By MOLLY BRUNK

QUITE the most interesting event of the midweek is the "At Home," of Mrs. Willis C. Hawley, and Miss Iris Hawley, which will take place at the William Brown residence, 530 State street, this afternoon between the hours of 3 and 6 o'clock. The affair is to be informal, no invitations having been issued.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Bishop were guests at a luncheon given yesterday at the Hotel Marion by Mrs. and Mrs. Robert A. Booth of Eugene, who were here to take part in the Jason Lee dedicatory exercises at the Capitol.

Miss Muriel Steeves has as her guests for the week, her cousins Karl and Arthur Steeves of Hillsborough, New Brunswick, Canada.

This evening is being eagerly looked forward to by a group of the younger folk, who will be guests at that time of Miss Mabel Hunter and Miss Leah Ross, who are entertaining with a fine party, and a supper afterward at the home of Miss Hunter. About 20 guests will be bidden.

Miss Myrtle Albright, a Unitversity of Oregon friend of Mrs. Paul R. Hendricks was the weekend guest of the latter, coming up from her home in Marquam.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Clarke spent the week-end in Silverton as the guest of friends.

Mrs. Clark J. Thompson and family have returned from Portland, where they spent the week-end, and to which place they are removing shortly to make their permanent home.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Cupper had as a brief visitor Tuesday, the latter's nephew, Sam Kuebler, of Seattle.

Mrs. J. J. Ackerman of 135 Wilson street, will open her home Thursday afternoon to the South Salem circle of the American War Mothers, when they meet for their regular session of sewing for the November bazaar, which the local organization is to sponsor. To raise money for material with which to make the children's garments which the women are working on a silver tea was held in connection with the regular meeting of the South circle at the home of Mrs. A. Michaels last week.

The regular monthly meeting of the Salem chapter of War Mothers will be held in the auditorium of the Commercial club next Tuesday, at which time a short program will be given along with the regular business session. The Central circle of the organization has been working on rugs for the bazaar, and it is planned to hold a meeting this week, to continue the work, in the parlors of the First Congregational church.

One of the largest affairs of the week for the younger folk and one that is being happily anticipated is the Hallowe'en party to be given Saturday night at the W. C. Young home, when Miss Florence Young and Miss Jeanette Vandervort will be joint hostesses. About forty invitations have been issued for the party.

Mrs. Roy Hixon will be hostess

A New Principle in Complexion Treatment

Most creams are injurious when used habitually. They clog the pores and eventually form a crust of scales, stifling skin which interferes with eliminative action and makes the skin sticky and pasty. This is the application of mercurized wax—which acts upon an entirely different principle. While perfectly harmless, it has the peculiar property of removing by absorption the dead and half-dead particles of scarf-skin, as well as unhealthy matter in the pores. Thus it takes away from instead of adding to the complexion. The result is a perfectly natural and healthy young complexion. Mercurized wax, procurable at any drug store (one ounce is sufficient), is applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning. The correct principle in the treatment of wrinkles is to tighten the skin, which naturally firms the lines. A face bath remarkably effective in this direction may be made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint which for the Golden Hour club Thursday afternoon, entertaining at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. A. Cleveland, on Twentieth street. This is to be the second meeting of the year.

Mrs. R. B. Duncan and Mrs. Earl Baker, accompanied Mrs. J. H. Heller, of Indianapolis as far as Portland Sunday on her way to her home. For her pleasure a trip over the Columbia highway was taken previous to her departure.

Mrs. Heller spent about a month in Salem, being entertained while here as the hostess by Mrs. Duncan and Mrs. Carl Abrams.

Mrs. Duncan and Mrs. Baker remained over in Portland until Tuesday evening visiting with friends.

This afternoon in the parlors of the First Methodist church will take place the regular monthly meeting of all the seven circles which make up the Ladies' Aid society of the church.

Dr. and Mrs. G. V. Ellis are now domiciled in their new home at 594 North Liberty street, removing from 487 North High street.

Dr. and Mrs. John Parsons of Portland, who came up to attend the unveiling of the Jason Lee portrait yesterday afternoon, are being entertained during their stay as the guest of Mrs. F. J. Swafford.

The Parsons have a host of friends here, gained during the six years that Dr. Parsons occupied the pulpit of the First Methodist church.

"Governor Pen W. Olcott," says the Eugene Guard, "was a luncheon guest of Hendricks Hall on Thursday noon, when he was in Eugene to preside at the annual Pledge day at the university. Additional guests were Chaplain W. S. Gilbert, newly appointed regent of the university, who spoke at the assembly on the campus preceding the Pledge day ceremony. President P. L. Campbell, Dean Elizabeth Fox, Miss Mabel Cummings and Karl Othank."

The women of the Oregon state Republican central committee, of which Mrs. C. P. Bishop is a local representative, have received a letter from Will H. Hays asking them to keep on working hard for the Republican cause. "Work until the very last minute," he advises. Mr. Hays also spoke highly of the work being done in this state by the women of the state central committee and by those who have given their time in the Harding-Coolidge club and in the general work for the cause.

Surrounding him on the occasion of his 70th birthday Wednesday afternoon, were a group of relatives and friends of J. N. Skaffe, who has spent nearly all his life in Oregon, being born shortly after his parents crossed the plains. Twenty years of this time have been passed in Salem, his boyhood home being in Fairfield.

A sister, Mrs. John Marthaler, of that place was present to assist him in celebrating the day, and two other sisters were also with him, Mrs. Samuel Phillips, and Mrs. J. R. Broyles, both of Salem.

A merry affair of the week-end was the masquerade party in the parlors of the First Methodist church Saturday night, given by the members of the Intermediate Epworth league, for the pleasure of the new members.

The big room had been made festive with ornamentation of jack-o'-lanterns, sheaves of corn and other materials suggestive of the season. About 30 boys and girls participated in the gaieties of the evening, coming disguised as clowns, tramps, gypsies, colonial maids, Turks, and two girls representing animated paper bags.

An annual custom will again be revived tonight in the parlors of the First Methodist church when the women of the Mother's class of the Sunday school will entertain their husbands with a Hallowe'en party. Mrs. A. A. Lee is chairman of the program committee, and with her co-workers has an enjoyable schedule worked out for the evening.

Mrs. Ora Walker of McMinnville was the week-end guest at the W. W. Fawk home.

Mrs. Wilbur Griswold of Pendleton arrived Tuesday evening and will be the house guest for several weeks of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Larkin, 715 Center street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stewart of Lebanon were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Broyles.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Smith returned the first of the week from Spokane, where they had been visiting friends. During their absence which covered a period of three weeks, they were entertained by old acquaintances in various places of the state, where they made their home for many years before coming to Salem to reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto J. Wilson and their two children returned from a three week's motor trip in California last night. Their objectives were Palo Alto, where they visited Mayor Wilson's brother, and Merced, where they were entertained by Mrs. Wilson's sister and brother-in-law, Rev. and Mrs. H. T. Babcock, former pastor of the First Presbyterian church here, and who has held a similar position in Merced for the past seven years. The Wilsons visited every point of interest in California along their route of travel.

Mrs. Will H. Lytle returned Monday from Portland, where she went to attend a reception given by her sister, Mrs. Robert N. Stanfield for Mrs. Blanche Moorehouse, daughter of Major Lee come a powerful country in the hands of England? If Oregon goes from us, the honor of the United States goes with it. Never, no, never yield!"

The appeal of the Alton Telegraph is more than a burst of patriotism, it is a photograph of Jason Lee and his message. It pictures a man terribly earnest, pushing a campaign based on religion and patriotism. In his itinerary Mr. Lee visited a dozen states, and spoke in the principal cities of the country.

Men who speak with authority agree on one thing, namely, that Jason Lee's campaign gave the impetus towards Oregon. "This campaign," says Charles B. Moores, "was the greatest single influence in starting the immigration of 1843."

Inspired the Church. Jason Lee set the church on fire. When the call for life service was sounded out men and women responded, saying, "Here am I, send me," and the appeal for money to finance the enterprise brought thousands of dollars into the Lord's treasury. It was a day of the Lord; new glories filled earth and heaven, and men were driven by a celestial gale. Harvey K. Hines says of this aspect of Mr. Lee's victory:

It was a great achievement. A lumberman, called of God in the pinnacles of Canada, and driven by the spirit to the western coast of America, was received everywhere as a hero and hailed as a prophet. A profound impression was made upon the Missionary Society by Mr. Lee and his plans were adopted, though, as Bishop Bashford pointed out, fundamental changes in the policy of the Society were involved. What changes? Let Bishop Bashford tell the story. He says:

"Poverly donated his little wealth gave his gold, frankincense and myrrh. The culture of Boston responded; the pride of New York cast its jewels into the treasury. The staid sobriety of Philadelphia wept and shouted and gave. Baltimore outdid the renown of her ancient missionary fame."

"The change from pure evangelism to applied Christianity, and the adaptation of the mission in increasing measure to the white people while caring for the Indians."

See how it worked out. Under the spell of his spirit the Missionary Society authorized Jason Lee to bring 52 persons on the Lausanne to Oregon, 16 of whom were children. In addition, the Society authorized the purchase of machinery for farming, including a threshing machine, the iron works for a sawmill, for a grist mill, and all kinds of merchandise, so as to render the missionaries as far as practicable, independent of the Hudson's Bay Company, and enable them to introduce civilization and Christianity among the Indians and the white people.

Some of the practical and forward looking plans of the Centenary movement were anticipated by Jason Lee.

Officials of the government approved the designs of Jason Lee, and gave him a helping hand. This was a notable victory. The dream of Hall J. Kelley became a shining reality in his plan, and Cabinet ministers gave him financial support. It meant that the voyage of the Lausanne had a political as well as religious significance. Referring to the sailing of the Lausanne out of the harbor of New York, Bancroft says: "No company ever sailed from that port whose departure was watched with more interest by religious and political circles."

Political interest expressed itself in a practical way, which Bancroft describes in the following passage: "A proof of the favor with which Jason Lee's designs were regarded by the Cabinet is furnished by the appropriation of considerable money from the secret service fund for the charter of the Lausanne. Lee kept the secret, and so did those who gave him the money, until the boundary question was settled between United States and Great Britain."

The amount of the appropriation is given by one authority as $6,000, and by another as $2,600. The amount is immaterial for the purpose of this story. The fact establishes the influence of Jason Lee upon Congress and the government at Washington, and the significance of his colonization scheme in the settlement of the "Oregon Question."

In this work," said Harvey W. Scott, "no name stands out well above that of Jason Lee," and he is quoted by John Gill as calling Mr. Lee, the "Father of American Oregon."

He also quotes Bancroft as de-ignating him, the "Founder of American Institutions and Civilization on the Pacific coast."

No event, therefore, in Oregon history is more significant than the Voyage of the Lausanne.

Aboard for Oregon.

The Mission party went aboard the Lausanne October 9, 1839, and left New York the next day at 6:30 in the morning. May 21, 1840, the ship crossed the bar of the Columbia river and anchored in Baker's Bay; and, the chronicle says, "On the first day of June, by the good providence of God, we were permitted to cast anchor at Fort Vancouver, and terminate the voyage."

The Lausanne was their home for eight months, lacking eight days, and they sailed over 20,000 miles.

On the 13th of June a conference was called at Fort Vancouver to fix the appointments of the missionaries, and the next day they departed for their fields of labor.

The historic analogue of the Lausanne is the Mayflower, whose tercentenary is being celebrated this year. A writer in the Centennial History of Oregon well said: "It is a fair illustration to say that the Lausanne was to the Pacific Coast in 1840 what the Mayflower was to the Atlantic Coast in 1620."

The log of the Lausanne is full of human interest, but that is an other story.

For over a generation, discriminating housewives have used OLYMPIC Flour. Thirty years ago OLYMPIC Flour was good—today it has reason to be even better

Undoubtedly your grocer sells OLYMPIC. It comes in 10, 24½ and 49½ lb. sacks.

Cake That Melts in Your Mouth

2½ cups OLYMPIC Flour, (sifted before measuring).
1 cup sugar
1 cup milk
¼ cup butter (soft)
2 level teaspoons baking powder
1 or 2 eggs, well beaten.
Cream together sugar and butter; add eggs. Sift together flour and baking powder. Add to first mixture alternately with milk. Flavor with ½ teaspoon vanilla. Bake in moderate oven. Makes three layers.
FILLING: Powdered sugar. Whites of eggs. Fresh grated coconut.
Beat whites of eggs stiff; add sufficient powdered sugar to spread easily on cake. Sprinkle thickly with coconut.

Preparing for one hundred and twenty million meals with Karo Maple for 1921

Last year American housewives bought over five million cans of Karo Maple. Delicious flavor, moderate price and wise buying.

Do you know that the makers of Karo Maple are the world's largest users of the purest and best flavored maple sugar?

That over a thousand tons of maple sugar from the finest maple groves in Vermont and Canada are used each year to make Karo Maple?

Karo Maple is pure and wholesome—its flavor is not an imitation.

Yet the price is so moderate that you can afford to serve it at every meal.

Try it just once, on some nice hot waffles, or brown pancakes. Or as a spread for bread or crisp toast.

If Karo Maple isn't the most satisfying syrup you ever tasted, at the most satisfying price you ever paid for a similar syrup, return the balance of the can and the grocer will refund your money.
