GENERAL interest today and tomorrow centers around the unveiling and formal presentation of the Jason Lee portrait, which will take place in the hall of Representatives at the state capitol this afternoon. Bishop Shepherd and other representatives of the church and state will assist in the program. The public will be welcomed on the occasion. Bishop Shepherd will be accompanied by Mrs. Shepherd and several other women will be present with their husbands. Methodist homes all over the city will send hospitality to the visitors, and a 6 o'clock dinner at Lausanne hall tonight will honor Bishop and Mrs. Shepherd and other prominent men and women of the church.

The Modern Home Has a Player Piano

Today music in the home means more than it has ever before. A good Player-Piano brings within the reach of every member of the household the privilege not merely of hearing music but also of making it.

Picture a Player-Piano in your own home. Every evening it is played now by one member of the family, now another. The music is generally varied in character. First popular or dance music like "My Laddie," "Dardanella," "Karavan," etc. Then come, possibly, selections from current musical comedies, or one or two grand opera favorites and perhaps Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rhapsody," or something equally inspiring. The whole family will share in the enjoyment and the elevating influence of music.

We offer a very comprehensive stock of Player-Pianos—the Aeolian Company line (the famous Pianola and marvelous Duo Art). The prices cover a wide range. With the convenient payments terms which we gladly arrange, it is remarkable how easy it is to buy a Player—indeed no modern home need be without one.

Mrs. Frank W. Spencer, Mrs. Henry J. Bean and Mrs. Grace Bean will entertain with a tea this afternoon between the hours of 3 and 5 o'clock.

An attractive picture of Mrs. Joseph M. Reig and small son, Joseph Marvin Jr., appeared in Sunday's society columns of the Oregonian. Mrs. Reig was, before her marriage, Miss Ida Simmons, and is claimed as a former Salem girl, making her home for several years with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Wells. Mrs. Reig frequently visits here as the guest of Miss Hazel Downing.

Friday night in the parlors of the First Methodist church, will take place the formal reception of the newly appointed pastor, Rev. Blaine E. Kirkpatrick and his wife. The committee in charge is headed by Mrs. J. A. Mills and includes Mrs. Ray Farmer, Mrs. E. E. Gilbert, Mrs. Bradford, Mrs. Fleming, Mrs. J. W. La Barre and Mrs. W. B. Summerville.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Scott passed the week-end in Portland, being entertained as the guests of Mrs. J. P. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. John Chalmers of Multnomah.

Mrs. Orin LaCourse (Marcella Bynan), spent the week-end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bynan of 1070 East Fortieth street, South Portland. Mrs. LaCourse was accompanied by her young daughter, Catherine Marcella.

Arriving in Salem tonight to be entertained briefly at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Miles, will be Mr. and Mrs. William Strench and son Roger of Ketchikan, Alaska, and Dr. Gertrude Minthorn of Ludhiana, India, who are returning from Newport, where they have been guests of Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Minthorn. All are on their way to Alaska.

Dr. Minthorn has been identified with the Woman's Medical college, a non-denominational institution of Ludhiana, of the Punjab district, India, where she has been for several years.

Mrs. and Mrs. Irwin Griffith and grandson, Irwin G. Edwards, left Portland Saturday night for San Diego, Cal., where they will spend the winter.

Mrs. Mary Billings left a few days ago for Corvallis where she will make an extended visit to her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Henkle.

The regular social afternoon of the Order of the Eastern Star will be held in the lodge room in Masonic temple this afternoon, a short program to feature the occasion. The hostesses for the occasion will be Mrs. Byron B. Herrick, Mrs. James Godfrey, Mrs. David W. Pugh and Mrs. W. A. Rutherford.

Miss Ruth Rulifson assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Weeks and Mrs. Dora Cumings, will entertain with a large Halloween party Thursday night at the country home of the former, members of the local O. A. C. club to be the guests.

Miss Ina Proctor is home from Eugene where she was entertained at the Delta Delta Delta house, going down to attend a "tri-delt" dance.

Mrs. R. L. Matthews returned from Portland Saturday night where she spent last week as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson. Mrs. Matthews, who is secretary of the Marion County Children's bureau, spoke on the work of the local organization at the Thursday afternoon meeting of the State Parent-Teacher association, her report arousing much interest among the women present.

Robert Bishop of Pendleton, left for his home Saturday night after spending several days with his grandmother, Mrs. C. D. Gabrielson, who went to Portland Friday to meet him.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Grier entertained as their week-end guests Dr. and Mrs. F. Hellworth of Falls City.

Mr. O. B. Gingrich has returned from Portland, where she spent several days.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Niemeyer and small son, Stuart, spent the week-end in Portland, making their headquarters at the Benson hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Aufrance and Mrs. L. K. Page spent the week-end in Donald, being the guests of Mr. and Mrs. August Aufrance, who also entertained for the time, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Aufrance and son Francis, of Portland.

Miss Clover Miller, principal of the Silverton schools, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Roma C. Hunter.

Carl Gabrielson returned yesterday from Seattle where he was entertained with a party of army friends, over the week-end at a house party given by well-known Seattle folk. Mr. Gabrielson went down to attend the U. of W.-O. A. C. football game.

The Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Jason Lee church will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. G. Keuscher, on North Church street. An interesting report of the anniversary meeting of the Oregon conference will be given by Mrs. A. S. Mulligan. All members and friends are invited to attend.

The Salem Arts League will meet in regular session tonight in the auditorium of the City Library, at 8 o'clock. An interesting program has been worked out which will include as a feature, readings by Mrs. Harold W. Street, recently of Spokane. Instrumental numbers will be furnished by Miss Martha Swart and Heida Swart, and there will also be several readings by Perry Prescott Reigman.

An enjoyable affair Friday night was the second of a series of card parties given by St. Monica's Altar society, in the Knights of Columbus hall. Players made up 15 tables for the game, the trophies going to Mrs. John Hendrickson and Father Derronin. Hostesses were Mrs. U. S. Page and Mrs. E. C. Quinn. The next party will be in a fortnight.

One of the happiest parties which the week-end recorded was the one given for the pleasure of the girls of the Berean club of the First Baptist church, by the members of the Loyal Sons class, in the church parlors, Saturday evening.

The success of the affair was attributed largely to Harold Socolofsky, Ward Southworth and Russell Pratt. For decorations they employed the girls' class colors, red and white. Dahlias in these colors were used about the big room and to center the small tables that were called into service at the refreshment hour.

Those present were Miss Eva Weathers, Miss Pansy Millison, Miss Gladys Jensen, Miss Ruth E. Ross, Miss Dorothy Copley, Miss Hollie Vick, Miss Audrey White, Miss Olive Lester, Miss Lucille McClean, Miss Luella Barnett, Miss Myrtle Jensen, Miss Helene Greg, Miss Alice Roth, Miss Anna Peterson, and Messrs. Harry E. White, Webster Ross, Otto Engdahl, Lewis Edmunds, Claude Litchfield, Frank Hoover, Herbert Socolofsky, Silas M. Fletcher, Harold Socolofsky, Ward Southworth, John Skeewis and Russell Pratt.

The Woman's Home Missionary society of the Leslie Methodist church will meet at the parsonage at half past two o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when an interesting address will be given by Mrs. Louchridge, an American missionary from India. A good attendance is desired.

Convalescence after pneumonia, typhoid fever and the grip, is sometimes merely apparent, not real. To make it real and rapid, there is no other tonic so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla. Thousands so testify. Take Hood's.

CHAPTER 728

HOW WILLIAM RECEIVED THE LETTER WHOSE ENVELOPE TROUBLED LILLIAN.

I must have uttered an involuntary exclamation as I angrily crumpled up Dicky's letter with its reference to Edith Fairfax, for Lillian turned quickly from the window, and came toward me, her face full of concern. I realized that she had not lost sight of me for an instant, although her attention seemed to be entirely occupied with showing poor old William the view from the window.

"Dear girl," she said in a low voice, as she picked up the crumpled letter from the floor, "is there anything I can do for you?"

"Nothing," I returned drearly. "Some time I'll tell you all about it, but—"

"Of course, not now," she returned briskly, then stooped and picked up the rest of the mail which lay unheeded in my lap. I wondered a bit at her action, for Lillian, despite her unconventional ways, is punctilious in little matters of courtesy, but her next words explained her action.

"Forgive me, dear," she said, "but here is a letter which you evidently haven't seen, and which I wish you would let me open first. You aren't wholly strong yet you know."

I looked at her in bewilderment.

"What letter?" I said stupidly, and then the realization of Lillian's loving watchfulness over and consideration of me came to me as it had done many times before.

"You know you may do anything you wish with me or with anything of mine," I said quietly. "Is that it?"

"Thank you," she returned, and the simple words held a wealth of meaning.

"William," she turned to the old chap who was still gazing out of the window, and who fairly jumped as her crisp enunciation of his name reached his ears. "I couldn't keep back a smile at William's subjugation to Lillian. He evidently believed she had the powers of light and darkness, the keys to heaven and the other place in her hands.

"Yes, ma'am," he said falteringly.

"Who gave you these letters?"

"The old lady, ma'am."

"Which one?" Lillian's effusive mind knew better than to confuse the old chap's simple mentality with a reproof as to his disrespectful manner of speech.

"The sick one, ma'am, Mister Graham's mother."

"She'll call you to her room and give them to you?"

My curiosity was aroused. What was there about this letter to make Lillian devote so much time to questioning poor old William about its receipt? I saw that while her ears were evidently bent in attention to William's answers, her eyes were busy searching the superscription of the envelope in her hand.

The envelope was a square one of a texture, color and shape acceptable to any woman of good breeding. It was distinctively the kind of envelope a woman would use, and I couldn't help wondering who was the author of the epistle which was causing Lillian so much worried thought.

I waited impatiently for William's answer. The old chap was slow in replying, evidently being anxious to get his reply accurate in every particular for Lillian's critical ears.

"The old lady sent Katie for me," William said at last. "Katie come out to me in an awful hurry, and said the old lady wanted me to get up to her room and down again before that other old dev—please excuse me Missis—"

William gasped.

"Before her cousin came back, is that it?" Lillian asked encouragingly.

"If Agatha—"

"Yes, ma'am; yes, ma'am before her cousin came back," William beamed with reassurance. "Seems she didn't want 'tother one to know about the mail. Katie had been gettin' it every day and takin' it straight to the old lady, and I guess 'tother one was pretty mad about it."

"So I hurried up as fast as I can, an' the old lady she roots around under the sheet and brings up this package."

"Don't let nobody see any of this till you get up to Miss' Granie," she says solemn like. 'Of course,' she says, 'if Miss' Underwood is there she can have it, but nobody else. An' if Agatha asks you anything about it tell her you don't know nothin'—see?'" committee of advisors to consider the adoption of a boiler code applying to the entire state.

As provided in the so-called safety statute passed by the last legislative session, invitations have been forwarded to firms, organizations, insurance companies and the city of Portland to appoint representatives on the committee. The members of the committee will be representative of firms manufacturing boilers, of companies as users of boilers, of stationary engineers, insurance firms handling boiler insurance and several additional experts.

The first meeting of the committee will be held in Portland on November 1, at which time a tentative boiler code will be placed before the committee for its consideration. Upon final agreement upon the part of the committee and the formal adoption of the committee recommendations by the accident commission, it is expected to prevent the present practice of bringing into Oregon second-hand boilers, the operation of which is not permitted by the laws of other states.

Another effect of such a code will be to establish certain minimum requirements as to the manufacture of boilers to be hereafter installed in the state.

Turner Bonds Approved by Attorney General

I. H. Van Winkle, attorney general, has approved the proceedings attendant upon a bond issue of $10,000 by the municipality of Turner, Marion county. The approval was made at the request of O. P. Hoff, state treasurer, who will purchase the Turner bonds. The town will use the proceeds of the bond sale for improvement of its water system.

Society Ladies Adopt New Hair Curling Method

Since the introduction of the silimerine method in this country, it has become quite the "grozier thing" among society women, who have readily adopted it in place of the destructive curling iron. The waves and curls acquired by the new method are far more natural in appearance and the hair of course is glossier and prettier than could be if the life were cooked out of it.

The liquid is pleasant to use, being neither greasy nor sticky. It is a simple thing to apply with a clean tooth comb before doing up the hair. The lovely wavy effect in evidence in about three hours is all that one could wish for. It costs little to use liquid silimerine, as a few ounces from the druggist will keep one's hair in curl for weeks.

State Boiler Code is Planned by Commission

For the purpose of creating safer conditions in connection with the operation of steam boilers, the state industrial accident commission is now organizing a

A Beautiful, Long-lived Roof—Certain-teed Shingles

Certain-teed Asphalt Shingles, in subdued reds or greens, add an attractive touch to the appearance of any home. Their surface does not wear off, wash off or change color and they do not crack or break.

In addition to their beauty, they provide weather protection and are, at the same time, fire-retarding and spark-proof. Their cost is low compared with other equally high grade types of roofing and they are guaranteed for ten years.

In addition to shingles, Certain-teed Roofing comes in rolls, mineral-surfaced red or green—much like the shingles in appearance—and also in the smooth surface staple gray kind.

Like all products bearing the Certain-teed label, Certain-teed Roofings are the highest quality.

See a Certain-teed dealer the next time you need roofing. He can help you select the best kind of roofing for your purposes and sell you what you need at a real saving in cost.
