

SPEAKER URGES CLOSER TOUCH WITH INDIANS

Hope Elizabeth Haupt Sees Need of Change in Method of Administration

SILETZ RESERVE LAUDED

Indian Songs Are Interpreted by Mrs. Oscar B. Gingrich of Salem

"What does America want, Christ or Chaos?" was the question hurled at the congregation at the First Christian church Sunday night by Miss Hope Elizabeth Haupt of Washington, D. C., in her lecture, "Red and White Brothers."

"Russia, today," continued Miss Haupt, in her passionate plea for a Christian America, "is being torn asunder, reduced to ruins, rearing the fruits of disorder, crime, and chaos, because she chose to disregard the teachings and principles of living enunciated by Christ. Does America desire to follow in the footsteps of Russia? Or, does America wish to grow in splendor, in strength and in everlasting fame by diligent adherence to the righteousness as taught by the Man of Galilee."

In her lecture, "Red and White Brothers," Miss Haupt makes an unprejudiced and impassioned plea for the American Indian in regard to the method of government now in vogue, and in regard to conditions tolerated by the great mass of American people whom she characterized as "ignorant of the real state of affairs." Miss Haupt deplored the fact that many are not conversant with the actual conditions and circumstances existing on the reservations, which, she said, she had visited. She deprecated the indifference of some relative to efforts to become acquainted with the Indian problem of America.

"Up and down the Pacific coast, the Siletz Indian reservation is reputed to be the best reservation, and now I know the reason why," spoke Miss Haupt of this reserve which she has visited only recently. "Superintendent Edwin L. Chalcraft deserves much of the credit for the most talked-of reservation in three states. The Indians on this reservation are all self-supporting, efficient farmers using modern methods of farming, and know the meaning of thrift."

Siletz People Praised. The unusual living conditions found among the Siletz Indians, Miss Haupt in the course of her lecture last Sunday attributed to the fact that they are not segregated, but are permitted and encouraged to live with white neighbors. At this point Mr. Chalcraft received a tribute from the speaker for his foresight and sagacity in handling the Indian problem on his reservation. It is Miss Haupt's opinion that the remedy for

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

By GENE BYRNES

The "sad misgovernment of the Indians on the reservations is in doing away with segregation. The rubbing of elbows of another color would revolutionize the careers of the Indians, was the assertion advanced by Miss Haupt.

During the course of Miss Haupt's lecture, she referred to her experiences among different tribes in the middle west and the southern states. From each tribe she visited she had some pleasant and informative experience to relate which added interest to her lecture. The fact that the Seminoles are bottled in the everglades of Florida, although by self-imposition, Miss Haupt characterized as a disgrace to American history.

Indian Songs Heard. Several songs were rendered in the tongues of the Sioux, the Chipewya, the Siletz and in the Chinook jargon. Miss Haupt prefaced her songs with explanatory remarks that were enlightening to her audience. The songs were religious in composition, interpreted in the tongues of the tribe she was representing.

An unusual feature added to the attractiveness of the lecture was the appearance on the platform of Mrs. Oscar B. Gingrich in an Indian costume made of buckskin and trimmed with colored beads, shells and emeralds. Mrs. Gingrich interpreted two Indian songs and her character delineation displayed a genuine realization of the characters.

White House with President Lincoln, I find the following: "It had got to be," said Mr. Lincoln, "midsummer, 1862. Things had gone from bad to worse, until I felt that we had reached the end of our rope and the plan of operations we had been pursuing; that we had about played our last card, and must change our tactics or lose the game. I now determined upon the adoption of the emancipation policy; and, without consultation with, or the knowledge of the cabinet, I prepared the original draft of the proclamation, and, after much anxious thought, called a cabinet meeting upon the subject. This was the last of July, or the first part of the month of August, 1862."

Mr. Lincoln did not remember the exact date. Mr. Seward objected to issuing the proclamation until it might be supported by a military victory. Its issue was postponed until after the battle of Antietam, fought on September 17, 1862. Before September 20 Mr. Lincoln finished writing the second draft of the preliminary proclamation. It was approved by the cabinet on the 20th, and published the 22nd of September, 1862, to take effect January 1, 1863.

The first draft was ready early in August and it is probable that our colored friends date the proclamation from that time. Yours very truly, JAMES ELVIN.

(The above does not completely answer the question raised by The Statesman as to why the colored people of this country celebrate August 4 as Emancipation day; though it suggests the possible answer. In some way the colored people have evidently decided that the actual signing was August 4, 1862. But how do they arrive at that conclusion?—Ed.)

Competitive Drill for Uniformed Teams Planned

King Bins Clancey announces that the Salem Cherrians will hold two meetings next month—September 14 and 21—to take up for the one missed this month.

The first question to come before the club at the September meeting is that of staging a big drill at the state fair next month. A competitive drill has been announced for Tuesday, September 28, of fair week and those in charge are anxious that the Salem body make a good showing.

The organizations besides the Salem Cherrians which have declared their intentions of entering the contest are the Rosarians of Portland, the Prunarians of Vancouver and the Radiators of Eugene. Officials are also trying to get the Albany Peasants and the Falarians of Oregon City to tenter teams.

"Auld Acquaintance" Not Forgotten at Silvertown

SILVERTOWN, Or., Aug. 9.—(Special to The Statesman)—Mrs. George Henriksen entertained a few friends at her home on Second street Friday evening in honor of Qualset. The evening was spent with music and games. The hostess served refreshments at 10 o'clock. Those present were Miss Carrie Qualset, H. Qualset, Rev. and Mrs. George Henriksen, Miss Lulu Gopierud, Chester Gopierud, Miss Lillie Madsen, Miss Dora Henriksen, Miss Louise Henriksen, Miss Cora Satera, Victor Madsen and George Henriksen, Jr. Miss Qualset and her mother and uncle arrived from Nebraska a few weeks ago. They visited for a short time at the Hegvit home on Liberty hill. Later they spent three weeks in California, from where they returned last week and bought the G. Loomis residence on the East hill.

WILLIAM DUNCAN
It is only natural that William Duncan should be the hero of hundreds of thrilling escapes and strenuous rescues in Vitagraph's famous serials. His physique and early training particularly fitted him for just such a career. He completed his education at the University of Pennsylvania, where he took a prominent part in college field games and athletics. He became athletic instructor and toured the country at the head of his own dramatic company before becoming a serial star and director.
