

Flares and Flickers

James Oliver Curwood is perhaps the greatest of the modern writers in the world. His recent novels should take the place of the animal and north country country by storm after the adaption.

There have been such on the screen. They are the courage of "Marge O'Doone," "Back to the Future," "The River," and "The Great Northwest." The story of "Marge O'Doone," produced by Vitaphone, as a big special feature with an all-star cast, will be seen at the Liberty theater today. It is a red-blooded story of the great Canadian northwest, a land where honor and danger are part of the daily routine. Pauline Starke plays the title role and Niles Welch is the hero.

That popular idol of the screen, William Farnum, shows at the Oregon theater today in his latest William Fox production, "The Orphan," a stirring story of the west, written by Clarence E. Mulford.

The American Musical Comedy Revue company will play a three-day engagement at the Bligh during the Elks convention.

Charles Ray's new screen comedy, "Honor Comes Home," is another of those country boy pictures with which this youthful star has become delightfully identified on the screen. The photoplay will be shown at the Oregon theater next Sunday.

Sam and Goldie Harris have a rather colorful skit which they have named "A Trolley Car Episode"—and as the title may imply suggests a carload of lively fun. At the Bligh today.

Gloria Dawn little realized, when she became the good Samaritan to a stranger, ill of a fever from wandering in the tropics and bereft for the time being of his reason, that her heart's romance was unfolding, but it was.

Gloria Dawn, it might be explained, is the role essayed by beautiful

Olivia Thomas in her new Helanich picture, "Footlights and Shadows," which opens a two-day engagement at the Oregon theater next Wednesday.

Johnson Bros. & Johnson are a trio of singers and comedians who present a diversion in black and white face, which they bill as "A Few Moments of Minstrelsy," consisting of a miniature musical performance as the title indicates. At the Bligh today.

Monti and Part, exponents of the musical art, at the Bligh today on the Hippodrome show.

That there is good in every man, no matter how despicable he may be, is clearly shown in the new Paramount Aircraft picture, "The Ladder of Lies," starring Ethel Clayton, which comes to the Oregon theater next week.

Chester Conklin in person and his big company of filmmakers coming to Salem next week.

Wild West burlesque, Harold Lloyd is showing up the Woolsey and Wiley Quest type of western drizzle by burlesquing it in "An Eastern Westerner," his newest $100,000 two-reel pathé comedy which comes to the Liberty theater next Sunday. It is shot with laughter and double-barreled, hair trigger action.

Anita Stewart in "Sins of the Mother" at the Bligh today.

It has taken the genius of David Wark Griffith to bring the rich, romantic flavor of Bret Harte's stories of the California of the rough days of '49 to the screen. "Scarlet Days," the latest Griffith production

"The Courage of Marge O'Doone," by James Oliver Curwood is shown at the Liberty theater today. It is a graphic story of the Canadian northwest, filled with thrilling and suspense and staged in a manner that will make a production long to be remembered. It is in a class by itself.

Harry Carey, the big western star of today will be seen in "Huttopi!" at the Liberty Friday and Saturday.

The governor reiterated that he would go into every state.

"I think it would be very gracious to go in the southern states, although not necessary, of course," he remarked.

Morris & Keene is New Name of Optical Concern

A new member was added to the professional firm of Henry E. Morris & Co., recently when Dr. Arthur Keene, formerly of the firm of Gardner & Keene sold his jewelry business to Mr. Gardner and withdrew him optical practice from that organization, becoming affiliated with Dr. Morris, Steeves and Findley under the name of Morris & Keene Optical company.

The new firm will conduct its optical practice while in association with Mr. Gardner. He takes this practice with him to the new organization, merely retiring his hold on the jewelry business.

David Haine buried himself in the snow and wilderness of the great Canadian Northwest, seeking forgetfulness, but he found a wife.

It's a fighting story. If strong, vigorous, red-blooded tales, where blows and blood, hatred and murder show themselves, together with the great wild wastes of the frozen north, grizzly bears, fierce malamutes, primitive men and tender and beautiful women, appeal to you, then you'll put the 100 per cent stamp on this production.
