HOLD STAMPS SAYS LEGION
California Posts Start Campaign for Conservation of Securities

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 18.—In resolutions fathered by Secretary Fred Bebergall, the California American legion, in its second annual convention here, makes a stirring appeal to the American people to hold their liberty bonds "sacred to the memory of those who spent their blood, their health and their lives without thought of return, that America might live and uphold her honor."

The resolutions deplored the fact that since the signing of the armistice thousands of liberty bond purchasers have "thrown their bonds upon the market heedlessly without proper consideration of their own interests or the welfare of our country" and requested local posts of the legion in the department of California to exert every effort to induce holders of the obligations of America to retain their liberty bonds and to purchase more in the open market.

The resolutions ended with this quotation: "That America may be served by a citizenry conscious of the trust of citizenship reposed in it, quickened to its responsibilities and jealous of its duties."

Secretary Bebergall also fathered a resolution, which the convention adopted, supporting the treasury department's thrift movement represented in the sales of thrift and war savings stamps and treasury savings certificates as an institution worthy of the confidence and support of all citizens, designed "to stimulate thrift and habits of economic stability so vital to verile, loyal and responsible American citizenship." The local California posts of the legion were asked in the resolutions to use the full weight of their influence in calling the citizens of America "back to the ways of thrift and savings for the good of America."

ANARCHIST PLOT IS A CERTAINTY

he was there an hour later than the letter charged. He denied all knowledge of the explosion. He explained his presence in the financial district by stating that he wished to dispose of some jewelry boxes there.

Brailovsky further admitted, police said, that he talked to three men there. He said he knew only one of them, but the man whom he knew was acquainted with the other two.

At first he refused absolutely, the police explained, to divulge the name of his companions.

"My race," he is quoted as saying, "never divulges the name of another person without that person's consent, and so I cannot enlighten you."

Brailovsky, who is 36 years old and small in stature, was well dressed, his voice, manner and expression giving the impression he was a man of education. He told the police, they said, that he was the editor of the "Russky Golos." He explained that in his conversation with the three men the one soliciting a loan for the construction of a Russian people's theater was discussed.

Presided at Concert. Federal investigators declared they recognized him as the man who presided a few days ago at a concert in Madison Square Garden, given for the benefit of the Russian children held at Fort Wadsworth, pending their departure homeward. Ludwig C. A. K. Martine, unofficial representative here of the soviet republic, was the guest of honor.

Detective James S. Gegan, long head of the bomb squad, identified Brailovsky as the man who had dingy quarters at the place where the "Russky Golos" originally was published. The detective said he went there first in March, 1917, again in June of that year, and a third time in November, 1919. On one or two occasions, Gegan added, he seized quantities of radical literature there, and each time found Brailovsky presiding over earnest conferences of foreigners.

Boy Unidentified. The police attach importance to the arrest.

Only one body found after the explosion remains unidentified tonight. It is of a boy of about 15 years. The opinion was expressed that he was the driver of the "death wagon," which is believed to have carried the bomb, and an investigation is being made.

Parts of Bomb Found. Medical Examiner Norris declared that a medical fragment found in the unidentified boy's body "is clearly a part of the casing of the bomb, or one of the bombs, which caused the explosion."

"One side of this piece of metal," Norris explained, "is slightly convex and highly polished. Further proof that it was a part of a bomb's casing is furnished by the density and thick metal. Very heavy, the fragment is about an inch and a half long. This entered the boy's back and imbedded itself in the abdomen."

"It would be absurd to think this piece of metal could have been struck by a fragment from the original bomb and projected with force sufficient to carry it almost through the abdomen. The bomb casing, together with all the steel, iron and even splinters of wood we found in the bodies of the dead and injured, have been carefully labeled, placed in envelopes and turned over to the police department."

Norris declared that in every case except one death was caused directly by "punctures or penetrating wounds," that fractured bones had caused hemorrhages if the missiles did not reach a vital spot. The exception was that of a woman, who, he said, was burned to death. Her body was found nearest the explosion.

Brailovsky was not placed under arrest until after he had been questioned for nearly eight hours. Detective Gegan asserted Brailovsky was at one time editor of the "Peasant and Workman," a radical paper, suppressed by the government in March, 1918. Brailovsky was also the moving spirit.

Gegan added, in a recent convention of radicals, when he is said to have opened with these words: "In name of the world revolution, I declare this convention renewed."

The Bolsheviks are not Russian as much as they did.

and one-half per cent on the volume of business of a firm.

Need Women on Missions. At a luncheon by the San Francisco, Center, a woman's organization, he declared that the country would have a much better idea of basic conditions in Russia if a group of women of the character of Jane Addams or the heads of American educational institutions had been included in the Root mission to Russia.

FACTS
—That Tell; One Case Among Many
Chevrolet Makes Muddy Hill; Man With a Team Loser.

Victor H. Haines, driving a Chevrolet "490," has a right to be proud of his car. It was the only one out of twenty that was able to negotiate the muddy hill on the detour from the Pacific Highway above Kelso on one day last month without the assistance of a team. Incidentally he saved enough money to buy several gallons of gasoline. Here is his signed statement:

On the 13th day of July I drove back from Seattle. Made the detour to Castle Rock and then back over the ferry and the hill about two miles north of Kelso.

They were grading and it had rained, and there were nineteen cars bound for Portland that had to be pulled over this hill into Kelso, with the exception of one, mine, a "490" Chevrolet, which came through in mud hub deep, without any assistance.

My Chevrolet saved me $5 right there, for that was the amount charged for pulling each car through the mud with team.

The Castle Rock garage proprietor said from then on he was going to handle nothing but Chevrolets.
