. Only one ballot was taken in other conventions until 1916, when Hughes was nominated on the third. However, it may take several days to reach the eighth or tenth ballot, in case that many may be required to nominate.

BITS FOR BREAKFAST

Beautiful, bountiful rain. It is not raining rain for me. It's raining fields of clover bloom. Where every buccaneering bee May find a bed and room. Salem homecoming Friday. Basket picnic; coffee served free. In Willson park. Five-minute speeches by visiting home-comers. Mrs. Durdall will sing. All eyes on Chicago. Today's the day, tonight's the night; this week's the week. The gardens and the fields are so thankful for the rain that they look to be on the point of shouting for joy. Still, a lot of good matter waiting over; crowded out of The Statesman for want of room.

MONEY RAISED FOR MISSIONS

Story of Armenia Brings Results—Revival on at Fair Grounds

Nearly $2000 for foreign missions was raised Saturday and Sunday out at the camp of the Adventists on the fairgrounds. Of this amount over $500 was given in the Sabbath school offering and $600 at the close of the service Sunday morning when Elder and Mrs. F. F. Oster had finished telling of their fearful experiences in Armenia and Persia. They told of terrible massacres. They told of children taken by the feet and literally torn apart. They told of an orphan institution run by Americans in which out of 300 children only about 40 escaped massacre. They told of Armenian mothers being forced to boil and eat their own babies under the fearful threats of Turks and Kurds. They told of their own providential escapes over and over again and yet in spite of the fact, as they stated it, that starvation and massacre are still the order of the day in that ill-fated land, they said they were going back again to continue their missionary operations there. Saturday morning or Sabbath morning as the day is known to the Adventists, a big revival struck the camp. After a most impressive sermon by Elder R. D. Quinn, of Washington, D. C., one of their national evangelists, a large number of people went forward, accepting Jesus Christ as their personal Savior. Almost the entire encampment re-dedicated their lives to God. Saturday night Elder G. F. Watson, president of the Montana conference, presented the theme of the "Second Coming of Christ." It was a wonderful story of the hope of the people of God. Sunday afternoon Evangelist A. R. Bell, pastor of the Salem S. O. A. church, spoke on "The World's Cry for Peace—Will It Ever Be Realized?" He showed from the Bible the wonderful contrast of the statements of God with the preaching of men. He showed from the prophecies that instead of peace this world has nothing but trouble ahead, and that it still faces Armageddon. "When honor and integrity stand in the way of unholiness, sin gets the upper hand, wickedness triumphs and peace is an absolute impossibility," he declared. He said that peace would be realized when the everlasting kingdom of peace—the kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ is set up, and not until then, and then peace will reign because of that kingdom has gotten the victory over sin, and the cause has been blotted out forever. Sunday evening Elder A. R. Ogden, president of the North Pacific Union conference of Seventh Day Adventists, spoke on "World Conditions in the Light of Bible Prophecy." In spite of the rain there was a big attendance. The speaker pictured conditions existing all over the world, holding particularly before his large audience the great changes that have come over the nations during the last six eventful years, and looking at them from the point of view of the Bible. He claimed that in the light of the scriptures the whole world condition was a sign of the early coming of Christ and the setting up of the everlasting kingdom of God, and pointed his hearers to a sin-pardoning Saviour, through the merits of whose blood, heirship to that kingdom is assured.

CONVENTION TURMOIL OF INDECISION

date kept his hearers cheering as he rapped the "servile press" and the Republican leaders who, he said, wanted to make the party "a party for the few." Some of these men, he declared, "are in the saddle all over the country and are today in evidence in Chicago." His demand for repeal of war laws was loudly cheered. Another whoop went up when he said the "big profiteer" had escaped punishment through lack of administration effort in executing the law.

In opening his address, Senator Johnson paid a tribute to Senator Borah who, he said, "had pioneered his way" in the campaign for the policies they represented. Cheers frequently interrupted the speaker, and he apparently tried to hold down demonstrations to proceed.

He pleaded for what he called "a head up, eyes open" party stand, from attempts to "hide in the shadow of privilege." Defining two big issues, he declared the first was the high cost of living to be coped with not wholly by new law, but by "unshrinking administration of the present law." The second issue, internationalism, he covered flatly with the declaration, "I am opposed to the present covenant of the league of nations," emphasizing his opposition to the league plan of the Versailles treaty.

"Against it the Republican party must take its stand," he declared. "There can be no hiding or sulking upon an issue of this magnitude. In this campaign men must march under the polyglot banner of European imperialism and internationalism, or under the old Stars and Stripes."

"Peoples were forgotten. Rulers remained supreme. Progress was precluded. Every existing injustice was perpetuated. "Instead of a pact to prevent war we were given a league to maintain the present existing power. Instead of that which would enable humanity to expand and grow, to progress and to prosper, we found humanity shackled and the world put in a straightjacket, imposed for all the years to come.

"Instead of disarmament, everywhere were increased armaments. The hopes of those who had earnestly wished and fervently prayed, were blighted and betrayed. The document represented the triumph of cynical old world diplomacy, the defeat of new world liberalism."

LEGISLATION VS. REGULATION

"DOWN with the Profiteer" has been the hue and cry so long that it is time to view the other side of the matter.

By spending recklessly and investing foolishly the people themselves have fanned the flames of finance to still higher and higher heights.

Regulating the profiteer begins by regulating your own use of money.

Ten Years Younger Than His Years

Doesn't it make you feel good—cause you to straighten up and feel "chesty"—when someone guesses your age at ten years or so younger than you really are? You look into your mirror, smile with satisfaction and say to yourself: "Well, he didn't make such a bad guess, at that."

The point is: You're no older than your vitality.

If a man is strong, vigorous, mentally alert, fine and fit at 50 he has a better chance of living up to 80 than a man of 30 who is weak and run-down has of living up to 60. While none of us can stay the years nor stop time, we should all make an heroic effort to successfully resist the effects of time by ever keeping our vitality at par.

When you sense a feeling of slowing down of your physical forces—when your stomach, liver, kidneys and other organs show signs of weakness—when you notice a lack of your old time "pep" and "punch"—in other words, when you feel your vitality is on the wane, you should commence at once to restore your energy, strength and endurance by taking
