BITS FOR BREAKFAST

Everybody ready to vote.

It is all over but the shouting, also most of the shouting.

Here is all there is to it: The people of this country long ago decided on a clean sweep of the mess at Washington.

And not a thing that has been done or said during the campaign has made as much as a dent in this firm determination.

One thing has happened, however, in Oregon, and perhaps in other states, and that is—

Many people have come to see that in order to make the clean sweep complete it is necessary to put on guard a Republican senate and house.

They see clearly that Harding could do nothing constructive without a congress of his own party.

And so they are going to give him such a congress.

It is all off with Chamberlain—All off in 1000 places, because he would do Oregon great harm at Washington in the future, and no good at all.

There is enough matter piled up on the desks of The Statesman to make several newspapers. Some of it will have to go over till the next election. And some of it will appear tomorrow and Tuesday.

Mr. Street, the flax man, started back to New York yesterday. He will be out here again in the spring; and it is much more than likely that his company will take a hand in the new prosperous flax industry of the Salem district.

PERSONAL MENTION—Arrangements have been made whereby Eric Butler, manager of the local Western Union telegraph office, will have charge of the special wire on election night at the Commercial club rooms. This will be a direct line between San Francisco and Seattle.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hancock of Albany have recently become residents of Salem.

Mrs. Myra Shank, police matron of Salem, was called to Albany Wednesday owing to the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Bacon.

Enlisted in U. S. Army July 9, 1917, at Portland, Oregon. Honorably discharged at Camp Mills, N. Y., July 11, 1919.

Fourteen months with American troops in France.

Mr. Moffitt does not ask consideration because of his military record, but refers voters to his Salem record as a police officer.
