

DATES ARE SET FOR BIG TIME TENNIS MEET

Contender for National Title to Appear among Other Celebrities.

LOCAL MEN OFFER CUPS

Salem Talent to Compete with Best from Big Cities of Pacific Coast.

The tennis fans of Salem are destined to witness the best tennis tournament ever held in the Willamette valley according to the announcement of the Salem Tennis club. The Willamette valley tournament is scheduled for July 19, 20 and 21 and to be played on the club courts on the state hospital grounds. Players of national prominence have been secured for the tournament in Salem. The games are to be conducted under the regulations of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

appear on the local courts are: National Title is Goal. Carl Gardner of California, who is a runner-up for the national title, is the ace who will perform against Oregon's best. Accompanying him will be Harry Weinstein. These two men have been participating in tournaments throughout the northwest. Only recently they took part in tennis matches at Spokane in the Inland Empire tournament. They are now showing their prowess in the state tournament at Portland. Metropolitan tennis stars from Portland will be here are Mrs. R. Northrup, Irene Campbell, Agnes McBride, Stella Fording and Catlin Walford. Mortimer Brown, the sensational tennis star of the University of Oregon who defeated Noble Moodie, the Salem wizard, will be on hand to gather in new laurels. Brown has the reputation of being invincible, having yet to lose a match in a tournament. Brown is from Eugene and it is probable that Eugene might claim the northwest title in tennis. In addition to the stars of the state and national reputation scheduled to participate in the Salem tournament, local stars are eager to mix it with the visiting celebrities. The best tennis talent in the city is planning to give support with a purpose to make this year's tournament a mile post on local tennis annals. The success of the tournament is assurance for big time future matches. Prizes Are Offered. Leading business men have come to the front in supporting the tournament. They have contributed valu-

WOOD ENDORSES G. O. P. POLICY AND PLATFORM

Policy Must Be Clean-cut Forward-Looking and Constructive.

SOLVE, NOT AVOID, ISSUE

Advocates a Strong But Conservative Foreign Policy.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Major General Wood, in a statement today declared he heartily endorsed the nominees of the republican party "understanding that the progressive elements are to be brought into the campaign and given full representation and participation."

"The party can win through the united effort and such clear and explicit declaration of program as will bring the large, independent vote to its active support," the statement said.

General Wood, who conferred with Senator Harding at Marion, Ohio, has defined what he considered necessary points in a "progressive policy" and declared that the party could not win by destructive criticism.

"The party's policy must be clean cut, forward-looking and constructive," he said, "one which, while recognizing America's responsibilities as a leading nation, will guarantee her freedom from foreign control and class domination, one which will safeguard our traditional policies, one which will complete enfranchisement of women; which will stand against all forces and influences tending to break down morality, the physical well-being or the solidarity of our people."

"It must be a policy which will strive for a speedy return to a peace basis, to a government under the constitution; for economy, efficiency, revision of war taxation; for a strong but conservative foreign policy."

A policy which will protect American lives and rights abroad; for the building up and protection of our agriculture and industries; for industrial justice based upon the square, human handling of the issues between labor and capital, remembering labor is neither a commodity nor a chattel.

It must be for the improvement of public education; for a highly efficient army and navy; for the building up of a merchant marine and a sound foreign commercial policy; for the careful supervision of our immigration, and the systematic Americanization of those who are accepted; for the strengthening of the sense of citizenship obligation and the adherence of those fundamental principles and policies on which the stability and permanency of our government depends.

"In short, a government of the people, under a clean-cut, progressive policy, meeting and dealing with the great issues of the present frankly and courageously, with a view to solving rather than avoiding them."

able cups which will constitute the prizes awarded. Cups will be awarded for the following events scheduled for the tournament: men's singles, men's doubles, woman's singles, women's doubles, mixed doubles and men's singles consolation.

The prize offered for the consolation prize gives the local men an opportunity to win cups. It offers an opportunity for further competition. Heretofore, men have been disinclined to enter tournaments because chances for reward were scant.

The consolation prize provides the reward for those who will not survive through the semi-finals.

scrutable expression. But there was indignation in his eyes. "What will you give me to swear for you?" he asked. "I've got a choice collection of explosives that I think would just suit this occasion."

"I couldn't help but smile at his whimsical tone. "I'm afraid that wouldn't do," I said, "but I do wish I could make that woman feel something of the humiliation she has given that poor girl."

"Give me leave, Lady Fair?" he countered promptly, his black eyes dancing with some sudden inspiration.

Prudence had told me to shake my head, for Harry Underwood's inspirations were apt to be startling ones. But I knew the woman at the next table would be gone in another moment or two, and all the impulses of fair play I possessed yearned to see her punished.

What Mr. Underwood Did.

"Yes," I breathed, and at the word Mr. Underwood turned in his chair and beckoned to the waitress, who was just coming back from the front of the room. I saw that she shrank almost imperceptibly as she came up, perhaps dreading another rebuke.

"I always give 10 cents, my girl," Harry Underwood piped in a judicious falsetto, "but you have always given us thundering good service, and my little friend here says you are the most efficient waitress I know, so I'm going to raise the ante."

The girl gasped in astonishment, and into her eyes flashed a look of grateful, startled relief. Her voice was almost hysterical as she stammered her thanks to Mr. Underwood for the bill he handed her with an ostentatious flourish.

"Oh, thank you, thank you!" she exclaimed.

How It Worked.

"Don't thank me, thank the lady here," he said. "And just remember when you're inclined to doubt it, that there are some women in the world who are well bred and possess generous instincts."

There was a flash of draperies past us. The woman at the next table had snatched up her gloves, bag and furs and was hastening to the front as if an alarm of fire had just been given. Her cheeks held no small spots of crimson, for from forehead to neck her face was ablaze with a burning flush. She looked neither to the right nor to the left, and my momentary fear that she meant to go to the manager with a recital of her troubles was dispelled by the closing of the door after her.

"Oh, this is so good of you," the girl breathed, looking at me, as the woman disappeared from sight. "I can't help but be glad she heard it. I can't imagine what was the matter with her. And I didn't ask her for 10 cents."

"Forget all about it," said Harry Underwood. "That's the best way to do with anything disagreeable."

"Thank you, sir, I'll remember that," the girl replied gratefully. "And I'll bring you your coffee immediately."

She walked swiftly toward the kitchen, and I smothered a sudden unaccountable impulse to stretch out my hand to Harry Underwood's in-thankful, admiring acknowledgment of his championship of the sad-eyed waitress.

The incident strengthened my growing belief that deep beneath the surface callousness and wickedness of the man there lay a spark of manhood worth fanning into flames.

proceeded. "Are we not ready for a change?"

In answer to a question by a New York delegate, Mr. Maddaux said: "I would reject the league of nations with or without reservations." An indication that the conference committee was by no means ready to report was had when J. H. Hopkins, chairman of the national committee, addressed the delegates and pleaded for patience.

"Our mills may be grinding slowly but we hope they are grinding surely," he said.

quently finding its way into Senator Phelan's files.

Colonel Irish said he was not in favor of more Japanese immigration, nor of several other kinds of immigration, but that he was actuated in his appearance by a desire for fairness and justice to the Japanese already here.

Bolsheviki May Compel Evacuation of Warsaw

WARSAW, July 12.—The American relief association and the American Red Cross have completed evacuation of Vilna in the north and of Lemberg on the southern front. At last accounts the bolsheviki were 40 kilometers from Vilna. Extensive

A Sure Way to End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

preparations have been made for that city's defense. Lemberg is not yet in danger.

While the evacuation of Warsaw is being considered by foreigners should it be menaced by the bolsheviki, confidence is expressed in American circles that the bolsheviki will never pass the line of ethnographical Poland, as the peasant are reported to be organizing to join the army.

The American relief association, the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. and the typhus expedition have supplies valued at millions of dollars.

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

The Story of a Honeymoon

A Wonderful Romance of Married Life Wonderfully Told by ADELE GARRISON.

CHAPTER 640

WHY MADGE DECIDED THAT HARRY UNDERWOOD MIGHT BE WORTH HELPING.

Both Harry Underwood and I were guilty of the gauche of half-turning toward the table at our left when the woman occupying it spoke in so scornful a manner to the sad-eyed French waitress who had served us so deftly. Of course, we turned back again immediately, but we could hear the soft-voiced, startled interrogation of the girl:

"Pardon, madame?"

"I said," the woman's voice repeated with even greater emphasis than before, "that I always give 10 cents, but I shall not give it to you."

"There was no answer. In respectful, controlled silence the girl left her table and went to the front of the room to attend to something which the manager had summoned her with a lifted forefinger. There was a spot of hectic color on either cheek, the only evidence that the scornful words had hurt her.

I was thankful that the voice of the other woman, although clear and carrying enough to reach to our table, the one nearest her, hadn't penetrated to any of the other patrons of the restaurant. It was a controlled, well modulated voice, and from the evidence, its owner had the training which should have kept her from such an exhibition of ill breeding.

I think there was a spot of color in my own cheeks, for I was thoroughly indignant at the words and tone of the inconsiderate woman at the other table. Involuntarily I looked across at Mr. Underwood, to find him watching me with an in-
