EVERYTHING this week has been the Elks and the attention of the whole week has been turned to the entertainment of the visitors. The women's reception committee, of which Mrs. W. Carlton Smith was chairman with Mrs. Ben W. Olcott, Mrs. E. Lee Steiner, Mrs. William Walton, Mrs. George H. Burnett and Mrs. E. A. Kurtz as the other members of the committee, spared no effort in making the visiting women comfortable and in planning entertainment for them. The artistic reception room in the Elks temple was always filled with guests who found a delightful place to rest, and a group of hostesses each day to make chat with and who served refreshing punch products of Salem and delicious little cakes. Each day a group of prominent women were present to act as hostesses with Mrs. W. Carlton Smith, general chairman of the women's reception committee. On Wednesday Mrs. R. E. Lee Steiner was hostess and she was assisted by Mesdames T. B. Kay, C. H. Robertson, A. J. Rahn, E. B. McMechan, T. A. Roberts, Dan Fry, Jr., Milton L. Meyers, L. C. Farmer, John McNary, W. H. Byrd, John Coughlin, F. W. Durbin and George L. Rose. On Thursday Mrs. George H. Burnett and Mrs. R. E. Lee Steiner were the hostesses, and were assisted by Mrs. Marie Finlay, Mrs. B. J. Miles, Mrs. W. D. Evans, Mrs. John Sites, Mrs. Roy Burton, Mrs. C. B. O'Neill, and Mrs. J. H. Steelhammer, as an out of town hostess. Mrs. Frank Meyers, Mrs. George Riches, Mrs. Herbert Siff and Mrs. Charles H. Robertson, were present and motored the guests over the city and to the state buildings. On Friday Mrs. Carlton W. Smith and Mrs. R. E. Lee Steiner were the hostesses. They were assisted by Mrs. T. C. Smith, Mrs. A. E. Hucklestein, Jr., Mrs. C. B. Wee, Mrs. David Byrne, Mrs. E. A. Skelley, Mrs. F. B. Frederick Lampert and Curtis Cross. On Saturday Mrs. E. A. Kurtz, wife of exalted ruler of Salem lodge, No. 326, was hostess assisted by Mrs. Lee Canfield, Mrs. Harry Wiedner, Mrs. Harry Wiedner, Mrs. W. H. Darby, Mrs. O. A. Olson, Mrs. U. S. Page and Mrs. C. Spaulding. Many prominent folk over the state and nation called at these headquarters during the convention and each was profuse in their praise of the courtesies extended the visiting women. Friday a large group of prominent women came from Vancouver, Wash., for ideas to entertain the Washington state Elks convention and to extend an invitation to the Salem women to be their guests during August 19, 20 and 21. The beautiful pageant "The Awakening of Spring," presented by the pupils of Mrs. Ralph White was the featured entertainment for the visiting women. It was given in the Grand theater Friday evening. Almost all of the children taking part in the pageant were children of Salem Elks and the women of the Elks auxiliary were the reception committee. The members of the club are Mesdames Ben W. Olcott, Clifford Brown, Chester Cox, T. A. Livesley, Dan Fry, Jr., William H. Burghardt, Jr., John J. Roberts, Walter L. McDougal, R. M. Hofer, William H. Lytle, F. C. Smith, Jr., W. M. Plimpton, J. L. Van Doren, and Frederick Thielson. The pageant was a beautiful thing with so many lovely little children in their dainty and fluffy frocks and in many of the dances adorned as the flowers, birds, fireflies, butterflies, etc. The children were all happy and their dancing won much praise from the guests. Solo dances, group dancing and vocal solos were given by Mona Schaum as storm, Jeanette Sykes as dawn, Myrtle Shipps as the sun, Leona Geer as the rainbow, Jane Plimpton as the rainbow, Mildred Roberts was a lovely fairy queen and Miss Margaret White was never so graceful as in her spring dance. The dancing dolls were each dear and received much praise. John Phillip Sousa in the person of Frederick Thielson was very clever.

A lovely hostess of the week was Miss Eunaine Craig when she entertained for Miss Elsie Borgel, a charming visitor from San Francisco Wednesday with a dancing party. For a large company of friends the rooms were graced with baskets and jardiniere of flowers and the porches and yards were brightly aglow with Japanese lanterns. Miss Craig carried out the Elks colors through the rooms. On the porch Miss Mary Elizabeth Bayne and Miss Gretchen Brown served punch during the evening and at midnight a dainty supper was served by them.

Those whom Miss Craig asked to meet Miss Borgel were Messrs. and Mesdames T. A. Roberts, Arthur Rahn, Ralph Cochran, Dan Kay, Jr., Ray Pomeroy, E. V. McMechan, Lloyd Farmer, Ted Mesch, V. McKenzie, Raymond W. Walsh, C. E. Farmer, Leo Page, Charles Strickland, Allen Byron, Earle Flegel, Mrs. Charles G. Miller of Carson, Wash., Misses Ada Miller, Bernice Craig, Irene Curtis, Edna Simonton, Alta Jones, Carylna Hurst, Gene Bell, Nancy Skaffe and Messrs. R. W. Brown, Mark Skiff, Jr., James Young, Carl Gabrielson, Albert Egan, Jack Hyatt, W. H. De Kay, Lawrence Hofer, Charles Craig and Theron Hoover.

The reception and tournament for the visiting women at the Illahee golf club Friday afternoon was one of the smart functions of the week planned for the visiting women. In the tournament Mrs. Erel Kay was winner. Goldenrod and golden glow were beautifully used in the house to add a festive air. A dozen or so prominent matrons presided at the tea tables and assisted about the house to make it such a success. Over 60 guests called during the hours of 2 to 4:30 o'clock.

The tennis tournaments this week also attracted much of the time of all the devotees to tennis. It brought the charming visitors to the city. Miss Irene Campbell and Miss Agnes McBride of Portland who played in the tournament. To add to the pleasure of the tournament a group of prominent matrons were hostesses to tea Thursday afternoon out on the beautiful Asylum avenue courts. A number of matrons found this a delightful aversion for that afternoon. Shasta daisies and other flowers added their beauty to the pretty tea table. The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. John J.

Roberts, Mrs. Charles Bates, Mrs. Walter McDougal, Earle Flegel, W. M. Plimpton and Mrs. Dan Fry, Jr.

Mrs. Clifford Brown entertained the members of the Illahee auxiliary Saturday at her home on Court street. The afternoon was devoted to a short business meeting, and a social time. During the business hour this club voted to continue the support of the French orphans which the crowd has adopted. Several additional guests were bidden and at the tea hour a dainty repast was served.

Helpful Health Hints

In the vocabulary of health, doing nothing is another way of doing wrong.

Those doctors who want laws to protect them from competition confess thereby their weakness.

Men sing into insignificance quite as often by not making the most of good health when they have it as by lacking good health when it is indispensable.

A man commands health and efficiency commensurate with the amount and quality of thought he expends in connection with his physical welfare. Hence, well-being lies not only with physical activity, but with the creation of the mind as well.

The idea that drugs cure diseases has taken a strong hold upon the minds of the "regular physicians" and their patients through years of education and custom. Such a thought as "possibly Nature can do something for herself if given a chance" seems never to cross the threshold of their understanding. But the fact remains: Nature does all the curing that is done. There is not, never was, and never will be a drug that will cure a disease.
