

WATER COMPANY STARTS SUIT

Condemnation Proceedings Instituted Against Property of Mintos

The Salem Water, Light and Power company has started proceedings to condemn certain property of which a fee simple title is owned by D. C. Minto and Jeanette Minto.

The complaint alleges that in November, 1897, John Minto and M. A. Minto granted to the Salem Water company perpetual and exclusive right to lay down pipes, and construct a crib for conveying water on their property consisting of 12.67 acres. The complaint states that on April 21, 1911, the rights and privileges obtaining on the premises by the surrender of them by John Minto and M. A. Minto to the water company, were transferred to the plaintiff in the condemnation suit. Also that since by accretion the premises have enlarged to 15.97 acres.

So far as the plaintiff can ascertain the defendants, D. C. Minto and Jeanette Minto, own the property in fee simple title. The plaintiff, according to complaint, asserts that no satisfactory agreement has been arrived at in regard to compensation.

The Salem Water, Light & Power company claim as a cause for the condemnation proceedings, a desire to provide the city with an ample supply of water. The company claims that the premises are being neglected, permitting excretions from stock and other debris to gather which pollute the water supply of the city.

In addition to the assessment of the damages for the property to be appropriated by the water company, the complaint prays the court, that upon payment in court by the plaintiff of damages to the defendants, the court give a judgment appropriating to the plaintiff the premises, so that the land may be the property of the plaintiff for its corporate use.

Y "Swimmin' Hole" Very Popular With Fellows

The Y. M. C. A. swimming tank is fast replacing the "Ye old swimmin' hole," according to the statement of James Elvin, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. Over 100 small boys visit the tank for a daily swim, he said last night, between the hours of one o'clock in the afternoon and nine o'clock in the evening.

Mr. Elvin ascribes the heavy patronage of the tank by the youngsters to the mothers. He stated that mothers have no occasion for worry when their youngsters go to the "Y" tank to swim. A member of the "Y" is constantly with the boys which eliminates any peril that might visit them while in the tank.

Sometimes fathers come to the tank to indulge in a swim with their sons. The tank, in the afternoons, is filled with yelling youngsters playing many water sports as, "follow-the-leader, water-polo" and other games.

So far as learned there was no foundation for reports that Japanese were being enlisted in the Cantu army.

COURT HOUSE CASE APPEALED

Famous Klamath County Turnoil Is to Have Hearing at Early Date

The Klamath county court house turnoil is now in the supreme court on appeal of the case of the J. M. Dougan company against Klamath county, and pending hearing of the case on its merits, the supreme court has issued a temporary injunction to prevent the county from expending any of its special court house funds.

The hearing will be October 1.

Dougan is builder of the court house which has been completed in the city square at Klamath Falls. He has been paid about $60,000 and claims about $35,000 is still due him. A change in the county administration, however, has given rise to a contention by the administration faction to complete a costly court house that was begun some years ago at Klamath Hot Springs.

Dougan lost his case in the lower court. Klamath county now has three court houses and does not use any one of them. In the square stands the original court house which is in too dilapidated a condition for use. Also in the square stands a fine new court house recently completed by Dougan, but the doors of which the county court refuses to unlock. At Klamath Hot Springs is the framework of the structure begun some years ago, which was to cost upward of half a million dollars and which the present county court proposes to complete. Court sessions are held in the city hall.

State Department Asks About British Oil Claim

WASHINGTON, July 29.—An official statement by the state department today disclosed that representations have been made to the British government regarding its policy touching the exploitation of oil fields and the distribution of oil from mandate countries. The subject has been discussed informally between the department and Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador here and the American embassy in London also is believed to have been gathering information.

The exchanges on the oil question are understood to have begun to take on a more formal character more than a month ago, and a note was addressed to the British government which was not in any sense a protest, but was rather intended to develop the intentions of the British in regard to the oil fields of Mesopotamia and perhaps some of the Balkan countries.

A good deal of confusion exists in official circles here as to the nature of agreements reported to have been made between Great Britain and France and perhaps other entente countries regarding the distribution of oil. Information is being sought particularly by this government as to pre-war agreements and the extent of governmental control over the oil fields as distinguished from undertakings arranged by private oil interests which occupy a different status from an international standpoint.
