

Flares and Flickers

The bush country of Australia, kangaroos and all, has been splendidly introduced into "Captain Bligh," the new Earle Williams feature which will be shown at the Bligh Theater today without the necessity of going to that far away country.

Thomas Meighan, who plays the part of the unloving husband in "The Thunderbolt," starring Katherine

MacDonald and which will be seen at the Liberty theatre, commencing next Thursday, admits that he is always unlucky when the time comes for selecting the cast of a photograph.

"They got the prettiest woman on the screen and then cast me in a part where I had to hate her," wails the unfortunate Thomas.

Coming to the Oregon theater next

Sunday for three days. The management of this theater takes great pleasure in announcing the coming of Clara Kimball Young in Marah Ellis Ryan's greatest fiction work, "For the Soul of Raphael," a thrilling, beautiful story of the golden days of California, when stout hearts conquered a strange land and a stranger people, when superstitious Indians prayed to their sun gods, and when adventure, romance and love drove men to deeds of valor and courage worthy the name of the spirit of America.

"Are You Legally Married?" a pictorial sensation, with no sex problem, no vulgarity, no war, no vampires. It comes to the Bligh Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Eight little children are in the basket of a miniature balloon in the center of a massive ballroom when the balloon catches fire. Their rescue forms one of the thrilling moments in "The Butterfly Man," the Robertson-Cole special at the Liberty theater. Lew Cody appears in the title role, starting today.

Bryant Washburn in "What Happened to Jones" will be the feature attraction at The Oregon next Friday and Saturday. Just another good comedy.

Probably certain people have forgotten that they are minstrel fans because it has been so long since they had an opportunity to see a really first class minstrel aggregation—however the minstrel microbe will set them when the Famous Georgia Minstrels make their flash dress parade over our main streets announcing their appearance at the Bligh theater for matinee and two performances in the evening next Saturday, August 14.

Cooper & Lane a pair of talented colored comedians, singers and dancers, who appear in their lively specialty, "The Bellboy and the Porter," at the Bligh today.

"I fear neither God nor devil!" This was Wolf's philosophy. And the story of his downfall—of the very victory of a brave woman over a brute man—of the regeneration of a coward, is a story as mighty as the sea, with all the rush and clatter of the surf. See Jack London's "The Sea Wolf" at the Oregon today, tomorrow and Tuesday.

Hugh Johnson—A talking trickster who indulges in a gabfest of comedy. At the Bligh today.

The Perminis are a slight, small couple of the French school of acrobatics, presenting clever daring and novelty feats of equilibrium. At the Bligh today.

NEW ENGLANDERS AT CAMP GROUND

When the Salem automobile camping ground was first opened the office of T. G. Gilbert was only a one-room building. Now he has a neat office with two small rooms which he uses for storing away provisions for the grounds contributed by the Commercial club.

Mr. Albert maintains a good supply of dry wood which is sold to the automobile campers who desire to use the brick ovens on the camp grounds. Valuable information about road conditions in Oregon and Washington are kept posted by Mr. Albert on the walls for the use of travelers. The walls of the office are decorated with literature regarding farming conditions in the Willamette valley. Mr. Albert says that

BEAUTIFUL SALEM.
Have you heard of our beautiful Salem,
The Queen of the glittering West. Where Nature in gorgeous profusion is showering her brightest and best.

Have you heard of our lovely Willamette
That leaps from the gorges of snow,
Then gracefully glides through the city
On its way to the ocean below?
Have you heard of the two lovely brooklets
That quietly flow through the town,
Then driving the wheels of the factories
They rush to the river beyond?

Have you heard of our gardens and flowers,
The exquisite lay of the land,
So gracefully and gently declining
Toward the river as Nature has planned?

Have you seen our wide streets and the parkings
Where the rose in profusion abounds,
Where the maple trees gather from the breezes
Most delightfully murmuring sounds?

Have you noticed the white-cressed mountains
That watch o'er our fortunes by day,
While the soft silver moon in its glory
Is fright'ning night's darkness away?

And the evergreen forests abounding
Are smiling on orchard and field
Where the prune and the apple and cherry
Beat the world in abundance of yield;

Where the earth and the sky and the elements
Are working together in zest
To make of the city of Salem
The loveliest town in the West;

Where the berries are found in their glory
Far richer than anywhere else,
Where the streams of the "Loju" are flowing
As a basis of fabulous wealth.

Now, you've heard of this beautiful city,
Which surpasses our words at their best
On the banks of the loveliest river
That graces the vales of the West.

And no doubt you have carefully listened
While we've told you the beautiful story;
So come in all haste to our city
And share in our wonderful glory.

CAMBRIDGE MAN NOW.

JERUSALEM, July 24. — The office of governor of Jerusalem once occupied by Pontius Pilate, is now held by Colonel Ronald Storrs, a graduate of Cambridge university and son of the dean of Rochester college, England.

His task is one to test the administrative ability of any man. Jerusalem is a city of disunions, where, whatever may come of the future, for the moment Zionists and Arabs are passionately divided and to steer a just path between them and induce them to join him on that path is thankless work.
It is to that task however, that he chiefly devotes himself. Twice a week he has meetings of his favorite Jerusalem society, where French, Italians, British, Americans, rabbis, Zionists, leaders, commercial men of standing and others who are in any way prominent in the life of the city are brought together and in the course of debate, led to see that they have in common a single citizenship. His motto as governor is "unify and be friends."
Colonel Storrs was one of the prime movers in the establishment of an independent Arab kingdom. He is 34 years old.
