SALEM A WHOLESALING AND JOBBING CENTER

Salem is growing more nearly self-sufficient every year, and every month and every day of the year.

When she shall have fully developed her fifty-two most important basic industries, which the Salem Slogan pages of The Statesman are showing to the world, and many others of importance, there will be little for which she will have to send away to distant points, in the way of things to eat and wear.

And then Salem will have many times in value the things to sell above the total cost of the things she will need to buy.

That is what makes a wealthy city and a wealthy community—Backed by a Gibraltar prosperity that no sort of adversity can shake.

The Salem Slogan pages of this morning are devoted to Salem as a wholesaling and jobbing center. The importance of this basic source of wealth to this city and community is well illustrated by the men, firms and corporations already represented here, as follows:

- Showalter & Jacobs.
- Gile Mercantile Company.
- The Pacific Fruit and Produce Company.
- Rodgers Paper Company
- Mason, Ehrman & Company.
- Geo. E. Waters.
- Dan J. Fry.

Seven in the wholesale and jobbing trade now, and every one with a successful and expanding business.

There may be others; and there surely will be, as our paved roads systems reach out and add tens of thousands of more people to our city, and make them as much residents of Salem as those within the corporate limits, for trade purposes.

Some of the pioneer firms mentioned above have in the past fought an uphill fight, in getting Salem recognized as a wholesaling and jobbing center, and placed on an equality with the larger cities of the country by the great manufacturing firms of the United States.

The pioneering work has been largely done, and the paths will be smoother for those who come after them.

In some of the lines, the writer thinks the wholesaling and jobbing business of Salem is already very well taken care of, though not now over done. It is not desirable that any line should be over done. It is better that all should prosper; that each man, firm and corporation engaged in these lines should have room to grow.

But the writer believes that it would be good for Salem to reach out after some new lines that are not now represented here. There is a welcome here for men wishing to so engage their capital and energies. This field will bear full investigation by such men.

Next week, the Salem Slogan editor will try to prove that more numbers should be grown here; and that there is no country offering better opportunities than this to men who understand this line of agriculture, and who have the necessary capital to engage in it with the proper facilities for success.

Think what depends on your tubes

They are almost as important as your tires. Yet few men watch tube service.

Miller builds the finest tubes that have ever been developed. For 24 years Miller has specialized in super-grade rubber goods.

Miller builds more surgeons' gloves, for instance, than any other concern in the world. And that's the sort of skill required in tubes.

Miller Tubes are built of thin sheets of pure rubber. They are built layer on layer—sheet on sheet—up to the proper ply.

Then each tube is tested for hours under air pressure to make sure it is air-tight.

You don't get such tubes when you buy tubes by guess. Come and try Miller Tube, red or gray. Watch its service. After that you'll never buy an ordinary tube.

Millers cost no extra price.

An all night session. That is what the platform committee is having at San Francisco.

They know they'll be damned if they do and damned if they don't.

And they are between the devil and the deep blue sea.

secretary of the treasury in nomination, finally decided to yield to the wishes of Mr. McAdoo and not make a nominating speech for him. He simply explained the situation to the convention in one of the shortest speeches on record and merely announced that he placed Mr. McAdoo in nomination, fully assured that if "drafted for the service of the nation" he would not refuse the nomination.

From time to time the convention got echoes of the wet and dry fight being waged on the outside behind the closed doors of the platform committee, but it devoted itself wholly so far as the organized program with getting the nominating speeches out of the way and clearing the decks for consideration of the platform tomorrow. It was expected that all the nominating speeches would be made today and that when an adjournment was taken until tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock the convention would have a clear track to begin consideration of the platform with its sure fight on the wet and dry issue and possibly some other planks.

Wearry Day Closes. But after eight weary and racking hours of continuous session that were jammed with nerve strain, the convention felt it had had enough after it heard the nominating speeches for ten candidates, concluding with Governor Edwards of New Jersey and on motion of Representative Flood of Virginia suspended its rules and took a recess until eleven o'clock tomorrow morning. At that hour the business of placing candidates in nomination will be resumed when it left off today, with the prospect that the name of John W. Davis, ambassador to Great Britain, will be the only one presented.

BUSINESS IS READJUSTING

Federal Reserve Board Declares Prices Will Drop Soon

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Business is passing through a period of readjustment and, in many instances of depression, the federal reserve board declared tonight in its June review of general business and financial conditions of the country.

"There is, however, every indication that this transition period will not last long—indeed, that the turn toward new conditions has already been taken," declared the agents summary of reports of its agents who, taking the country as a whole, found considerable variation in business conditions.

Reduction in retail prices, begun in May, became universal during June, it was said in explanation of the continued large volume of retail trade. The price cutting movement, the board said, had been aided by the refusal of the public to pay high prices although the tendency of wholesale prices to maintain current levels was declared to have been a counteracting influence.

Except for clothing and shoes, all essential commodities including food-stuffs show little indication of reduction, but luxuries and non-essentials in many lines have been "distinctly cut."

"Quite generally there is a tendency to settle down to a readjustment basis and to proceed with business upon a new level of prices and demand," the board asserted. "Control of credit and discrimination between non-essential and speculative borrowing are producing some results, although these are reporting, as developing themselves slowly and gradually."

Although some improvement in transportation was noted, the railroads were said not to have yet overcome the breakdown and "great con-

Possibly the most encouraging factor for the month was the improvement of agricultural prospects, all crops, except cotton showing improvement. Distinct improvement in the money situation was noted during the month.

INFORMATION VS. ADVICE

"How did you lay the foundation for your colossal fortune?" asked the young man. "I worked all day and studied all night," replied Mr. Dustin Star. "I attended church regularly and avoided all bad habits—"

"Is that the way you advise me to proceed?" "Why—er—I didn't know you wanted the information for your personal use. I thought it was an interview for a magazine article."—Washington Star.
