Women Seek Positions on Boards, Programs and Committees.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 7.—New grasp on the affairs of the national education association, in session here, has been taken by women members as a class. The "national council of administrative women" at its meeting today pledged itself to secure for women equal representation with men on all programs, boards and committees of "all organizations in which both men and women are admitted to membership, including especially state and national education associations."

There is a report current in many association channels that leading women members have assured Fred M. Hunter, superintendent of schools of Oakland, Cal., of their support for the presidency, and in return have been assured of the backing of the Hunter leaders for placing at least two women in important positions in the association's administration.

According to this report, Olive Jones of New York, president of the New York City Principals' association, is to be made the nominating committee's choice for member of the board of trustees.

C. G. Pearce, president of the Wisconsin state normal school at Milwaukee, addressed today's general session on the need for "sports to build bodies." He cited figures from the selective draft statistics to indicate physical unfitness in the present generation.

Cox Telegram Branded Insult to Legislature

BATON ROUGE, La., July 7.—Reading in the Louisiana house tonight of the telegram from Governor Cox, Democratic nominee for president, expressing the opinion that the Louisiana legislature owed it as a duty to the Democratic party to ratify the federal suffrage amendment brought no open movement to obtain action on the ratification resolution before sine die adjournment tomorrow night.

The Democratic nominee's telegram was transmitted to the house by Frank J. Looney, chairman of the state Democratic central committee, was accompanied by a message from Chairman Looney also urging ratification.

Reading of the Looney message drew from Representative Dupre a statement on the house floor that he would not permit dictation by the state chairman.

"I say this telegram (the Looney message) is an insult to the intelligence of every member of this legislature," declared Representative Dupre amid the cheers of suffrage opponents.

Some attempt to obtain action on the ratification resolution may be made tomorrow but as a suspension of the rules in both houses requiring a two-thirds vote would be necessary to bring up the resolution, leaders believe there is slight hope of adoption.

The committee took was not disclosed. The suffrage resolution would urge upon the states of Connecticut, Vermont, Tennessee, North Carolina and Florida speedy ratification of the national suffrage amendment that women may exercise at the November election the full rights of American citizenship.

N. E. A. Convention Votes Suffrage Resolution

SALT LAKE CITY, July 7.—A suffrage resolution caused considerable discussion in the resolutions committee tonight. It was offered by Miss Annie Webb Blanton, superintendent of public instruction of Texas, a sister of the congressman of that name from the same state. The convention will not vote on resolutions until Friday and what action

BAN RAISED ON RUSSIAN TRADE

Exception is Made Covering Materials Used in War Activities.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Restrictions on trade with soviet Russia were removed today by the state department except insofar as they pertain to the shipment of materials susceptible of immediate use for war purposes.

An individual export license must be obtained for the shipment of such materials and it was announced that such licenses would be granted only in exceptional cases.

Individual export licenses also will be required for the export to Russia of locomotives, railroad material and rolling stock and motor cars and component parts.

While taken independently of other nations, this action followed extensive exchanges between the United States and Great Britain and France. It is believed to have been hastened by the recent negotiations between Gregory Krassin, representing the Bolshevik government and Premier Lloyd George, looking to the resumption of trade between Great Britain and Russia.

In announcing its action, the state department took particular pains to state that political recognition, present or future, of any Russian authority exercising or claiming to exercise governmental functions was neither granted nor intended. It also emphasized that individuals or corporations trading with Russia would do so on their own responsibility and at their own risk as this government could offer no protection to Americans going into Russia or trading with Russia.

The statement also was made by the department that indications were that Russia had only a small quantity of raw materials for export; that its purchasing power was very limited and that consequently there would not be any considerable trade with that country.

The announcement by the department follows: The restrictions that have heretofore stood in the way of trade and communication with soviet Russia were today removed by action of the department of state. Such of these restrictions, however, as pertain to the shipment of materials susceptible of immediate use for war purposes, will for the present at least, be maintained.

"Political recognition, present or future, of any Russian authority exercising or claiming to exercise governmental functions, is neither granted nor intended."

ed or implied by this action. It should be emphasized, moreover, that individuals or corporations availing themselves of the present opportunity to trade with Russia will do so on their own responsibility and at their own risk. The assistance which the United States can normally extend to its citizens who engage in trade or travel in some foreign country whose government is not recognized by the United States, can not be looked for in the present case, since there is no official or representative Russian authority with which this government can maintain the relations usually existing between nations.

"The action which the United States is now taking in no wise constitutes a recognition of the validity of industrial or commercial concessions granted by any existing Russian authority. American citizens availing themselves of the present relaxation of restrictions are warned against the risks incident to the acceptance of commodities or other values, or the title which may later be brought into question.

"The situation which at present prevails relative to travel from or to Russia, will be unaffected by the removal of trade restrictions. Passports for Russia cannot be issued, nor will any change be made in the visa regulations now in force.

"Since it is not desirable at this time to undertake negotiations with the soviet postal authorities, the postoffice department will be unable to accept mail from or to soviet Russia. There has never been any parcel post convention between the United States and Russia and this mode of forwarding goods is therefore unavailable."

This formal announcement was supplemented by the following statement:

"While the indications are that Russia has but a small quantity of raw materials available for export, that the purchasing power of Russia is very limited and that for these reasons there will not be any considerable trade, if any, with Russia, this government however does not feel that the law-abiding people in Russia should be deprived of any assistance which can be derived from such trading as may be possible. The attitude of the United States towards the recognition of any faction in control of soviet Russia has not changed. This government is not willing by means of political recognition to lend positive assistance to a faction whose disregard of the principles of democracy is evidenced at home by the maintenance of a minority despotism and abroad by an insidious campaign of propaganda to subvert popular governmental institutions expressive of the will of the majority."

Trade between the United States and Russia has been prohibited since the Bolsheviks gained control in that country a year before the end of the World war. Even before that time it had been limited because of the demoralized condition of the Russian railroads. Some exports, mostly war material, had been sent to Vladivostok and Archangel, but much of it never was moved to the interior.

Requests that the state department lift the ban on trading with the soviet government have been made by many American exporting and other business firms and American government officials long have desired to remove the restrictions so that the suffering people might be aided in spite of the Bolsheviks. Fears had been voiced, however, that whatever went into the country for that population would be seized by the Bolsheviks and converted to their uses.
