BITS FOR BREAKFAST Hurrah for Harding! It will not be hard for him to win. He comes from the mother state of presidents.

He is a newspaper man; he will be the first newspaper man to become president.

And he is what is termed by the fraternity a country newspaper man, or more exactly a small city daily newspaper man. He is the editor and principal owner of the Marion, Ohio, Star. The Star is an evening paper with less than 10,000 circulation; the American Newspaper Directory gives it 9870. Marion has about 30,000 population, and it is a manufacturing city in a rich farming country. It is 44 miles north of Columbus, the capital city of Ohio.

He has been running the Star for 26 years; since 1884; and in the years of the past he saw very hard sledding; a writer on the Los Angeles Times says that, in the old days, when he had to borrow money to pay his printers on Saturday nights, he did not know there was that much money in the world—meaning the $78,000 which his managers expended on his campaign.

He is a Baptist, and works at the job.

Governor "Cal" Coolidge of Massachusetts, the candidate for vice president, ought to stump the country and take Mrs. Coolidge along with him. He probably will. They are both regular fellows.

The readers of country newspapers in the United States will please excuse the country newspaper editors if they get a little chummy in this campaign. They have been a hard working and long suffering tribe; and some of them may voice the idea that things are coming their way.

Give the hospital people that $15,000 they need; do it quickly, and let them get to building. This should have been done long ago. It has gone too long already.

Again: There is no better investment than the preferred stock of the paper mill.
