MISS CARRANZA PROBABLY TELLS THE TRUTH.

Miss Julia Carranza, daughter of the late President Carranza of Mexico, has arrived in San Antonio, Texas, having slipped over the border incognito.

She charges the responsibility for the murder of her father upon General Obregon, and she says she will prove it, "when justice is not administered by bloodstained hands."

She means in Mexico.

She will likely be a very old woman, if she lives till that day.

Miss Carranza says the murderers of her father live in expensive hotels and walk the streets of the City of Mexico and visit the theaters and other public places, while the men who, "in obedience to their duty," accompanied her father, are held in prison against all human and moral law, and "threatened with death for knowing how to be soldiers of honor."

She says these men will no doubt soon be found dead, "and the false version that they attempted to escape or committed suicide will be officially announced to explain their end."

"I beg that God saves my country" are the concluding words of Carranza's daughter.

It is more than likely that Miss Carranza tells the truth, and that her prophecy will prove true.

But these are the ways of Mexico.

The ideals of fair play that are general in English speaking countries have little vogue in Latin lands.

Generations of education will be required to give Mexico better ideals.

To that end, the United States must be committed to a long period of patience, in the character of elder brother to Mexico; with enough show of force, or enough of her actual use of force if it shall seem best, to assure the factions of that country that they must get away from the idea of always being at the throats of one another.

"About 21,000 tons of sugar have been purchased in Argentina, which will come along later in the season, and will be distributed under arrangements effected by the government to the canning and preserving industries, which are said now to be assured of a supply. The expectations are for larger production in all sugar producing countries this year, and for increasing supplies until prices return to normal figures." The foregoing quoted words are from the circular dated July 2 of the National City Bank of New York—the "Rockefeller" bank, the greatest in America. It is cheering news to the big and little users of sugar hereabouts; promising a supply to the former for the present season, and lower prices for all before very long. The world's sugar crop last year was more than a million tons short of that of the year previous.

The federal reserve bank of Minneapolis has advanced to banks of that district a hundred million dollars, having borrowed $21,000,000 from other reserve banks, in order to tide over the grain dealers—through lack of cars to handle the old crop; and the banks there are under the necessity of financing the new crop coming on as well as the old crop still on hand. It is a serious situation, and it may affect the price of grain in the whole country. A strong administration at Washington, governed by the rules of sound business and horse sense, is needed now a little worse, perhaps, than it was ever needed before.

It was safe and sane in Salem. Watch Salem celebrate for three days, beginning on July 22, when the Elks come.

To make high prices decline, decline to pay them.

"A man don't have to be crazy to believe in free trade, but it helps."—American Economist.

Thursday's Salem slogan pages of The Statesman will be as cool as a cucumber, getting away with the claim that this is the best cuke county.

try on the green earth. If you are a cuke expert, please hold up your hand, and let The Statesman tell the world.

Patronizing home industry will help Salem become self-contained, self-reliant and Gibraltar-anchored to a perpetual period of prosperity and pep.

This is the time of year that the Democrats are always carrying the country.

Harding and Coolidge have not yet been officially notified of their non-ination, but we imagine they have a hunch that something has happened.

That divorce suit which stalks before the ambition of Governor Cox. This is a cruel world, and the man who goes into politics with a skeleton in his closet takes chances.—Los Angeles Times.

The movement to bring Tom Riley Marshall into the running for president ought to be discouraged. There is no occasion to rob the grave. The Democrats are not as hard up for a candidate as all that.—Exchange.

A newspaper back east has discovered a striking likeness between Washington, our first president, and Harding, who will be our twenty-ninth. The stars in their courses are fighting for the Republicans this year.

Tobe Hert is booked for Republican firm, succeeding Senator Penrose, who is in ill health, according to reports. Hert is the national committeeman from Kentucky. Another case of Tobe or not Tobe, as our old friend, Hamlet, once put it.

The doctrine that American workmen had a religious devotion to beer was given a jar the other day when the delegates to the meeting of the American Federation of Labor were offered a resolution asking the political parties to put a beer-and-wine clause in their platform. It was defeated. And Sam Gompers offered the resolution. The delegates were indignant at the idea of making politics out of beer drinking.

The country is sick of supermen. President Wilson is distinctly of that type. He has for eight years almost been a mystery to 99 per cent of the American people. All they know of him is when he tells them where to head in. McAdoo is also claimed to be of the tribe of supermen. He built the Hudson tubes, married the president's daughter, was Pooh-Bah during the war and received $100,000 a year from a moving picture outfit. But the people are weary of supermen. They are tired of clouds and visions and getting their orders direct from Mt. Sinai. They want somebody more like themselves that they have been getting lately.

TAKING A TIP. The Superior court in Chicago has decided that the tips given to hotel employees who are drawing a fixed and definite salary belong to the landlord. If the guests knew that and knew that the landlord got them they wouldn't amount to so much. They rather hoped that when they handed the check boy a quarter they were beating the proprietor out of it. If they had thought the landlord was waiting at the end of the hall to shake down the employe for the tip they would never have opened their hearts and purses. A few decisions like this will do more than anything else to end the tipping evil in America. Nobody wants to give an extra tip to the landlord—if he can help it. People generally regard landlords of all kinds as their natural enemies, with no rights worthy of respect.

BITS FOR BREAKFAST

Now for work.

The Democratic mule has lived up to his reputation.

In fact, all their dark horses are bay mules.

The men who know say everybody is coming to Salem at the convention of the Elks, week after next. It will be like the state fair, and perhaps more so, in the matter of rooming and eating accommodations. It will test Salem's fine reputation for hospitality.

Pickle factories will operate in Salem, if the farmers will raise the cucumbers. And this is the greatest cucumber country. See Thursday's Statesman.

There is an intimation that the gasoline shortage will be over about the 14th. Hope it may be kissed goodbye for good.

Salem people helped all the celebrations in the surrounding towns yesterday, and they are helping to fill up the summer resort places far and near. The day of the "Salem hog" is long past.

Hope the Wilson cabinet will stick until the end, not so very far away. President Roosevelt had many changes in his cabinet, but none on account of personal differences with the president. President Wilson has had three such—Garrison, Bryan and Lansing.—Exchange.

The officers and their prisoner were met by two automobile loads of masked men outside of Enterprise and the negro was taken from them without difficulty. He was hanged to a tree.

Portland Sends First Publicity Agent to China

SHANGHAI, July 6. — Portland, Ore., probably is the first city in the world to send abroad a publicity agent to advertise its advantages as a commercial center and J. F. Buckley, who is oriental traffic agent of the Port of Portland, certainly is the first city representative of this kind to come to China. In Shanghai he has set in motion a campaign of publicity to acquaint shippers throughout China with the extensive port improvements that have been and are to be carried out by the Rose City.

This Makes the Curl Stay in Your Hair

The silmerine method is unusually popular just now, according to the druggists. This is largely due to the warm weather and because women are now spending so much of their time out of doors. This simple method not only produces the loveliest natural looking curls and waves, but it keeps the hair in curl no matter how hot or how moist the day, or how hard the wind blows. All one need do is to wet a clean tooth brush with liquid silmerine, draw this through the hair before doing it up, and the hair will dry in just the sweetest waves and crinkles. This will also keep the hair beautifully soft, silky and lustrous. A few ounces of liquid silmerine will last for months.
